

BLIZZARD RAGING IN SIERRA

The worst storm of the winter, which already has produced a raging blizzard in the Tahoe-Reno area and inflicted major damage in the San Francisco Bay area, moved forebodingly into the Southland Saturday night.

The weatherman said the full force of the storm probably would be felt in the Southern California area at about noon today.

The howling blizzard which struck late Saturday along the California-Nevada border blocked the major transcontinental highway, blacked out ski and gambling resorts and dealt wholesale havoc along its way. The storm, with winds up to 80 mph, dumped 60 inches of new snow on the Sierra.

The southern front of the storm moved into the Southland at about 8 p.m., Saturday, striking first at Catalina and in northeast Los Angeles County with light rains. The storm was accompanied by 30-50 m.p.h. wind gusts and declining temperatures.

gusting at 15-35 knots.

Nearby mountain areas and some desert regions were in for a more severe pounding than most of the Southland, the weatherman predicted. He said high winds would be felt in both desert and mountain resort areas and that desert roads would be subject to inordinately high winds. None of the roads was closed, however.

The ill winds brought one item of good news: no smog is forecast for the Los Angeles basin area today.

The weatherman said that the southern reaches of the storm were moving slowly into the Southland. To the north, deluged Californians from San Francisco to the Nevada border were given no respite from the lumbering downpour of rain and snow.

Heavy, blowing snow covered Interstate 80 over Donner Summit and the six-lane highway was closed because of poor visibility. Several secondary roads also were closed by the blizzard. Also closed were U.S. 50, state highway 16 and state Route 20, all in the Tahoe region.

Sporadic power failures were reported throughout the Lake Tahoe basin. Sierra Pacific Power Co. said lines snapped under the weight of ice.

Some gambling resorts switched to their own power systems, but a few placed candles in their rooms and casinos.

Squaw Valley ski resort also lost its power. Sierra Pacific spokesmen said it would not be restored until late today. The resort's auxiliary system provided

Q. About seven years ago we bought a home in the Los Altos area, and the Los Altos Association continuously mails us notices. What is this association, what does it do, and do I have to pay dues? O.K., Long Beach.

Q. I recently bought a home in the Bixby Knolls area, and then discovered it is mandatory to belong to the association here. I don't believe it is morally or legally right, because in the booklet it says I can sell to no one but a Caucasian. Any suggestions? G. M., Long Beach.

A. Both the Los Altos Association, covering 39 tracts, and the Cerritos Park Association, covering 13 tracts, are non profit corporations established by the original developers to administer some protective restrictions related to appearance — colors, roof and fence types — and are covered in grant deeds which generally state the property is "subject to easements, covenants and restrictions of record." Reg Dupuy, Cerritos Park manager, says, "Most escrow and title companies will provide a list of restrictions if you ask for them. Not all realtors or sellers remember to inform prospective buyers of the associations and standards," Dupuy explains, "so we have a contract with a title and trust company to notify us of transfers." The Los Altos group tries to keep tabs on transfers by being a member of the Long Beach Realtors Association. All new owners immediately become members of the associations and have one vote. Members are assessed about $5 per year to pay operating costs, and if the fee is not paid within a certain period, the associations are required to file a lien against the property. If property owners do not comply with certain architectural and building standards the associations can file certificates of noncompliance. "We feel property values in our area are higher than those of comparable property not covered by these restrictions," says George Riggins, president-elect of the Los Altos Association. Concerning racial restrictions, ACTION LINE found a clause in the Cerritos Park restrictions which reads, "No part of said property shall be sold, conveyed, rented or leased in whole or in part to any person of African or Asiatic descent or to any person not of the white or Caucasian race ...." Dupuy explains, "Almost every tract subdivided in Southern California prior to 1948 had that restriction, but the courts have ruled it unenforceable." Two attorneys confirmed the restriction is not enforceable. Copies of the restrictions are available at the Los Altos Association, 2001 Palo Verde Ave., or Cerritos Park Association, 3999 Atlantic Ave.

Q. I watched the Bob Hope special. Does Hope pay for the trip to Vietnam, or does the government help him out? M.B., Downey.

A. Bob Hope, who refers to servicemen as "the only audience subject to court martial if they walk out on me," spent $100,000 on staff and technicians for the Christmas trip. The United States Department of Defense provided transportation and paid each of the 66 troupe members $10 a day, and the USO paid the musicians, says Bill Faith, a spokesman for the comedian. The Vietnam trip, which provided 144,000 feet of film, was Hope's 25th overseas troop entertainment tour.

Q. Can Action Line supply us some information about Ronald Reagan, his age, birthday, education, religion and general background? M.J., Seal Beach, and other readers.

A. YES. Ronald Reagan, California's 33rd governor, was born Feb. 6, 1911, at Tampico, Ill. He is a graduate of tiny Eureka College at Eureka, Ill., where he waited tables to put himself through school and won varsity letters in football, track and swimming. He was a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon, and student-body president in his senior year. He worked as a newspaper sports writer and sports announcer. While covering spring training for the Chicago Cubs on Catalina Island he was scouted by Warner Brothers and signed to a motion-picture contract. During World War II, Reagan entered the Army as a second lieutenant and earned the rank of captain during the four years he served. The governor served six terms as president of the Screen Actors Guild, and 14 years on the board of directors. A Protestant, Reagan attends a Christian Church

Calif. Lobby Doubled in Washington

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — More and more public agencies in California are finding it necessary to keep a close eye on what Governor Ronald Reagan has called "the puzzle palaces on the Potomac."

Within the last four months, the number of California public agencies with full-time representatives in Washington has doubled and even more are in prospect.

Last September, such representation was limited to the governor's office, the Metropolitan Water District, the University of Southern California and the City and County of San Francisco.

But since then along have come full-time agents for the City of San Diego, the California State Colleges, the County of Los Angeles, the state legislature and — barring a last-minute budgetary snag — an association representing junior colleges and private schools. A Los Angeles City representative is also in prospect.

These, of course, don't

U.S. Jets Hit Reds by Hanoi

SAIGON, Sunday (AP) — American jet pilots flew through a sky full of challenging Communist MIGs Saturday to bomb bridges and other targets near the North Vietnam capital of Hanoi, U.S. military headquarters reported today.

A Hanoi broadcast claimed seven U.S. planes were shot down over North Vietnam Saturday, but U.S. headquarters made no report immediately on any American plane losses.

U.S. fliers reported "numerous MIG encounters and sightings" during raids northwest of Hanoi and in the industrial area northeast of the Communist capital. Initial reports said there were at least eight encounters, some of which involved exchanges of fire.

In declaring that seven American planes were shot down, North Vietnam's news agency implied in a broadcast that MIG fighters shared in the kills.

In assessing Communist air strength, U.S. Lt. Gen. William Momyer expressed belief in an interview that the North Vietnamese Air Force is "at least back up to where it was" before American fighters destroyed the nine MIG 21s. That could mean a force of 75 planes.

KERR FIRING STIRS FUROR

Protest Rallies on All 9 UC Campuses Planned

BERKELEY (AP) — Angry reaction against the firing of Dr. Clark Kerr as University of California President erupted Saturday across the giant institution's state campuses.

Mass rallies of protest were planned Monday at all nine campuses.

Faculty leaders in Berkeley protested what they called the board of regents' "precipitous action taken without consultation with the faculty." Kerr was ousted Friday by a 14-8 board vote.

They called an emergency session of the Academic Senate for Tuesday to make "appropriate and urgent representations" to the regents.

Dan McIntosh, Berkeley student-body president, declared students as well as faculty must be consulted in selecting Kerr's successor.

Bob Michaels, UCLA student-body president, said a mass meeting was planned for Monday.

Pressed for elaboration on what went on at the regents' meeting, Gov. Reagan advised newsmen through a spokesman Saturday that he would hold a Sacramento news conference Tuesday on the dismissal.

"The governor will have absolutely no further statement" until then.

The ouster of Kerr, head of what he called the multiversity since 1958, generated shock waves across the campuses of both the University and California State College systems.

"Boy, are they going to have a hard time filling that job!" exclaimed Dr. John Summerskill, San Francisco State College president. "Especially in this political climate."

About 350 Berkeley faculty members assembled in a quickly called meeting and voted to send Kerr a message declaring "outrage at the unwarranted action" by the regents.

Owen Chamberlin, physicist and one of 12 Nobel Prize winners in the system faculty, presided. He announced an emergency Academic Senate meeting of faculty members for next Tuesday.

Glenn Dumke, chancellor of California State Colleges, said: "To fire Kerr is probably the greatest blow to higher education since the founding of the university 99 years ago."

lature applauded the action.

"I think the people of California have spoken loudly by this vote in demanding that discipline be restored at Berkeley," declared Assemblyman Don Mulford, R-Oakland, a longtime Kerr foe. "I think this is the end of the Mario Savio and the Jerry Rubins."

Savio and Rubin, nonstudent leaders of a Nov. 30 protest against a military recruiting team on campus, were convicted Saturday on trespass and nuisance charges.

Savio, as a student, led

Bomb Stopped in Time

KILLEEN, Texas (UPI) — Killeen Police Capt. Charley Mitchell used a piece of cellophane tape Saturday to stop the timing of a dynamite bomb set to go off within minutes, possible seconds, in the parking lot of a department store.

"I don't know how much time it had left," said Mitchell. "But it was so close that it would scare you."

Police said the shoppers inside the store were in no danger, but the bomb would probably have killed Mitchell if it had exploded.

The bomb, made up of one stick of dynamite, a pocket watch, a blasting cap and a flashlight battery, was found in the paint department of the store.

It apparently was a dud. An employee found the bomb wrapped in a brown paper bag, and threw it out the back door of the store.

Police theorized the impact of the bomb hitting the parking lot pavement started the timing mechanism working.

"The only thing I could think of was to stop it—so I took a piece of tape and put it over the second hand and over the bottom of the watch and it stopped," said Mitchell.

"It evidently was set to go off at 12 o'clock or thereabouts," he said.

He said his own watch showed it was 11:45 a.m. when he stopped the watch, but the hour hand on the bomb watch was pointing directly at 12. He said the minute hand was gone so he didn't know how many minutes or seconds would have preceded the explosion.

Ann Sheridan Dead at 52; 'False,' She Kept Illness from Fans

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ann Sheridan, 52, whose real life romances rivaled her portrayals in movies, died Saturday night as her series was appearing on television screens throughout the eastern United States.

Miss Sheridan, the "Oomph Girl" of World War II, died at her San Fernando Valley home. Her husband, Scott McKay, was with her at the time.

Death came after a lingering illness. One friend said she had been suffering from emphysema, a lung ailment. Two others said she was a victim of cancer. But she managed to keep her illness secret.

Joseph Conley, producer of "Pistols 'n' Petticoats,"

ANN SHERIDAN
'Oomph Girl' Gone

said, "I asked her doctor several times and he would never tell me. She had been unable to work for the past three weeks. Before that she worked with a lot of guts and character.

"She said she wanted to see the series through."

THE TEXAS-BORN actress had returned to the limelight last year as star of the satirical western on CBS.

She had co-starred with many of the screen's most romantic stars and was herself a party to many headlined romances.

She was married to actors Edward Norris, George Brent and McKay and during the 1940s was linked with high-powered publicist Steve Hannagan.

They were often reported about to be married, but Hannagan died a bachelor.

Kerr's Retort

BERKELEY, (AP) — Dr. Clark Kerr and Gov. Ronald Reagan disagreed sharply Saturday on who triggered the firing of Kerr as University of California President.

"The matter of a vote of confidence was brought up by Dr. Kerr, not the board," Reagan said Friday night in Los Angeles after the 14-8 vote by the board of regents for Kerr's immediate dismissal.

"His request came as a complete surprise to all of us," Reagan said. The governor voted with the board majority.

"The governor's statement is completely false," Kerr declared Saturday at his El Cerrito home.

"I never have asked for a vote of confidence and I didn't yesterday."

BITTERNESS between Reagan, the Republican governor, and Kerr was kindled during Reagan's successful campaign for the governorship.

Their feud built up at last week's session of the regents, where Kerr opposed Reagan proposals to slash the university budget and to charge all students tuition.

Theodore Meyer, board of regents president, backed Kerr's denial that he had asked a confidence vote.

Meyer, who voted to dismiss Kerr, told a news conference the deposed president had not broached the subject. He said the matter was brought up by several regents.

Two other regents—Mrs. Randolph Hearst and Allen Grant of Visalia—said Kerr had forced the issue.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Mrs. JFK Seeks Expense-Fund End

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy has asked President Johnson to cut off the $30,000 federal appropriation used to pay her office expenses, it was disclosed Saturday.

Her brother-in-law, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., made public in Washington a letter in which the widow of President John F. Kennedy said she no longer needed, or wanted, federal funds for her mail and other official business.

Mrs. Kennedy recalled in her letter that in late 1965 she requested that her office expenses, budgeted at $53,000 a year, be cut back. In releasing the letter, Sen. Kennedy noted that Congress provided $30,000 for the year which ends June 30.

The letter indicated that the new budget, which Johnson will send to Congress Tuesday, provided for another $30,000, but officials said Congress would be asked to delete it at Mrs. Kennedy's request.

Mrs. Kennedy still will be entitled to protection by the Secret Service for herself and her two children, Caroline and John, at least until November. That protection is authorized for four years after the death in office of a President.

Despite suggestions of coolness between Mrs. Kennedy and Johnson, the Jan. 12 letter was cordial. Mrs. Kennedy ended her letter: "With my deepest appreciation always." It was signed: "Jacqueline Kennedy."

There was nothing in the letter to substantiate reports of hard feelings between the Kennedys and Johnson stemming from William Manchester's book, "The Death of a President."

ACTRESS KILLED

Liza Chapman, 37, an actress on the daytime television serial "Secret Storm," was injured Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger smashed into a boulder on the Connecticut Turnpike near Norwalk.

LIZA

Her husband, Andrew M. Heath Jr., 38, a pianist and head of the music department at Fairfield University, was injured seriously in the crash. He drove the car, police said. Miss Chapman had appeared recently as Barbara Bradford on the CBS-TV serial. She also was a veteran of an NBC-TV serial, "Another World," and had several off-Broadway stage credits.

PAYOFF

Mayor Samuel W. Yorty received a barrel of oysters Saturday from Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin of Baltimore, Md., in an exchange of gifts linked to the World Series.

Yorty sent McKeldin a case of California wines after the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers four straight in the series.

This was a "goodwill gesture," according to Yorty because mayors are not supposed to make bets.

McKeldin, advising Yorty of his return gift, wrote: "Since we did not make a wager on the game and I would not want anyone to think that you had lost a bet and were paying off with a gift of California wine, and since we feel you suffered enough in the loss of the series and should not also be deprived of a true gastronomical treat, I am shipping to you a barrel of the finest oysters in the world from the waters of the Chesapeake Bay."

"You will find our oysters are every bit as good as our Orioles."

DENOUNCED

A Bulgarian weekly political magazine in Vienna Saturday devoted 21 of its 40 pages to a denunciation of Author John Steinbeck, charging that his dispatches from Vietnam amounted to "propaganda for U.S. aggression" there.

The magazine Po Sveta (Around the World) also criticized New York Times Saigon correspondent Charles Mohr and other newsmen.

WHISTLER

Actress Elke Sommer whistles on her fingers during awards for the German 'Bambi' film prizes in Munich Saturday. Miss Sommer was awarded the 'Silver Bambi' as the most popular film star in Germany after Lilo Pulver.

BITTEN

In Blantyre, Malawi an eight-foot black mamba, one of the world's deadliest snakes, struck and bit a girl working with the U.S. Peace Corps, doctors said Saturday.

They said the girl, identified as Margaret Castro of California, was bitten recently as she rode her motorcycle. She gave herself first aid and is now recovering in a hospital.

DIED

Charles Rollo Peters, III, 74, actor, theater director and portrait painter, died Saturday in Monterey.

During his theater career, he had appeared with Minnie Maddern Fiske, Laurette Taylor, Ethel Barrymore, Peggy Wood, Dorothy Gish and Ann Harding.

He made his debut with the Washington Square Players in New York with Katharine Cornell with whom he starred later on Broadway.

He founded the New York Theater Guild in 1919 with Lawrence Langer, was its first general director and had a leading role in its first production, "John Ferguson."

DROP INS

President and Mrs. Johnson dropped in unexpectedly Saturday at a wedding reception in the Pan American Union for Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa Jr., son of the Nicaraguan Ambassador, and his bride.

The young Sevilla Sacasa and Louise Driscoll of Washington were married earlier in the day. Ambassador Sevilla-Sacasa is dean of the diplomatic corps in Washington.

Two Die in British Air Freighter Crash

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Both crewmen aboard were killed Saturday when a four-engine British freight plane crashed while trying to land at Rhine-Main Airport.

Aircraft Firm's Merger Forecast Within 90 Days

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

The anticipated merger of Douglas Aircraft Co. with the McDonnell Co. of St. Louis, Mo., should be accomplished within three months, an informed Wall Street source told The Independent Press-Telegram Saturday.

Time is of the essence, as far as Douglas is concerned," the source said in a telephone interview. "I'm sure the merger will be expedited as much as possible."

He discounted the possibility that the Justice Department's antitrust division will hamper the proceedings.

The source also expressed the belief that Donald Douglas Jr., firm president, had been unjustly maligned in the company's financial collapse.

IN MY "OPINION," he said, the main cause of the trouble goes back to 1958 when Douglas lost out in jet-transport production to Boeing.

Many of their most promising people, discouraged because of the company's failure to move vigorously into the commercial jet field and convinced of a bleak future ahead, left Douglas then.

This deprived Douglas of the middle management depth that might have averted last fall's crisis. So, as I see it, the fault lies not with Douglas Jr., who took over in 1957 when the die had been cast, but with whoever made the earlier decisions.

SOME "VETERAN" Douglas officials give the following version of why Douglas dropped behind Boeing in commercial jet transport sales.

"We were neck-and-neck with Boeing," one said, "in competition for the military jet tanker contract. Boeing stuck its neck out and built a prototype and won the contract over our plane, which existed only on paper."

"This still was all right."

Union Votes Civic Group $1,000 Fund

The membership of United Aerospace Workers Local 148, representing employees at the Long Beach Division of Douglas Aircraft Co. voted last week to donate $1,000 to the Long Beach Community Improvement League for its aid-to-youth projects.

Ed Wianneck, president of the local, made the appeal on behalf of the executive board, which acted Thursday night.

The Long Beach Community Improvement League, established in 1964, is a volunteer, nonprofit organization which helps youngsters better themselves through such programs as Project Tutor, Project Head Start, Project Self, Project Friend, vocational guidance, adult education and Teen Posts.

Office Robbed

Dr. Joseph L. Roberge, 4056 Orange Ave., told Long Beach police Saturday that while his receptionist was out for lunch, a thief took two envelopes containing $269 from a desk drawer in his offices.

We figured we'd make out selling commercial planes while Boeing was fulfilling its tanker contract. However, the secretary of the Air Force suddenly gave Boeing permission to make every fourth plane on the line for commercial sale.

(This really hurt us. And Boeing finished the job by turning out three different models of their transport in competition against our single DC8 when we didn't have the money to do the same thing.)

"But nobody remembers, now, that the first order for an American jet transport was placed with us — by Pan American — and not with Boeing."

The Wall Street spokesman believes that the McDonnell Co. was the best possible choice to merge with Douglas.

They have one of the best management teams in the country," he observed.

Another point in favor of the St. Louis firm is its bright financial picture. Last year, McDonnell realized earnings of $43 million on sales exceeding $1 billion.

Observers disagree on the possibility that McDonnell might move its headquarters here from St. Louis.

Board Chairman James McDonnell, who will be 68 in April, has roots too deeply imbedded in St. Louis politics and civic life to leave now, it is believed.

Despite his age, "Mr. Mac," as he is universally known in St. Louis, is in excellent health and gives no indication of relinquishing his leadership.

"He really runs the show, and you'd better believe it," the St. Louis source says.

HOWEVER, there appears to be a strong likelihood that McDonnell's space work will be moved here, probably to the 228-acre site acquired by the company about a year ago on the north and west sides of Orange County Airport.

McDonnell, revealed some time ago that its electronics research and manufacturing facilities would be moved to Orange County.

Also, a subsidiary plant in Pasadena which produces photographic equipment apparently is slated for the new site, where plant construction is scheduled for next spring.

Establishment of a McDonnell Douglas space headquarters in this area would make sense because McDonnell's major space effort now is centered on production of Gemini B. spacecraft, to be used in the manned orbiting laboratory program.

DOUGLAS' Missiles and Space Systems Division, headquartered at the Douglas Space Systems Center in Huntington Beach, is prime contractor for development of the MOL.

There is widespread belief that financial whiz David S. Lewis, McDonnell president, will be assigned here to take personal charge of straightening the tangled Douglas fiscal web.

However, the St. Louis source said he was told by Lewis himself as late as Wednesday that no firm decision on the matter had been made.

A tight security lid has been clamped over corporate headquarters of both Douglas and McDonnell on future plans until details are worked out in discussions now occurring.

It is believed that some major decisions may be announced in two weeks or less.

GIRL SCOUT MARINE LANDING DEDICATED

More than 200 visitors, including Navy and civic leaders, attended dedication ceremonies Saturday for $51,000 Girl Scout Marine Landing in Long Beach Marina area. Capt. Raymond Kellam delivered the salute from the Navy, citing various ships which have sponsored scouting groups.

A Guy Named Jack Finds a Death Named 'Horse'

(Editor's Note: On Dec. 11, The Independent Press-Telegram printed former recording artist Johnny Vincent's story, of how it is to run down the dark alley of narcotics addiction so frantically that one finds himself back in the bleak sunlight of the real world. The tale brought him three Christmas cards and a cry for help from a young man referred to below as "Jack.")

By ART VINSEL

Jack's world was a lonely one after he told so many people to go to Hell that he suddenly found there was no one left to reject.

He reached out to a stranger, but got only a handful of pills and at 17, he decided it would be Jack and junk against the world. He quit school to get people off his back, but found it wasn't people—only the crushing weight of his own inadequacy.

Now 19, Jack may be wiser; more aware of the fact that one must live in his world instead of running from it. With the help now offered, perhaps he will.

Jack is not his real name, but at this stage—unfortunately—it is easier to hide his identity than to help him achieve it.

Under the dropout's discomforting burden of time to kill, Jack said he spent much time reading. Last month, he read the Johnny Vincent story.

Vincent, 28, let a promising career as a singer and entertainer slip through fingers trembling with addiction, before kicking the narcotics habit. He's aiming for a comeback and the target is large, but so far, he hasn't hit it.

Jack, who was probably learning long division when Vincent was learning what a long, despairing road the junkie faces, seemed to identify with the older man.

He called the newspaper and asked to be put in touch with Vincent, saying he had taken his first shot of heroin not long before and wanted help. "I'm scared," he said, "and I'm afraid to go to 'the Heat,' using a slang term for narcotics officers."

Vincent said he would do whatever he could, though it meant time away from the endless merry-go-around of trying to make it big—an ordeal even tougher the second time around.

Jack moved in with him for a few days so they could talk over the making of a junkie and the awfulness of the finished product. Within a few days, Jack showed what he had learned.

He opened his glove compartment to let Johnny see a plastic bag of marijuana—a pathetically obvious setup to anyone who knows the name of the neurotic game. "Punish me," he was saying, "so I can feel sorry for myself and reject everything all over again."

Vincent threw the weed out into the passing darkness with all the justifiable fury of a man whose mere presence it could have sent back to jail.

"I wish I could tell you what I felt," said Vincent, who knows well the agony of months behind bars, "but I can't."

Johnny didn't throw Jack out, but the incident created tension and Jack moved out, drifted around a day or two and finally went back to his family's home.

Some who know him speculate whether Jack ever used narcotics as a borderline junkie, or only as a hurtful threat to a disapproving world which won't always give him his way.

He said he began shooting heroin in late 1966, but he is vague about how often, why, and what it felt like. He was obviously never hooked, although he says he was gradually becoming ill through it.

"I always said I'd never stick a needle in my arm," he explains of the days when pot and pills were plenty to shut out life, "But it just don't happen that way."

Many people have tried to reason with Jack—his parents, psychiatrists, narcotics officers, Johnny Vincent, and even Phil Thatcher, a former convict, turned minister, who was instrumental in helping Vincent. The young singer went to Thatcher for help with Jack.

Thatcher and Vincent are still trying to help the boy, who says it has made a difference.

Jack rambles concerning his present attitudes, plans, the hard-to-express "problems," which bother him, and where he will go from here. Essentially, he wants a job, is about to begin a class at Long Beach City College as a start toward finishing high school, and has a new hopeful outlook on life.

"I wonder if I'll be drafted?" he says, adding, "The Heat was out to my house quite a few times." His local record, however, shows only one intoxication rap—not much to spare him from a man-hungry military establishment.

If Jack simply trying out some new and yet unexplored role, or has someone cracked his lonely shell enough to let a taste of reality seep through?

It would be foolish to predict the outcome at this stage and the hopeful men interested in Jack are not fools.

Blizzard Raging in Sierra

Between three and four feet of snow fell in the Sierra from the storm, which hit Northern California Friday.

A freight train derailment inside a snowshed near Donner Summit blocked Southern Pacific's transcontinental route.

Southern Pacific canceled its eastbound City of San Francisco passenger train, while the westbound train was stopped at Sparks, Nev., and passengers put aboard buses for their California destinations.

Slashing rains, pushed by 50-to-60-mile-an-hour winds, forced postponement of the third round of the $100,000 Bing Crosby national pro-Am golf tournament at Pebble Beach.

Unemployed Shills on Seasonal Jobless Pay

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Sixty unemployed shills, elderly men and women who work for the boardwalk auction houses, are collecting unemployment insurance.

Shills are hired by the auction houses to pose as customers to insure the auctioneers get a minimum price by bidding up the articles.

The city passed an ordinance 30 years ago making the use of shills illegal, but has not enforced it.

James L. Dugan, manager of the state employment service office, said the shills regularly apply for unemployment during the winter months, the slow season.

"It's sedentary work and they love it," Dugan said. "It's the only work they can do—with their age."

Until recently they were paid $1 an hour, but under the new minimum-wage law it will be increased to $1.25.

Anger Man, Youth Shot

A 19-year-old Redondo Beach youth was in critical condition at the prison ward of Los Angeles County General Hospital late Saturday after he was shot by a man who said he was trying to nab car thieves.

Joseph Palumbo, 19, of 2515 Mathews Ave., was brought down early Saturday by a .22-caliber bullet fired by Ronald Dennis McGee, 23, of 2614 Voorhees Ave., Redondo Beach, police officers reported.

Police said McGee told them he tried to arrest Palumbo when he saw him looking inside a car with a flashlight. McGee told officers he had been sitting in his car in hopes of trapping the person responsible for a rash of recent auto thefts in the area.

By talking to residents, he established the mischief was done between 3 and 8 a.m. Many neighbors said this wasn't the first time they'd had their tires flattened—but it was the first time such a thorough job had been done.

They have plenty of books announced this week that applications for jobs as pages, which pay $1.60 to $1.80 an hour, will be accepted through Jan. 30. A written test probably will be given at the time the application is filed.
H. E. Putman, secretary and chief examiner of the Civil Service Board, said the city "seriously needs" more pages.
Applications for engineering, drafting and other technical jobs will be accepted through March 31. Examinations will be scheduled periodically, Putman said. The job pays a salary range of $517 to $688 monthly.
Candidates for draftsmen jobs in the Municipal Utility Building, 215 W. Broadway, will file their applications through June 30. Examinations will be scheduled periodically. The monthly salary range for draftsmen is $575 to $709.
Application forms and additional information may be obtained from the Civil Service Board in the Municipal Utility Building, 215 W. Broadway, or from the city's "seriously needs" more pages.

ON MISSION OF SERVICE

Mary DeLone, 70, Leading Red Cross Volunteer, Dies

By MARK CLUTTER

A woman who gave without stint of her time, experience and radiant personality in service of others died Saturday as she would have wished—quickly and without pain while going about her work.

Mrs. Mary DeLone, who worked four days and two nights a week without pay as chairman of the Red Cross blood program for open-heart surgery, was en route to a Red Cross meeting in Los Angeles when it happened.

"SHE GAVE a little cough and started breathing heavily," said Mrs. Jerry Baker, another Red Cross worker. I stopped the car and felt for her pulse. I could feel none. I took her to the fire station and the men attempted first aid. She was pronounced dead at St. Mary's Hospital."

Mrs. DeLone was born in Pennsylvania on Oct. 12, 1896. During World War II she was active in Civil Defense and as a nurse's aide. On moving to Long Beach

MARY DeLONE
In Service To Others

in 1949 she went to work as a volunteer Red Cross worker in the Veterans Administration Hospital. She was chairman of volunteers for awhile.

Her fellow workers praised her for her tireless efficiency and radiant personality. "My mother always wanted to do good for others," said Mrs. Kathryn Brandt.

In emergencies she was available night or day. She helped to found the Area Council, which includes 10 other chapters, to see to it that patients had gifts, comforts and entertainment. She was several years vice chairman of volunteers.

MRS. DeLONE was a board member of the Long Beach chapter.

She did not limit her activities to Red Cross. She was active in St. Thomas of Canterbury Episcopal Church.

She lived at 13741 Anandale Drive, Seal Beach. Mrs. DeLone is survived by her daughter and five grandchildren.

Service will be in St. Thomas of Canterbury Church, but the time still is pending. Private burial will be in Ft. Rosecrans National Cemetery, Dilday-Lakewood Funeral Home is in charge.

Coast Arbitrator Killed in Crash

L. B. Thomas, a West Coast Longshore arbitrator and former head of Local 13 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union in Wilmington, was killed in San Rafael Saturday when his car skidded into a traffic island during a rainstorm. He was 55.

Thomas, who was known in waterfront circles as Tommy or L.B., but whose full name was Lorian Breckenridge Thomas, was en route from San Francisco to his home in San Rafael when the accident occurred. The time was 3:15 a.m.

Thomas was a veteran longshoreman, having started out on the docks in Seattle in the 'thirties. He subsequently moved to Wilmington and became a member of Local 13, and held the presidency of the local several times. Before his longshoring days, he was a seaman.

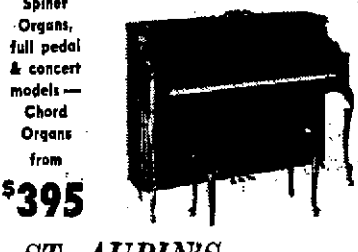

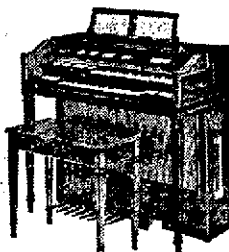

Thomas held virtually every office in the local union, and eventually became a member of the ILWU's committee that Thomas helped shape the union against the effects of automation.

Thomas is survived by his wife, Enis, two daughters and a son. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Hungary, West Germany to Establish Relations

New York Times Service
BUDAPEST — Communist

Olivetti Work Stops

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Workers at the Hispano-Olivetti typewriter plant Saturday staged their second one-hour work stoppage in as many days. About 200 workers at the plant are demanding higher wages.

Hungary is ready to establish diplomatic relations with West Germany provided no strings are attached.

This is what one hears in the Hungarian capital on the eve of a visit by Rolf Lahr, state secretary in the Bonn foreign ministry. He is due to arrive here Monday.

Lahr is expected to offer an exchange of embassies to the Hungarians, but it is not known whether there will be any strings. The West Germans are believed to be concerned about the status of West Berlin in their Eastern relations, and it may be they will ask for a special clause dealing with this subject.

Tito Will Visit Russia

BELGRADE (UPI) — Yugoslav President Tito will visit the Soviet Union at the end of this month at the invitation of Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev, the Tanjug news agency reported Saturday.

The attitude of Communist East Germany toward the Bonn initiative is, according to Budapest sources, one of nervous reserve. The Soviet attitude is less clear.

Jacobs Seeks Reelection to Board of Education

Jerald S. Jacobs, civic, youth and community leader for many years, will seek reelection for his second term as a member of the Board of Education of the Long Beach Unified School District at the school election, Friday, April 7.

The well known electrical contractor has held the highest posts in the YMCA and Boy Scouts of America in this area, has served as chairman of the Long Beach Planning Commission and has accepted numerous civic assignments in the district.

Jacobs was appointed to the school board in July, 1962, to succeed Laban H. Brewer, who retired. He was elected to a full four-year term in 1963.

"MY YEARS with youth organizations in our community have taught me the importance of education for our boys and girls," Jacobs said, in announcing his candidacy. "The need for good public schools is probably greater today than at any time in our nation's history.

"I have been proud to serve with the Long Beach Unified School District and would like to continue in this most satisfying work."

The candidate said that the emphasis on the teaching of the basic skills, the high priority given to the passing on of America's heritage of freedom and the increasing emphasis in scholarship are foundations of a good school system.

"Because of my personal background, I have been especially interested in the teaching of moral and spiritual values," he stressed.

"AS A BUSINESSMAN, I have taken an active part in the financing of the schools and am confident that we can continue to provide quality education at a reasonable cost," he added. "More than 90 per cent of the school districts in Los Angeles County have a higher school tax rate than our system."

Jacobs said he favors local control of public schools.

The candidate and his wife, Jetta, live at 4300 California Ave. They have a married daughter, Joyce E. Hamula; a son, Jerry, who is an airline pilot, and a daughter, Janey, a student.

He was co-founder, manager and secretary-treasurer of Hoffman and Jacobs, Inc., from 1940 until 1955, when he founded his own company bearing his name at 812 Cowles St. Jacobs was president of the Electrician's Union during his early years in Long Beach and has retained his membership in the union.

HE HAS JUST completed his third year as president of the Long Beach Area Council of Boy Scouts and continues to serve as a director of the council. He is a past president of the Metropolitan Board of the YMCA of Greater Long Beach, is a director of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and has served as a member of the High Council in the Long Beach Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He has also served as president of the Kiwanis Club and is a licensed pilot and a registered engineer.

Jacobs was president of the Board of Education in 1965-66 and now serves as vice president.

NAA Lifts Seal Beach Construction

"Seal Beach is one of the few cities where construction in 1967 increased 100 per cent," Lee Risner, city manager, notes.

North American Aviation started construction of its Space and Information Systems Division last spring with an investment of about $1.5 million. The company expects to have invested $30 million and be employing over 12,000 when the facility is completed. The first buildings are scheduled for occupancy about March 1.

About 300 homes have been completed in one major subdivision, College Park East. Construction will start on another 1400 in the spring. In addition, the Bixby Ranch Company has scheduled opening of a private country club for April.

"In its plans for this year the city will study means of improving its older ocean areas. We want to see what can be done to continue the health and desirability of these areas. Plans are already under way for major improvements in a water distribution system, bringing capacity up to 1.5 million versus 1 million," Risner says.

CHRISTMAS COMES LATE

Santa Waited for Larry

By GEORGE LAINE

There wasn't a youngster in all of Belmont Shore who looked forward to Christmas more than 5-year-old Larry Armstrong.

He got his letter to Santa ready, dropped all the hints he could about hoped-for toys and kept pestering his 12 brothers and sisters about how long he had to wait for the Big Day.

On Dec. 16, Larry darted into the street in front of his house at 168 Roycroft Ave. A motorcycle tried to avoid him, but couldn't. There was a thud, and young Larry's body flew through the air, landing with another thud on the coarsely asphalted roadway.

Christmas actually began on that day for Larry Armstrong. The first person to the scene was an unknown doctor, visiting a friend who lived on Roycroft Avenue. He felt for a pulse, found none, applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and was rewarded by a slight movement. The doctor took his mouth away and heard a low moan.

The ambulance that arrived had resuscitation equipment. Young Larry was sped to Community Hospital where doctors labored feverishly to mend his torn and bleeding body. Hours later, their preliminary labors complete, they assessed the damages.

Larry had suffered, they found, a severe concussion of the skull, a fractured leg, and deep cuts over much of his body. One laceration nearly tore the child's ear off. Another began high on the back of his head and wandered painfully around his neck to his collar bond.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER, says Larry Armstrong, 5, as his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, look on devotedly.

—AP Wirephoto

The doctors pursued their labors. Larry's ear was securely stitched to his scalp. The other lacerations were sutured and clamped. His jaw — which held a mouthful of loosened teeth — was fitted with a brace.

How well the doctor's did their work was evident Saturday morning when Larry went home, to a family that had been more than a month in hopeful prayer, and found that a substitute Christmas awaited him.

A tree, the third the Armstrong family has purchased since Christmas, was sitting in the living room. Gifts from each of his 12 brothers and sisters and his parents and friends awaited him.

He'll be three months in bed," said the boy's father, Arthur Armstrong, an employee of the American Wholesale Hardware Company. "But that's nothing. The important thing is that he's home with us." Mrs. Armstrong nodded her agreement.

The things he wanted most — his Larry the Lion and a rocking horse — were waiting for him," said Mrs. Armstrong.

Little Larry? He's in a new crib, comforted by a new pink blanket, playing with the deluge of tardy Christmas gifts. He's delighted by it all, shows it with a huge, little boy's grin.

Is it almost as much fun as being at the regular family Christmas gathering?

"Almost," said Larry, returning his attention to the toys.

Partisans Seek Aid for Nixon

New York Times Service

NEW ORLEANS — The campaign to give Richard M. Nixon a second chance at the presidency has broken into the open.

Republican leaders, in New Orleans for a series of party strategy meetings, have received letters from two Nixon partisans, backing the former vice president for the 1968 nomination and soliciting support for him.

The most recent and most direct was written by Fred Seaton of Nebraska earlier this week to all Republican state chairmen and members of the national committee. In it, the former under secretary of the Interior asks them, in effect, to endorse Nixon now or take a contrary position.

"It is my belief," Seaton wrote, "that Dick Nixon is the single Republican with the stature, the requisite abilities and the qualities of leadership essential to unite us and maintain our current momentum—to the end that we shall enjoy many more victories at all levels in 1968, including the office of president of the United States."

THE FORMER Eisenhower administration official asked all the national leaders of the party to put themselves on record in return letters to him either backing Nixon or dissenting from the idea.

"Whether you agree with my position or wish to offer friendly and constructive dissent," he writes, "I would appreciate your advice and counsel on this matter of vital importance for our party and our country."

The second letter was written by John Davis Lodge, former governor of Connecticut, about three weeks ago. He wrote: "It is my strong personal feeling that it is time Dick Nixon received recognition for his dedicated efforts for the Republican Party, in this and other years."

Reprisals Hinted at Canada Banks

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The United States has privately hinted to Canada that there may be reprisals against Canadian banks operating in this country if Ottawa enacts legislation limiting the assets of an American-owned bank in Montreal, informed sources said Saturday.

The precise form of potential American countermeasures was not specified. It was said that the veiled warning was passed to Canada through normal diplomatic channels.

Action could be taken either by Congress or by individual states, it was pointed out. Officials said that in New York, there are 24 Canadian banking agencies with assets estimated at more than $2 billion.

THE HINTS OF REPRISALS

indicated that a showdown was approaching in the heated three-year-old controversy over the purchase in 1963 of the Mercantile Bank of Montreal by the First National City Bank of New York. The dispute has stirred harsh words and hard feelings on both sides of the border.

The National City Bank case has implications, American officials feel, for the roughly $20 billion of American private investment in Canada.

For Canada, the primary issue has been to assert its economic "sovereignty" and financial independence from U.S. capital investment in Canada.

Washington's objection has been that Canada is about to impose an unfair retroactive penalty against an American firm that made a proper investment in Canada under the laws in effect at the time of its investment.

Apparently piqued at Canadian suggestions that the U.S. and in particular, U.S. Ambassador W. Walton Butterworth, have acted improperly in the dispute, the State Department Saturday issued a statement defending Butterworth.

"The criticism of the ambassador is completely unwarranted," a spokesman said.

S.F. Airport Placed on Emergency Power

SAN BRUNO (UPI) — Electrical service at San Francisco International Airport was cut by about two-thirds Saturday because of a power failure.

An auxiliary power system went into operation, and aircraft movements were not affected.

After Landing on Moon, What Will U.S. Shoot for Next?

By JOHN N. WILFORD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A growing confidence that the United States will be able to meet its Apollo Project goal of landing astronauts on the moon by 1970 has plunged space planners into an urgent debate over where to aim next.

Where does the nation go in space after it goes to the moon? Mars? Venus?

Or will it attempt to develop a whole galaxy of giant manned laboratories in earth orbit for research and surveillance? Or networks of communications and weather satellites? Or a series of instrument probes to comets, asteroids and the far planets?

THE QUESTIONS have also opened a new and searching re-examination into the value of space exploration. Some ways in Washington ask not "after Apollo, what?" but "after Apollo, why?"

The debate is expected to intensify after President Johnson submits his proposed budget for the fiscal year 1968 to Congress this week. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has asked for money to make down payments on post-Apollo missions, and economy minded congressmen are suggesting sharp cuts in space spending to help pay for the rising cost of the war in Vietnam.

Unless post-Apollo objectives are defined soon, NASA officials say, the nation could find itself unprepared to achieve any major new space goal before the mid-1970's. They explain that the initiation of a project to its first operational flights could take five years or more.

Apollo, for example, was announced in 1961 but only now has reached the point of its first manned mission, an earth-orbiting test flight scheduled to be launched Feb. 21.

At stake in the post-Apollo decision is the future of 375,000 employees with 20,000 space contractors and the space agency's $3.6 billion worth of launching complexes, test facilities, research laboratories and tracking stations.

SPENDING on the Apollo project probably will cause further delay in the U.S. man-to-the-moon project, but how much was not known, officials said Saturday.

A huge Saturn S4B rocket exploded on its stand Friday while undergoing tests in preparation for powering three astronauts into earth orbit.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Douglas Aircraft Corp. still studied Saturday the wreckage of the 59-foot, 200,000-pound-thrust rocket after it blew up on a test stand.

THE SATURN third stage exploded in a fireball and with a concussion felt for 10 miles Friday 10 minutes before it was scheduled for ignition at Douglas' East Sacramento plant.

"It will not be possible to determine any impact on the (Apollo) program until additional information is available," a spokesman said.

The blast could be a serious blow to the Saturn 5 moon-rocket program which already is four months behind schedule.

Douglas officials said another S4B third stage is "virtually complete" at its Huntington Beach plant "and is scheduled for shipment to the Sacramento test area next week."

They said the rocket was "completely destroyed" and the test stand "substantially damaged," particularly its wiring and plumbing. However, Douglas has a second static-test stand at the Sacramento facility.

CAUSE of the explosion, in which nobody was injured, was not immediately determined. The rocket is powered by liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, a highly explosive mixture that produces more propulsive energy than any other propellants now used.

"It will be several days before complete examination of data and inspection of the stand will develop sufficient information to establish the cause of the accident," a Douglas spokesman said.

The Saturn program already has been delayed by problems with its second stage, but officials have said that those troubles appear to have been licked.

$23-billion Apollo Project already is beginning to taper off. Employment at the space division of North American Aviation, Inc., the prime Apollo contractor, has dropped from 35,324 persons to 29,000 in the past year.

"It's not a good use of money," says E. Douglas Kenna, vice president of the Avco Corporation, an Apollo subcontractor, echoing the general concern in the industry "to build this leap-forward technology and use it for only one program."

Technologically, a broad range of space goals is considered attainable in the next two decades. The most ambitious and expensive. Estimated at up to $100 billion, would be a manned landing on Mars. It could come in the mid-1980s, engineers say, if preparations begin soon.

THIS WAS one of five alternative post-Apollo programs recommended by space agency officials last year in hearings before the NASA oversight subcommittee of the House Science and Astronautics Committee.

Besides a Mars-oriented project, the proposals suggested were exploitation of near-Earth space for economic benefits, extended lunar exploration with permanent manned bases on the surface, a "prestige" program combining earth orbit, lunar and planetary missions, and a "balanced" program aiming at ultimate manned landings on Mars but at a slower pace.

The cost would range from about $3.4 billion annually for a primarily earth-orbital program to $6 billion for the prestige program. The current annual spending for Apollo runs about $3.4 billion.

"The real question is where the big money for space will go in the future, a congressional space committee adviser said. "That's up to the President, and I don't think he's ready to make that decision."

Space agency officials, however, are said to favor concentrating on the manned orbiting laboratories as the "next logical step." Their argument is that such laboratories could be ends in themselves, for earth surveillance if not as forerunners of planetary ships.

ALL FIVE proposed programs include the earth-orbiting laboratory as one component. In the current concepts, these would be canisters as big as house trailers, in which three or more astronauts could live and work for flights of a month, perhaps three months.

Even with no rocket advances beyond the Saturn 5, it would be possible in the early 1970's to place a 125-ton laboratory into earth orbit.

The Air Force already has embarked on a military-oriented manned orbiting laboratory designed for two men to fly in for up to 45 days. The first test flight is expected in 1969.

SUCH laboratories are expected to help determine the effects of prolonged weightlessness on men and to permit more extensive scientific experiments. The astronauts could operate telescopes and use sensing devices to pinpoint untapped mineral deposits on earth, predict weather, track the fish in the sea and map the poorly charted lands and waters.

Studies of even larger laboratories, housing nine men for as long as two years in orbit, are being made by NASA's Langley Research Center at Hampton, Va. A two-year flight in earth orbit would be considered a necessary test of the durability of both men and machines for a round trip to Mars.

Nor is the moon expected to be forgotten after the initial landing.

NASA, in its proposals for a lunar-oriented program, envisaged the time when astronauts would remain for weeks on the lunar surface, drilling into the crust, hunting for useful resources and determining the suitability of using the moon as a base for launching missions into deeper space.

TO GET a start on post-Apollo preparations, NASA originally asked for a 1968 budget of $6 billion, but the administration is reported to be asking for only $5 billion, the same as for the current fiscal year.

Since NASA programs already approved and underway cost about $4.5 billion annually, the agency would then wind up with only enough money for its make-shift post-Apollo program at this time. It is called the Apollo Applications Program (AAP).

Current AAP planning calls for about 25 flights between 1968 and 1971 at a total cost of $3 billion.

One mission, planned for 1968, would involve outfitting the Apollo with a 38-inch telescope and sending men into earth orbit for 14 days to study the stars from above the distorting influences of earth's atmosphere.

ANOTHER flight, also planned for 1968, would be the first test of a long-duration manned orbiting laboratory.

Another possible key to the nation's post-Apollo program is the proposed Voyager mission to land an instrumented capsule on Mars in 1973 as said. The beginning of on-the-spot planetary exploration. NASA has asked for "somewhat less than $100 million" in the new

LT. CHARLES NOVOTNY

Novotny Quits Force

If law and order are to triumph over crime and chaos the public must support and cooperate with its police departments.

These were the parting words of advice today by retiring Police Lieutenant Charles J. Novotny, who added:

"No matter how dedicated, skilled and hard working policemen become, and by every standard they are constantly improving, they are helpless unless the community gives them its wholehearted backing.

"I have enjoyed my association with the many fine men my work has brought me into contact with and I hope I have done some good for the community."

LT. NOVOTNY will be honored at a retirement dinner Tuesday at Rochelle's Restaurant, Lakewood Blvd. and Wardlow Rd. Also to be honored at the dinner are retiring Police Officers Herbert L. Wickstrom, Maurice Astley Jr., Carl H. Schmitt, Albert N. Dufault Jr. and Sidney H. Dunmore.

Officer Robert C. Johnson, president of the Long Beach Police Officers' Association, said the dinner program would start at 4 p.m. and that tickets could be purchased at the Public Safety Building, 400 W. Broadway. Reservations may also be made at the restaurant.

Lt. Novotny, who was born in North Dakota, moved to Long Beach in 1931. He joined the Police Department May 1, 1941, was promoted to sergeant Nov. 1, 1947, to detective inspector April 1, 1951 and lieutenant Aug. 1, 1951.

During his career, he served as a foot patrolman, radio car patrolman and in the Detective Bureau. He was in the Traffic Division from 1955 to 1961 as a lieutenant and in the Detective Bureau from that date until his retirement.

HE ATTENDED the UCLA Traffic Institute, took an FBI course and police science and administration at Harbor City College.

He was active in the civil affairs of the community and said he intends to remain so.

"After my wife, Mildred and I, travel for sometime in this country and abroad we will return to Long Beach. I will then join a local finance company as a member of the board of directors."

Lt. Novotny has been a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce; Arthur L. Peterson Post, American Legion; Long Beach Lodge 327, F and A.M.; board member Long Beach Police Department Boys Baseball League; board of directors of Lakewood Shrine Club, El Bokal Shrine Temple, and the board of directors of the Volunteers of America.

Long a member of the Downtown Shrine Club, Lt. Novotny held many offices in that organization and was elected president for 1964-65. A leader in the Long Beach City Employees' Assn., he was chairman of its salary committee, member of the executive committee, vice president for one term and president for three terms, 1955-58. He was also a board of director of the California League of City Employees.

2 Boys Escape Fire On Board Sailboat

Two young brothers sleeping aboard a 50-foot sailboat were away visiting friends, early Saturday escaped injury when fire damaged the vessel, they said. The couple's sons, Bradley, 9, and Arthur, 10, in the Long Beach Marina, discovered the fire just before 1 a.m. Saturday. One boy said the blaze broke out in the midship area of the Dragonair, moored at Slip 69, Gangway 5. The family dog died in the blaze, firemen said.

The boat is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hope, who near his Pacific Palisades home. He is a member of the Friars and Lions Clubs.

Q. What percentage of the California state budget goes to education in comparison to the budgets of other large states? G.H., Long Beach.

A. Fiscal statistics, like those of a beauty queen, often don't tell the whole story, but with the help of the Encyclopedia Britannica statistical supplement ACTION LINE computed percentages of education expenditures for fiscal 1964 in six major states. Percentages of total state budgets spent on education were California 40 per cent, New York 38 per cent, Illinois 31 per cent, Pennsylvania 37 per cent, Texas 44 per cent, and Michigan 41 per cent.

Q. What is the base pay for an Army Pfc. stationed in Seoul, Korea, and does he receive additional pay for being overseas? C.L.H., Long Beach.

A. A first-class private with less than two years service receives a base pay of $121.80 per month, to which is added $9 overseas pay. With more than two years service, his pay jumps to $170.10, plus the overseas pay. The various allowances and allotments are based on individual circumstances, according to the 1966 pay guide.

Q. What can students do, besides demonstrate, to protest the tuition proposal for the state colleges? R.C., Long Beach.

A. Not much, say student and faculty leaders at California State College at Long Beach, but a march on the state capitol has been tentatively scheduled Feb. 11, with students and faculty members from all state colleges and the university taking part. Organizers of the march promise a "big, well-planned demonstration," and say they'll rent buses to transport marchers. Protest leaders also suggest letters and telegrams to state government officials.

SOUND OFF!

When people, especially women, know they are going to pay for their groceries with a check, why don't they have the date, name of the store and other information filled in before they reach the checkout stand? No, they wait until the last item is checked and bagged before starting to write the check. People standing in line behind them are forced to wait, and this is most inconsiderate.

M. S., Lakewood.

ACTION LINE BONUS

How to Find Missing Marine Kin

(The popularity of Action Line is such that sometimes—we admit it—we're just swamped with questions. So, this is a bonus column, an extra one so we can answer a few more of your queries. From time to time, as the situation demands, we will run more bonus columns of Action Line.)

Q. I would like to know how to find my brother who has been in the Marines for 15 years. We haven't heard from him in the past five years, and we don't remember his serial number or last address. Mrs. E.R.K., Bellflower.

A. Since you apparently have an unlisted telephone number, which you forgot to include, ACTION LINE was unable to contact you for additional information. However, M-Sgt. Len Maffioli says to assemble all the information you have about your brother and write to Headquarters, United States Marine Corps, Washington, D.C. 20380. Unless his name is common, they should be able to locate him quickly.

Q. I am retired, and find I have time on my hands. What organization could use some volunteer male help? J.P., Long Beach.

A. There are over 80 agencies and clinics needing volunteer help, says Laverne Tucker, placement secretary for United Way. She suggests you contact the volunteer office in the United Way Building, 3515 Linden Ave., where you may find a task such as driving children to therapy sessions, working with the Red Cross Blood Bank, or teaching arts and crafts to handicapped teen-agers.

Q. Can a liquor store owner employ teen-age help to sell alcoholic beverages? If not, would their parents be subject to a fine for allowing the children to work in a liquor store? J.H.C., Wilmington.

A. Yes, teen-agers can work as clerks in liquor stores, according to Supervising Special Agent Leonard Collen, of the Alcoholic Beverages Control unit, but they are not allowed to manage such a store, or hold a license for the store. Since there is no regulation prohibiting the work, the parents would not be liable for any fines.

Q. Were the Canary Islands named for birds, or by changing the term K-9 used for dogs? E. C. R., Bellflower.

A. The Canary Islands were named for a type of serin finch common to the 2,912-square-mile, seven-island group off northwest Africa in the Atlantic Ocean.

Q. How does one get information about one's family when there are no documents or living relatives? I have my father's name, birthplace and age from my birth certificate. Mrs. H. G., Wilmington.

A. Help in restoring the missing branch on your family tree can be found at the Southern California Genealogical Society, located on the first floor of Morgan Hall, 833 Locust Ave. Treasurer Lester Fahy invites you to visit the society's library any Monday, Wednesday, Friday or Saturday afternoon.

Q. Can you tell me if there is a fire rescue truck in North Long Beach which could be called on to aid an elderly couple in the event of a fall or stroke? L. F., Long Beach.

A. Yes. Fire Chief Leonard V. Foster says his department is always ready, and available, for emergencies. Each engine company is equipped with a resuscitator for use in heart attacks, asphyxiations, drownings, strokes or similar cases. Fire and Rescue units are on constant alert. In an emergency, Chief Foster says, call HE 6-8211, and give the fire dispatcher accurate and complete information.

Q. Where can I find out about civilian employment opportunities in Vietnam? C. S., Long Beach.

A. A recruiting program for American workers for Vietnam ended about a year ago when applicants outnumbered jobs 20-to-1, according to George Toll, State Department of Employment manager. Most labor is now being done by Vietnamese nationals. There is still a way, however, because the Military Sea Transportation Service needs merchant seamen with varied skills. The State Employment Office, 1350 Locust Ave., can fill you in on details.

Q. Are there any plans to widen Ximeno Avenue between Seventh and Anaheim streets in the near future? V. J. W., Long Beach.

A. No. City Engineer Jess Gilkerson says most current Long Beach street improvement plans are being closely studied to mesh with development of Pacific Coast Route 1 Freeway, and the necessary ramps and interchanges—one of which is planned near the Ximeno-Anaheim area. No funds are currently programmed for widening Ximeno Avenue south of Anaheim Street, Gilkerson said, but the entire area is under study.

Q. We are bothered with cockroaches and silverfish in the four-apartment building where we live. How can we get rid of them? Mrs. E. W. S., Long Beach.

A. The City Health Department's environmental division says there are many pesticides on the market, some effective and others useless. Ridding one apartment in a complex of roaches won't be permanent, because the pests travel from unit to unit through the walls and plumbing. Potent pesticides—along with advice on proper use—are available at hardware stores, drug stores and garden shops. Information and advice can be obtained by calling the department at 427-7421.

Q. I read the name Marshal Horton, of Seal Beach, on a Vietnam casualty list. Was he a student at Millikan High School in 1961? K. N., Long Beach.

A. Yes. Millikan Principal Eaton Memis says Spec. 4 Marshal L. Horton, Seal Beach soldier killed in Vietnam, was a good student and active in Key Club, German Club, junior varsity football and the choir.

Floods Create

Art Miracle

GREVE, Italy (AP) — The same rains that flooded and destroyed priceless art in Florence are credited in a roundabout way with uncovering long-hidden art in this Chianti Valley town.

Weakened by the November downpours, the roof of a thousand-year-old Romanesque church collapsed recently, scraping whitewash from interior walls and revealing frescoes tentatively attributed to a "Maestro da Greve," an anonymous master of pre-Renaissance times.

THAT LOVELY REDHEAD DIES

Ann Sheridan— 'Oomph Girl' Dead

Leaving Miss Sheridan nearly $250,000. His death was a severe blow to her.

In recent years, Miss Sheridan was involved in a scandal concerning McKay, who was married at the time they co-starred in a play and fell in love. They were married last year.

SHE WAS BORN Feb. 21, 1915, in Dallas. Her family moved to Denton, Tex., where she attended Robert E. Lee Grammar School and Denton High, then studied at North Texas State Teachers College.

Her sister submitted Miss Sheridan's photograph in a "Search for Beauty" contest conducted by Paramount Studios, and the Texas girl won a contract in 1933.

Her career didn't move forward until she switched to Warner Bros., where a zealous press agent dubbed her "THE Oomph Girl."

She long resented the cognomen because, as she once put it, "It sounds like a man stooping over in a telephone booth."

But she admitted that "Oomph" had an element of surprise and helped set her apart from other glamor girls of the 1930s and 1940s.

She became one of Warner Bros.' most versatile leading ladies appearing opposite such stars as Humphrey Bogart, James Cagney, Errol Flynn, Cary Grant, Gary Cooper, George Raft and Ronald Reagan.

Boom Rafferty to Challenge Sen. Kuchel

OAKLAND (UPI) — Max Rafferty, California superintendent of public instruction, was boomed as a candidate for the U.S. Senate at a meeting Saturday of the California Republican Assembly.

Richard Darling, president of the CRA, urged members to start at once on a campaign to move Rafferty into a Senate seat. The only senator whose assaulting and robbing two seat will be at stake in 1968 is elderly woman, another Republican, Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel.

"Wouldn't he make a great United States Senator?" he shouted Darling after Rafferty had spoken to 200 directors of the organization. They answered with a loud cheer, police protection.

Cab Driver Slain; Youth, 19, Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 16-year-old Bronx youth was arrested Saturday night and charged with slaying of a New York City taxi driver.

Police identified the boy as Harold Long. He was booked on the murder charge after being arrested for allegedly assaulting and robbing two women.

The arrest came several hours after a $5,000 reward was posted for information leading to the slayer of the shouted Darling after Rafferty had spoken to 200 directors of the organization. They answered with a loud cheer, police protection.

Cruise Ship Still Stuck on Sand

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The cruise ship S. S. Atlantic, which set sail for the Virgin Islands but got only 800 yards from the dock, remained perched awkwardly Saturday night on a sandbar.

A second effort to free the 563-foot ship failed at high tide Saturday and another try was scheduled for today.

The 313 passengers were reported by a press agent for the ship's owner to be "having a ball, swimming and dancing."

Duryea Widowed

BURBANK (AP) — The wife of actor Dan Duryea died in St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday night after suffering a heart attack.

Mrs. Duryea, 56, and the actor would have celebrated their 36th wedding anniversary in April.

Kerr Wanted

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — A state legislator recommended Saturday that Gov. Richard J. Hughes appoint ousted University of California President Clark Kerr as commissioner of higher education in New Jersey.

State Sen. Ned J. Parsckian, said in a telegram to the governor, "Dr. Kerr is one of the most distinguished educators of our time. As New Jersey enters into a new era of expansion and improvement in quality... we need a man of Dr. Kerr's great credentials in the academic community."

Youth Rampage

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Two car loads of youths ranged through the North Main Street area early Saturday, firing shotgun blasts at 15 persons and injuring two.

Police said the incidents centered around the intersection of North Main and Bloom streets. At two of the shootings, the gunman reportedly yelled, "Viva El Clove," a local gang.

Injured by the blasts was Javier V. Navarro, 22, of 103 N. Bloom St., who was hit in the hand and back as he tried to reach the shelter of his home. His wounds were minor.

Cancer 'Find'

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The complex atomic arrangement of the enzyme ribonuclease, which plays a role in all cell growth, finally has been determined, a research scientist announced today.

"The enzyme is an important protein found in all living cells," said Dr. David Marker. Knowledge of its atomic structure is considered vital for cancer research.

WEEK IN REVIEW

Surprise Climax to Controversy

THE WEST

The raging controversy over Gov. Ronald Reagan's demands for cuts in the budget and tuition charges at the University of California and the state college system came to a surprise climax Friday with the firing of Clark Kerr, UC's president for 10 years.

The university's board of regents met to discuss the money matters, but instead tabled that subject and voted, 14 to 8, to dismiss Kerr immediately from his $45,000-a-year job. The firing bowled over university officials. The meeting at which Kerr was fired had been billed as a clash between Reagan and powerful Democratic Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh over the governor's economy demands.

Theodore R. Meyer of San Francisco, chairman of the board of regents, said the UC Vice President Harry Wellman will become acting president. Meyer said the major argument for firing Kerr was that he had "lost the confidence of the people and regents and was no longer useful." Mrs. Randolph Hearst, a regent and the wife of the newspaper magnate, said Kerr was fired for "lack of administrative ability."

BOTH UNRUH and Kerr said that Reagan also was a member of the board, voted for Kerr's ouster.

Kerr had been embroiled in troubles at Berkeley since 1964 when students demonstrated for more political freedom on the campus. Student movements since that time have kept the institution in a turmoil. Gov. Reagan made a major campaign issue of the problems at UC and pledged to make changes if elected.

THE RUSSIANS are here.

Soviet trawlers were operating last week off Long Beach and taking anchovies, jack mackerel and saury, according to the California Department of Fish and Game.

The Red fleet included five 300-foot trawlers, a 12,000-ton mother-freezer ship and a salvage tug that doubles as a police boat to keep the fishing vessels outside the 12-mile limit established by the United States. The Soviet fishermen have been working from the islands off Santa Barbara to Catalina since the first of the year, DFG officials said, adding there appears to be nothing "sinister" about their presence in local waters.

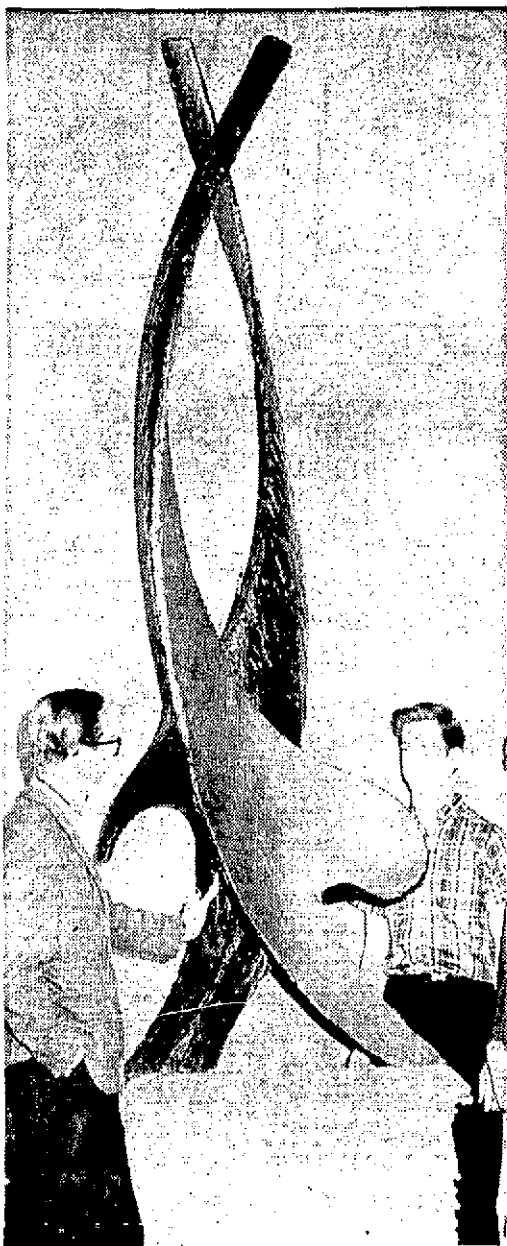

Navy spokesmen also said the vessels apparently are doing nothing more than fishing, but Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, believes otherwise. He said Thursday that Russian ships plying waters of other nations usually are equipped with "electronic espionage" gear and that he fears the fishermen off Southern California are also engaged in spy activities.

THE WAR

The week during which the biggest offensive of the Vietnam war was launched, Jan. 8-14, also was the week with the highest American casualty toll, the U.S. Command in Saigon announced Thursday. The toll: 144 dead, 1,044 wounded and 6 missing. This compares with 67 dead, 479 wounded and 2 missing the preceding week.

In all, 373 Allies perished during the week. A U.S. spokesman said South Vietnamese deaths totaled 197, compared to 120 the week before.

The Communists reportedly lost 1,176 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed, compared to 626 during the week of Jan. 1-7. American casualties for the first two weeks of 1967 were much greater than in the same period of 1966, reflecting a whopping increase in manpower and stepped-up activity. At the start of 1966, with 190,000

NO ARTISTIC MERIT?

Sculptor George McNulty (left) discusses his controversial statue "Flight" with Joe Gorman, one of group of teen-agers who raised $250 to commission the work for display in a landscaped traffic island in St. Louis. Yanks in Vietnam, 95 were killed and 439 wounded in combat. To mid-January 1967, with 398,000 Americans in Vietnam, 211 were killed and 1,523 wounded.

The massive offensive in which most of the American casualties occurred is Operation Cedar Falls in the Iron Triangle area, 20 miles northwest of Saigon, long a Viet cong stronghold.

In the air, U.S. jets ranged into North Vietnam, striking at rail yards and lines and storage facilities. Some of the bomb targets were within a few miles of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi. Attacks on these targets brought a renewal of Red accusations that the United States is "wantonly bombing residential areas."

A CALIFORNIA native, now of Kuna, Idaho, Maj. Bernard F. Fisher, became the first Air Force winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor in Vietnam. The medal was presented to him by President Johnson Thursday in the East Room of the White House.

Maj. Fisher was cited for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life and beyond the call of duty" for flying through hazardous weather and heavy Communist fire to rescue a downed fellow pilot last March.

THE WORLD

It looked like a civil war as Red China's beleaguered Mao Tse-tung and his supporters fought to keep control of the nation. Mao's militant Red Guards were meeting increasing opposition to their so-called "cultural revolution" to get rid of "bourgeois-reactionary" elements.

Even Defense Minister Lin Biao was reported to have described the internal strife as a state of war. Lin, speaking to the military committee of the Communist Party's Central Committee, identified Gen. Liu Chih-chien, deputy director of the army's political department, and Ho Lung, a vice premier, as two of the "handits" who are trying to take over the country. He was described as an "ambitious feudalistic landlord" and the "behind-the-scenes

THE NATION

Congress chose nine lawyer members as a special committee to decide whether Adam Clayton Powell is qualified to continue as representative of New York's Harlem District.

Powell has been stripped of the chairmanship of the House Labor and Education Committee after an investigation of alleged free-wheeling in the use of committee funds. Pending the special committee's investigation, he continues to draw his $30,000 annual salary, although denied the right to vote on legislation.

ALBERT HENRY DeSalvo, who claims he slew 13 women as the Boston strangler, was found guilty of armed robbery, assault and sex offenses involving four other women and was sentenced to life imprisonment. None of the cases involved crimes committed by the strangler.

It was a rare setback for the 35-year-old defendant's famous lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, who successfully defended Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard and Dr. Carl Coppolino in recent widely publicized murder cases.

COURT battle, between Mrs. John F. Kennedy and the publishers and author of the book "The Death of a President," ended in a compromise.

Mrs. Kennedy had objected to the inclusion of material which she regarded as too personal for publication. Under the court agreement the publishers, Harper & Row, and the author, William R. Manchester, agreed to deletions totaling about seven pages out of the book's 654.

AS A PRELUDE to President Johnson's proposed merger of the Commerce and Labor departments, John T. Connor resigned as secretary of commerce. Alexander B. Trowbridge, 37-year-old assistant secretary, was named acting secretary pending congressional action on the President's merger plan.

High School Journalists in L.B. District Eligible for Awards

Members of senior high school newspaper staffs in the Long Beach Unified School District are eligible to receive an award for outstanding achievements.

The award, sponsored by the Independent, Press-Telegram and the American Newspaper Publishers Association, is the Most Valuable Staffer Award and will be presented to the student at each high school who has made the greatest contribution to his high school newspaper during the current school year.

IT IS PART of a broad program by the nation's newspapers to recognize the talents of outstanding high school journalists throughout the country. The local award program is a joint venture of the Independent, Press-Telegram and the American Newspaper Publishers Association Information Service.

Stanford Smith, ANPA general manager, noted recently that opportunities on daily newspapers are expanding at a record rate. He pointed out that a recent University of Wisconsin study showed that the number of jobs on newspapers has been growing at a faster rate than jobs throughout the United States in general. "This increasing demand for top talent," he said, "is bringing higher pay at all levels and greater opportunity for advancement."

AT THE SAME TIME, Smith said, journalism colleges are increasing their capacities and broadening their programs to meet the demand. The journalism student today, he said receives "a liberal arts education to help him understand the complex issues of today's world so that he can report and interpret them to a readership which, more than ever, depends on daily newspapers in order to stay fully informed."

"Selection of the Most Valuable Staffer will be the responsibility of the high school newspaper faculty advisers. Method of selection is left up to the individual advisers.

The winning staffer must be a good student, serve on the staff for at least one school year, and make the most significant contribution to the success of the newspaper,

The Long Wait

There's a traffic island in Long Beach where the action is.

It's also where the nonaction is.

The island borders on Pacific Coast Highway, Bellflower Boulevard and Seventh Street.

To the unfortunate motorists who have to pass the island during the morning and afternoon rush hours, it's both a frantic and frustrating time.

If lady luck is with you, you'll escape the trap of the traffic signal cycle. But many don't and there a variety of gestures and expressions often seen at this congested intersection.

It's a time to blow your nose, comb your hair, yawn, step out and talk to your friends, or just wait and contemplate. And if you happen to catch the light just right — or wrong as the case may be—you may have time to take a nap.

For those who must travel this intersection regularly, there's little relief in sight, according to Long Beach city traffic engineer Robert D. Dier.

"Without a doubt, it's the most complicated," said Dier. "And there isn't much that can be done. Our only hope is the Pacific Coast Freeway and that's still at least four years away."

Dier said there aren't any official statistics, however he feels that the San Diego Freeway has relieved at great deal of the pressure.

The recent Studebaker Road extension, he said, hasn't helped because enough people aren't aware of it. Dier suggests that motorists entering Long Beach from the Garden Grove Freeway take Studebaker Road to Westminster Avenue and continue on Second Street into the downtown area. On map at right, arrows show loop that connects Garden Grove Freeway with Studebaker Road. Dotted line is proposed Pacific Coast Freeway.

Despite the difficulties with traffic flow, there still are attempts being made to speed signal cycles.

Bert Clark, traffic engineer for the Division of State Highways office in Los Angeles, said the most recent improvement has been in speeding the east bound left turn signal on Pacific Coast Highway.

Clark said the traffic-actuated signals vary from two to three minutes. He said there are similar time cycles at Lakewood Boulevard and Carson Street, Artesia and Lakewood boulevards and Conant Street and Lakewood Boulevard.

At the PCH, Bellflower Boulevard and Seventh Street intersection, the peak traffic flows are 7:15 to 7:30 a.m. and 5:30 to 5:45 p.m. The morning 15-minute peak is 541 cars and afternoon, 480.

Statistics show that although midblock accidents are down from 1965 (29-31), intersection accidents are up (23-15) which increases the yearly total by six (52-46).

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

IT WASN'T really farewell that was said to Capt. Mort Lyle when city officials hosted him at a luncheon recognizing his upcoming retirement as commandant of the Naval Station here. Lyle isn't leaving town. He's taking an executive job at Pacific Hospital, and joining a large group of Navy people who liked it so well here they stayed on after service years to make valuable contributions as L.B. citizens.

This is one payoff from the community's efforts to be helpful and cooperative in its relations with the Navy. Most military men have shown they liked their tour of duty here, and when opportunities arose, many picked this place for their civilian life.

When Capt. Lyle was handed a ceremonial "key to the city" by Mayor Ed Wade, he recalled something said by Adm. O.D. (Muddy) Waters on a similar occasion. Waters said he'd like to have a key to the unique Pontoon Bridge.

HOW'S YOUR spelling? Joe Waddington, v.p. of the Independent Business Men's Assn., handed me a list of words he claims are stumblers, with few of even the smartest unable to spell all 10 without a boner.

Try these on the prideful spellers you know:

Inoculate, embarrass, harass, supersede, picnicking, innuendo, rarely, vilify, desecrate, plaguey (also plaguy.)

Waddington say it'll be safe to bet that there'll be errors, especially if it's a written test. Incidentally, Joe must have dug pretty deep for that "plaguey." I never used the word but it's in the dictionary.

THIS DEPT. carries a fair run of gripes, some from my readers and some of my own. But when something yowled about changes for the better, it seems honorable to make note of same right here.

So it's a duty to report a marked absence in recent weeks of those steam blow-offs at the Edison and Haynes power generating plants that for a while startled and harassed residents of the east part of the city, Leisure World, Rossmoor, etc.

The big valves just haven't been popping. I don't know if this is because of changed operating procedures or the fact the new equipment is broken in. Anyhow, it's great. The utility people said things would get better (quieter) and they have.

DRIFTWOOD — Don Folt, ever alert for slights to L.B. in the outside press, notes that Time mag. has at least recognized Douglas makes its commercial planes here. He noted, however, that in doing so, Time took a swipe at the function and layout of the plant. . . . Overheard on Pine Ave.: "When I drive, I hate pedestrians. When I walk, I hate drivers." Don't we all? . . . An older who has no bank account and no car suggests that there ought to be a small downtown center where water-gas, lights and 'phone bills could be paid with no service charge.

Reader M. Koziar, noting item here saying World's Fair financial deficit didn't hurt the "little fellow", points out that the fair collapse did have an adverse effect on many small businessmen and others. Granted — I was talking the fair's own finances, not related effects. . . . A citizen suggests that the new oil islands be dubbed "The Four Orphans."

Assistant Editor Post to Resnik

Editor William W. Broom Saturday announced appointment of Bert Resnik as assistant managing editor of The Independent, Press-Telegram.

TV-radio editor for six years, Resnik has been a news staff member since 1948.

He replaces Dick Frick, who has accepted a position as public information officer of the Los Angeles County Fire Department.

Resnik's successor is George Eres, who joined the news staff of these papers in 1949. Replacing Eres as assistant Sunday editor is Vern Anthony, a 23-year veteran of the staff.

Vacationers Leave, Home Burns Down

Fire destroyed the home of a 23-year-old Garden Grove couple only 30 minutes after they left for a vacation early Saturday.

Firemen said the two-story house, at 8641 Trask Ave., was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kearney.

The couple left for Fresno at about 2:45 a.m., neighbors said.

Two fire companies battled until almost 5 a.m. before getting the blaze under control. They said damage might reach $20,000.

Greater L.B. YMCA Bids for 6,000 New Members

The YMCA of Greater Long Beach, one of the oldest and largest community organizations in the area, will kick off its 1967 membership drive for 6,000 new members Monday with the opening of National YMCA Week here.

All five of the Long Beach Y's branches will hold open house celebrations every evening when exhibitions of the variety of activities sponsored by the Y will be held and tours of the equipment and facilities available to members will be conducted.

More than 800 people will be working on the three-week membership drive under the direction of John Hanna, director of industrial relations at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, who is citywide chairman, and George Hanawalt, manager of the Southern California Edison Company, who is vice chairman.

PRESENT membership in the YMCA of Greater Long Beach is listed at 16,000 of all ages but most of them under 18, making it the largest active community organization in the area. During the past year, figures show that more than 28,000 used the facilities provided by the Y at the five branches.

The Long Beach YMCA takes credit for being at least one of the oldest, if not the oldest, community organization in the city, sharing that honor with the library and the Methodist Church. Early records show that when Long Beach was first incorporated in 1888 provision was made in the incorporation papers to set aside three parcels of land "for the library, the Young Men's Christian Association and the Methodist Church."

Actually early records show that the YMCA was providing at least one facility, a reading room, as early as 1887. This dates the Long Beach Y as a pretty early organization, even for YMCAs, considering that the first YMCA in the world was organized in London in 1841 and that the first YMCA in the United States was organized in Boston in 1851.

TODAY The international YMCA operates in 83 countries and new Ys are being put into operation in even more countries every year.

"The Long Beach YMCA, like the international organization, has grown to meet the needs of the community," says Paul McLaughry, president of the Long Beach Y. "During the past few years it has been growing 2 1/2 times as fast as the population."

"In 1951 8.6 out of every 1,000 people in the Long Beach area were YMCA members; in 1966 28 out of every 1,000 were."

LAST YEAR more than 4,200 people, most of them youngsters, used the facilities of Camp Oakes, the Long Beach Y's summer and weekend camp in the San Bernardino Mountains, breaking all previous records.

One of the most successful programs of the YMCA of Greater Long Beach in recent years that has drawn attention from other Ys over the country, is the leadership training program, instituted by Clair Johnson, the general manager.

OTHER PROGRAMS in operation include the Point One program which provides for sending mentally retarded children to day camps; Project Newcomer which gives free one-month membership to children new to the metropolitan neighborhood; the Detached Worker program which sends trained staff workers out into the field to work; the highly successful Physical Fitness Program and the Interracial Committee and the Interracial Workshop.

Membership banquets have been scheduled for all five branches; the downtown branch will hold its banquet Wednesday night while the other four have scheduled banquets for Monday night.

Membership chairmen of the branches are: Earl East, downtown branch, 600 Long Beach Blvd.; Woodrow Smith, Lakewood, 5424 Centralia Ave.; Ken Earle, Los Altos, 1720 Bellflower Blvd.; Leroy Eggink, Los Cerritos, 15530 Woodruff Ave.; and Richard Cline, North Community, 6095 California Ave.

The Breakers Gets that Modern Look of Resident Hotels

The old Breakers International Hotel is trying a new twist.

Its management hopes to introduce hotel retirement living to Southern California. G. A. (Tony) Vigliotti, head of New Breakers, Inc., said resident hotels catering to retired persons are popular in Eastern cities, but have never really boomed on the West coast.

It is his idea to make the Breakers into a combination permanent resident hotel and a transient hotel for overnight guests.

"We've started off with surprising results," he said. The hotel now has more than 70 permanent guests. It opened in September after the hotel interior was renovated.

The unique part of the hotel is its cost. A party can use the American plan for $175 a month "with all the conveniences and luxuries of hotel living," Vigliotti said. The American plan includes three meals in a private dining room on the second floor of the 13-story, 300-room hotel.

THE EUROPEAN PLAN is $115 a month and includes everything but the meals.

"We offer courtesy and service to the permanent residents," Vigliotti said. "That is our main selling point. We want those persons who live here to feel it is their home."

Jeff Wilkins of the staff is social director and plans a full social calendar for the guests. This ranges from painting lessons to field trips—all paid by the hotel.

The Breakers Hotel has been a "loser" as a hotel, but this doesn't worry Vigliotti. "We're running a different hotel," he said with confidence.

In addition to promoting the permanent resident business, Vigliotti said the hotel will continue to seek overnight hotel business and convention business. Two conventions already are signed up for the hotel.

LEASES HAVE BEEN given to commercial tenants who will operate retail stores on the arcade, first and second floors.

The Hi-Ln and Cellar cocktail lounges will open soon. The Sky Room, once a famous Long Beach night spot, will reopen Feb. 15 with live music, dining and dancing.

Cannery Workers Union Replaces the Teamsters

The Cannery Workers Union of AFL-CIO has supplanted the Teamsters Union as bargaining representative of more than 80 employees of the Four Fishermen Seafood Co. in Wilmington.

The change resulted from a representation election victory that gave the cannery workers unit a 2 to 1 vote margin over the rival Teamsters.

Sixty-nine employees voted in the poll, which was conducted by the National Labor Relations Board, according to Steve Edney, president of the Cannery Workers Union.

The plant, located at 303 Neptune Ave., produces and packages frozen fish sticks. Four Fishermen is a division of Groton Fish Co. of Gloucester, Mass.

An Outsider Looks at City's Flaws

IT OFTEN TAKES an outside critic to jolt us into recognition of community flaws.

Lewis Crutcher, of the American Institute of Architects' Committee on Esthetics, served that function when he helped 350 members of Long Beach Beautiful open a campaign for a pleasanter and more presentable city.

Mr. Crutcher told us little we didn't already know. It was just that we had become accustomed to ugly intrusions on the urban landscape and possibly too resigned to the difficulties of improving them.

WHEN HE TOOK DEAD aim at the profusion of signs he struck a vulnerable point.

As recently as September, 1965, the City Council killed a sign ordinance proposed by the Planning Commission. It was a modest recommendation that would have forced the removal of some of the bigger and more unsightly roof signs.

Councilmen told planners they were free to go into the subject again, in consultation with the sign industry. The commission has been busy since then with a comprehensive revision of the zoning code, so nothing has been done.

The revision, still in draft form, will touch incidentally on sign regulation. Long Beach Beautiful campaigners might well suggest that it touch more than lightly.

Promise on Crime Kept by Reagan

GOV. REAGAN'S anti-crime proposals to the legislature started off by making good on a specific he mentioned several times during the campaign. He asked the lawmakers to restore to local governments the power to enact and enforce laws in fields now preempted by the state.

These laws relate only to comparatively minor offenses. Even so, in such instances as prostitution the misdemeanors are often a part of the larger web of organized crime such as the sale of narcotics.

Almost without exception, local officials and prosecutors believe they can cope more effectively with such violators by acting under local laws tailored to variable conditions. The Long Beach city ordinance against prostitution, for instance, was drawn in more

Prevention Is Sensible

MORE THAN 87 million Americans—nearly half of the nation's population—suffer from a chronic disease.

This estimate comes from the Senate Subcommittee on the Health of the Elderly, which reckons the money cost at $57.8 billion a year.

The figures are astonishing, especially to younger persons who have only second-hand knowledge of illness and its costs.

Another of Mr. Crutcher's major targets—the jungle of overhead utility wires—has been attacked repeatedly by city officials in recent years. The best they could do realistically was to prohibit such installations in most new residential subdivisions.

Obstacles to a wholesale substitution of underground lines will not be overcome easily. The cost runs too high. A statewide program, backed by the powers of the Public Utilities Commission, looks like the most tenable approach. City officials support that policy. But the Long Beach Beautiful crusaders can help keep the subject alive if it gets lost somewhere between the city and the state.

The visiting architect found evidence of creeping blight even in so-called better neighborhoods. Here Long Beach Beautiful is activating a neighborhood participation effort that can push for remedies at the source of the trouble.

Mr. Crutcher urged more beautification of streets by landscaping. The city has done a good deal in this respect, especially on Long Beach Boulevard, Ocean Boulevard and East Second Street. These programs, however, do not justify complacency.

IN ANY EVENT, the city government can't do it all.

Only the city can accomplish the dramatic improvements now in progress along the shoreline, which we hope Mr. Crutcher will return within a few years to see for himself. It may be hoped that at that time he will also see other changes for the better, achieved by the leadership of Long Beach Beautiful and the voluntary efforts of individuals and of neighborhood groups.

stringent terms than the state law.

Certainly this procedure makes it easier for the citizens of any community to hold their local officials responsible for breakdowns in law enforcement. It removes a convenient excuse available to officials.

As for other proposals in Reagan's six-point program, judgment may be withheld until they are subjected to the scrutiny of legislative hearings.

ONE THAT WILL DEMAND special attention is the anti-pornography proposal.

If the governor and the legislature find a way to shield the young from vicious trash without running afoul of due process of law, they will deserve congratulations from the whole nation. So far the courts, advancing slowly from case to case have supplied no clear signposts.

The governor's suggestions for protecting persons with arrest records from excessive prying, for creating a California Crime Foundation and for revising the system of appointing judges may well prove constructive.

They provide a solid base for the subcommittee's proposal for large-scale physical screening to detect chronic ailments at the earliest stages.

Early screening means preventive treatment. And the Senate group noted that less than $3 billion is spent annually on that branch of medicine.

If it makes sense to tax and spend huge sums for the care of the elderly through Medicare, it is much more sensible to find and treat disease when it can often be readily controlled. Aside from human considerations, one likely result would be to lighten the economic cost of Medicare itself.

Reagan's Appointments 'Stacking Cards'?

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Card-stacking is a historic Sacramento tradition.

It has been accomplished by both Republican and Democratic administrations—ranging from Earl Warren to Edmund G. Brown. And it appears it is going to continue into the Ronald Reagan era.

It involves naming as an agency chieftain or a policy-making board member someone who already is pretty well committed to one side of a controversial issue.

THAT IS WHY eyebrows were raised when Gov. Reagan appointed timber-company executive Norman B. Livermore Jr. of San Francisco as administrator of the Resources Agency. Top issue before the agency is the size of a redwoods national park—a decision where Livermore's former industry firmly is on one side of the fence.

Burton E. Smith of Belflower, the new state real estate commissioner, raises the same question. Gov. Reagan appointed him last week, even though Smith in 1964 helped lead the fight against Proposition 13.

However, Democrats have no moral right to do any finger-pointing. Ex-Gov. Brown played the same game on his Democratic appointments—except that his appointees had a different ideological thrust.

Brown named former Long Beach labor-union leader Ernest B. Webb as director of industrial relations—the agency that reigned over labor-management matters.

Brown's appointments to the Resources Agency were stacked heavily in favor of conservationist interests.

Thus, cynics can say that it doesn't make much difference which party is in office. Somehow, they turn over most of the keys to one special interest or another.

The concept has been furthered in recent decades by both Democrats and Republicans in the State Professional and Vocational Standards Department.

The goal of the department is a forward-looking one to assure that the public interest is protected by stiff standards in the various fields of endeavor.

But by tradition, a California governor picks the bulk of the board members for a specific vocation or profession from within the ranks of the involved field of endeavor.

That means the state has doctors watching doctors, barbers regulating barbers, contractors policing contractors, funeral directors keeping a death-watch over funeral directors, etc.

If the trend were taken to its logical zany conclusion, you would name criminals to sit on the Board of Corrections.

MANY OF THE BOARDS on regulatory agencies have done exemplary jobs under what in effect is industrial self-regulation. However, the fact remains that the public is not well represented. And there are temptations to sweep under the rug any wrongdoing that might give a black eye to a particular industry or vocational field.

It is natural that a governor would turn to self-policing for California vocations and professions. That is the line of least political hazard. The pressure is on from within the state's professions and vocations to see to it that they continue to hold the reins of control.

A token overhaul of California's sprawling 33-board regulatory family occurred a few years ago. The legislature then enlarged many of the boards to make room for some public representation.

However, it had no practical effect on most boards. Majority control still was locked into the endeavor the board was supposed to regulate.

THE MAJOR exception: the Bureau of Electronic Repair Dealer Registration. There had been a statewide furor over TV-repair charges at some shops, so public representation was given a 3-to-2 margin over the industry's representatives.

There is bound to be a clamor for a greater public voice in policing California's 33 vocations and professions. And a significant index on the Reagan Administration will be whether it leaves untouched the "sacred-cow" status of vocations and professions.

Women Face Hot Fight in GOP Contest

WOMEN SHOULD BE drafted, says anthropologist Dr. Margaret Mead, but not for combat—because they're too fierce.

Women in politics expose a similar ferocity. A case in point unfolds this week in New Orleans. Long Beach women will play important parts.

Main event is the executive board meeting of the National Federation of Republican Women at which they will select a nominating committee for national officers to be elected next May.

In the normal line of succession for the presidency is Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly, of Alton, Ill., now first vice president, author of "A Choice Not an Echo," "The Gravediggers" and co-author of "Strike from Space."

Determined that this line of succession needs an abrupt detour is challenger Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach. She is national program chairman for the Federation, oil company owner, possessor of a distinguished flying career and a considerable history of GOP political service.

Spicing the New Orleans confrontation will be Mrs. Ann Bowler of Long Beach, Republican National Committeewoman for California, who says flatly that she is backing Mrs. Schlafly over her hometown neighbor.

While acknowledging Mrs. O'Donnell's ability, Mrs. Bowler wants Phyllis because of the tradition of the line of succession and also because "she is the best qualified and represents the philosophy of a majority of Federation members."

"There is no question," says Mrs. Bowler, "but that 90 per cent of the women's federation are conservative and would like as their president a woman who reflects this conservative philosophy. If she (Mrs. Schlafly) is not selected by the nominating committee, I for one will support her from the floor."

BOTH SIDES in this contest are now loathe to let blood in public. But the ingredients of total war are here. And it is no secret among political writers and party professionals in California that it's the same old right-wing issue.

Mrs. Schlafly was the heroine of a nasty Life Magazine editorial entitled, "The Rowdies and Dowdies of the Far Right." She has charged "Lefties" with trying to thwart Sen. Everett Dirksen's campaign to have the marigold named the national flower. Her reasons: the word "gold" is sensitive because of the country's gold outflow; "mari" refers to Mary, Mother of Christ, and a lot of people don't want even a remote religious significance in the flower's name; and only Red China and the U.S. don't have official flowers "and the striped pants in the State Department don't want to embarrass Red China by leaving her all alone."

Mrs. O'Donnell drew the wrath of Schlafly fans in May of 1965 when she drafted a resolution blasting "defamatory and slanderous" attacks against national leaders by "Let Freedom Ring," a crackpot series of recorded phone messages available for the dialing.

Included in the messages were mentions of Mrs. Schlafly's bestseller, "The Gravediggers," along with Birch Society founder Robert Welch's "The Politician."

Mrs. O'Donnell's resolution won unanimous approval of 32 of the 50-member board of directors of the California Federation of Republican Women.

Would 'Modernize' Government

WASHINGTON — As long as hope preserves its resilience, there can be encouragement in a serious move by some representatives and senators to promote the use of modern management techniques in solving public problems.

The sponsor in the House is Rep. F. Bradford Morse, of Massachusetts, a Republican who is one of the modern men in the Congress and a strong force among the progressive wing of his party. Before he is through, he expects to have 40 House members supporting his measure, and 10 Senators behind the same bill in that branch. He is said to have rounded up only Republicans.

THE BILL WOULD CREATE a National Commission on Public Management, to be appointed by the President, to study ways in which the advanced methods of private industry, such as systems analysis and computers, would be used to seek remedies for the countless things now ailing us.

The President could have had something like this in mind in that passage in his State of the Union message in which he said: "Each state, county and city needs to examine its capacity for government in today's world."

There is a constant flow of new evidence to suggest that at lower levels of government, and to some extent in the federal government, problems have at least temporarily outrun the ability of the political process to place in public office men capable of solving them. It is not just a question of money, by any means, although that is part of it. There is a shortage of brains, and a shortage of adequate techniques.

There are some precedents for what Morse is undertaking. One was provided by Pat Brown during his governorship of California, when he enlisted the aerospace industry in a beginning on efforts to solve major public problems. The possibilities of this approach to government are winning growing attention. There is already scheduled in Europe a major convocation to discuss it.

BEFORE PERMITTING optimism to run wild, it must be noted that experience up to now does not provide guarantees of sure-fire results from such methods. It is not agreed by all that the California beginning was a smashing success. The aerospace industry, which has been promoting the use of its brains and methods in attacking public problems, probably would find it more interesting and profitable to make space vehicles, or bizarre weapons or anti-missile-missile systems, or supersonic transports, if given the chance.

As has been noted before, the record of the Pentagon computer crews in working out the logistical and materiel answers to the war in Vietnam has been less than perfect. And the whole idea suffers some handicap because the public not only finds it difficult to grasp, but gets little help from the technicians toward understanding it.

Nevertheless, the proposal persists in assuming the appearance of an idea whose time has come. Hearings on the Morse bill, and perhaps on related legislation which Senator Nelson of Wisconsin has long been pushing, would at least make us better acquainted with what is involved and give the idea every fair chance to which it is entitled.

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SUBS. By Charles A. Lockwood. W. W. Norton & Co., Inc. New $6.95.

Submarine warfare for the United States developed slowly and painfully. The author Charles A. Lockwood, a retired admiral of the U.S. Navy, interestingly recounts the hazards and hardships of this development in his autobiography of a career.

Adm. Lockwood became a submariner in the days when the subs were their own worst enemy what with popping rivets and splitting hulls, dangers from gas escaping from inadequate storage batteries and poor navigational equipment.

This is the story of a Missouri farm boy who went through Annapolis (class of 1912); the story of the Annapolis psychology and the social life of that corps.

Credit is given to Adm. Lockwood for developing this nation's version of wolf pack techniques of interlocking underwater defenses, communication and reconnaissance.

The admiral served in high liaison office in wartime London; was personal contact between Roosevelt and Churchill. He was a participant in the rescue of the sunken sub Squalis and retired just as the atomic sub era emerged.

Some of Adm. Lockwood's early duty days around San Pedro should be of particular interest to Navy readers of the area.—BILL SHELTON

L.A.C. SAYS

Faith in Government Needs to Be Revived

A RECENT Harris Survey says, "As Congress convenes public confidence in it has tumbled 17 percentage points from its high of a year ago. Today the people give Congress a favorable rating of only 54 to 46 per cent, compared with 71 to 29 a year ago. When coupled with recent low ratings accorded the jobs being done by President Johnson and the Supreme Court, it is evident that there is a confidence gap between Washington and the American people."

THE POLL on these three branches of government is shown as:

	Positive	Negative
Congress .....	54%	46%
Supreme Court ...	46%	52%
The President ...	43%	57%

It is not a healthy situation when the majority of the people do not approve of the way their government is being operated. When the three branches are combined it shows 48 per cent approve and 52 per cent disapprove. It is referred to as a winter of discontent with the state of the union. While one may question the accuracy of polls, there is no doubt but the dissatisfaction was demonstrated in the last November election.

There are no figures given as concerns state governments. But California showed its attitude by the overwhelming defeat of Brown and his Democratic fellow officeholders last year. It was after eight years of virtually complete control of the state by the Democratic Party. But it ended with the large increases in taxes, the Rumford Act and general discontent over budget deficits and unsound administration of welfare programs.

IT IS, HOWEVER, interesting to note in the Harris poll that individual congressmen were given high ratings in their home districts. In the West these members were given a 71 per cent vote of approval for the way they looked after the affairs in their own districts. It was on their actions dealing with national programs and the war that apparently accounts for the negative vote against Congress as a whole.

There is no data on the attitudes of the people as concerns their local office holders. It is probable most of these areas would give a solid vote of confidence for their local officials, as they do for their individual congressmen. This is probably due to the fact that these officials are in close touch with the people they represent and are dealing with issues more closely identified with their services and problems.

IT SHOULD ALSO be realized that the present low rating for Congress and the President is due to the Vietnam war and the frustration that people feel in not being told what is really going on. It is also influenced by the fear of inflation, high interest rates and the danger of a recession. The Congress and President are blamed for the vast spending programs which are largely responsible for these factors.

The low rating for the Supreme Court is attributed to the decisions banning prayers in schools, outlawing loyalty oaths and its leniency toward criminals which has shocked many people. There are high and low ebbs in every administration whether it be Republican or Democrat. But the new Congress is on the spot to reverse this trend; and the President, looking to 1968, has the greatest problem of his long political career.

Opportunity Knocks for U.S. at Conference

(Editor's Note—Drew Pearson, recently returned from South America, today summarizes the opportunities we face in the coming Pan American Summit Conference.)

WASHINGTON — The United States faces a great and long-neglected opportunity at the upcoming Pan American Summit Conference.

With Europe rapidly slipping out of the American orbit, thanks to De Gaulle, and Asia incompatible socially, racially and religiously, we have an opportunity in the southern half of the Western Hemisphere to help establish a Pan American common market, create a Pan American NATO with Latin American armies training together, and help develop the vast raw materials of the South American continent which we need so badly in wartime but are inclined to neglect in peacetime.

In fulfilling this opportunity we must set up a Pan American Marshall Plan for aid by the stronger nations to the weaker nations of the hemisphere.

IF WE DON'T do these things, the chances are strong that another Cuba will bob up in the Western Hemisphere. It isn't pleasant to be reminded of it, but the inescapable fact is that while we are fighting to stop communism 10,000 miles away in Southeast Asia, communism is flourishing only 90 miles from the Florida coast in Cuba.

And there is nothing to prevent some politically unscrupulous dictator from doing what Castro did, namely reduce rents, seize American property, open up yachting and golf clubs to the masses simultaneously with a campaign of vilifying the United States. All he has to do is publish a report that American sailors have desecrated a statue of Simon Bolivar, as Castro did regarding the statue in Havana harbor, and a rabble-rousing president can do pretty much what he wants.

It's a tribute to the fairness and friendship of Latin governments that basically they remember the recommendation of Bolivar, father of South American Independence, that the new South American republics form a federation with the United States.

Thomas Jefferson made a similar recommendation. But the isolationists of the United States were so intent on following George Washington's farewell advice of "no entangling alliances" that we missed a great opportunity.

WHILE IT MAY BE too late to form the Pan American federation recommended by Jefferson and Bolivar it is not too late to cement an economic and military alliance. Here are some of the basic features which this alliance should embrace:

Fuller use of Pan American raw materials—Latin nations have been irked at the increasing post-war competition they are getting from Africa and Asia, which produce the same tropical materials they do. During World War II, our southern neighbors shipped coffee, cocoa, sugar, sisal, tin, copper to the United States at stabilized prices. They could have boosted prices and made tremendous war profits. They didn't. Since the war they complain that we have turned to their competitors in Africa and Asia. They feel that they have a right to a favored market with us in peace as well as war.

A Pan American common market — Manufactured goods from the United States and from the more industrialized countries of Latin America could develop a prosperous common market similar to that in Western Europe.

Already the Central American nations are benefiting from a common market.

Aid for weaker countries — There is no reason why the stronger countries of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico, Peru and Venezuela cannot unite with the United States in aiding Bolivia, Ecuador, the Dominican Republic, Haiti and Paraguay.

Haiti, the first Western country to win its independence after the United States, is now living in abject poverty with potentials of communism as dangerous as those of the Congo. Haiti is sorely in need of guidance and aid from the stronger nations.

If this comes from Pan American nations, rather than from the United States alone, it will be far more effective.

Problem 'Inherited'

EDITOR:

In regard to the furor, caused by Governor Reagan's proposed budget cuts and tuition charges, among our university and college students and professors, I would like to remind them that these proposals are necessitated by the several hundred million dollar deficit left by the outgoing administration.

We were warned last year that Governor Brown's "accrual accounting" methods could lead to serious fiscal difficulties and it seems that they have. So let us not be so quick to blame Reagan for an inherited situation which he is handling exactly as he promised to do in his campaign.

Student Costs

EDITOR:

Some information for the governor: According to the basic student charges bulletin of the U.S. Dept. of HEW, the average total of tuition, fees, room and board for the 88 public universities in this country is $932.

At Berkeley the figure is $1,133, at UCLA it is $1,122, and expenses are similar at the other seven U.C. campuses.

Only 18 of the 88 universities charge more than the University of California, and if a $400 tuition is added we will be exceeded by only the University of Louisville. Furthermore, the Berkeley General Catalogue lists the total estimated expenses for one year at $1,850.

This is "freeloading?"

More on Ruby Case

EDITOR:

I disagree with the medical speculation expressed by two Long Beach doctors in regards to Jack Ruby's rapid demise from cancer. They contend that Ruby's depressed attitude accelerated the progress of the disease.

While it may be true that a spirit of hopelessness, anxiety and depression does not aid the body's myriad enzymatic processes, and probably contributes toxins to an already toxin-laden system, the primary question is: Which came first, the cancer or the depression?

It is well established that personality changes frequently occur at the onset of cancer, long before it reaches the terminal stage. In Ruby's case, I believe the cancer caused most of his depression, and not vice versa. It could have very well been the cause of his irrational action in killing Oswald.

Drs. Eugene M. Blumberg and Walter C. Ellerbroek apparently were not aware that Jack Ruby had cancer for over three years, not 30 days.

Calls It a Fiasco

EDITOR:

The editorial of "No Glory in Hassle Over JFK Book" echoes my sentiments entirely.

As usual it was handled in typical Kennedy extravaganzas. First we had the emotionally packed drama of a potential Kennedy vs. Manchester clash, reminiscent of another Cuban missile confrontation. And now with the court action suddenly being called off we are left with the same ending as the Bay of Pigs, a fiasco.

Could it have been planned this way all along?

Hughes Co. Price Hike Probe Due

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — A large increase in the costs to the Army of a helicopter will be probed soon by Congress.

A House Armed Services investigation subcommittee plans to look at increased price tags on light observation helicopters sold to the Army by the Hughes Aircraft Co. of Culver City, Calif.

The committee wants to know why the cost of the craft has nearly doubled since Hughes won a development contract some three years ago.

Hughes won the award after a tight competition with the Fairchild-Hiller Corp., and the committee intends to determine if the original price was a "loss leader" to assure that the firm would get the profitable production contract.

GLENN M. ANDERSON, who last year unsuccessfully campaigned for re-election as California lieutenant governor under the slogan "The Quiet Fighter," came quickly into the nation's capital last week in search of employment.

Anderson sought the aid of California's Democratic delegation in his bid for a diplomatic post, preferably somewhere in Latin America.

One of the duties quietly performed by Anderson in his days as the Golden State's No. 2 elective officer was handling the administration's "good neighbor" program with Mexico, Chile and other countries south of the border. He believes this experience could be put to use in an ambassadorship or perhaps on some U.S.-Latin American special mission.

The response to the Anderson bid was understood to have been quiet acknowledgement, if not downright silence.

THERE IS ALARMING indication that the Russians are pulling ahead of the United States in the creation of almost meaningless acronyms — a situation that could lead to a gobbledegook gap.

The Soviets are planning a trade fair to be known as INPRODASH, a name contrived from the first letters of the Russian words for "International Exhibit of Modern Mechanical and Automated Packing Equipment and Transportation Conveyances for the Food Industry."

The Pentagon, where the art of coining indecipherable words hitherto had been raised to peaks of bafflement, will now have to put its finest minds and computers to work in toppling the Russian effort.

THE ENVIRONMENTAL science Services Administration chose an unfortunate time last week to announce it was about to launch another weather satellite — the fourth in a series designed to make weather prediction nearly foolproof.

The announcement was distributed on a day when an unpredicted snowfall snarled morning traffic throughout the area, leading recipients of the information to wonder if the already-orbiting satellite in charge of scanning Washington had not taken a snooze.

Early Southland Society Had Its Problems, Too

By MOLLY BURRELL

Contemporary man has no monopoly on crowding, juvenile drug users, wife swapping and gambling.

Southern California's earliest inhabitants had all these things going in the Stone Age. Historians say Indian puberty rites included downing a slug of jimson weed root which induced narcotic stupor, wild visions, and severe nausea.

Archaeologists say Southern California, especially the Orange County coastline, once had the highest Indian population density of any spot in the United States.

A betrayed husband had the right to kill his wife, but the usual procedure was for him to inform the wife's lover that he might keep her. In some cases, they just swapped wives.

THEN, AS NOW, the inhabitants were conservative. Food was plentiful, climate mild, life was easy, and the Indians saw little need for change or improvement. Since they lacked no resources, they had no thought of seeking their needs elsewhere or changing their traditional ways. Their government, religious, and daily living patterns show almost no modification over the centuries, says Paul Chace of Bowers Museum, Santa Ana.

These and other insights into the ways of primitive man in Orange County emerge from a body of reports based on studies and excavations during the past six decades. These studies and excavations by private and governmental groups help reconstruct a picture of life here going back as far as 8,000 years.

The excavations are still going on today as part of the program of the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society whose announced aim is to chart and explore known Indian sites in the county before bulldozers and concrete cover all traces of the past.

EIGHT SITES in Orange County have been excavated since the group began five years ago, and about 100 sites have been surveyed out of a possible total of nearly 2,000, estimates Chace.

In a typical Sunday dig, a handful of arrow points, assorted cooking, scraping, cutting and digging stones will be carefully unearthed under the direction of club members trained in archaeological procedures. It's the amateurs who do most of the digging, screening, brushing and labeling, however. Youngsters, Explorer Scouts, retired businessmen, grandmothers—all drawn by their common interest in Indians—spend long hours in remote caves, gullies, hillsides and coastal cliffs salvaging remnants of the past. Joe Fontaine, president of the society and test chemist for a utility company, conducts tests prior to the digs to determine soil acidity and its relation to the findings.

OTHER GROUP OFFICERS are veterans of archaeological digs in this and other states. Some are on the faculties of area colleges and universities, others join the excavations as a pleasant hobby and for an escape from suburban routines.

The objects of the searching were a primitive people compared to the relatively well organized Cheyenne and Sequoia tribes. They had no tribal ties and each small band has its own autonomy. Because of language similarities, some historians say these Indians were related to the Shoshones.

Because life was easy, the Southland Indians spent much of their time playing games, gambling, holding sport contests and feasts. They never got beyond the hunting-gathering stage until the mission era when some of the natives were taught some of the ways of European civilization.

HOWEVER, EARLY inhabitants had an almost nonexistent crime rate and juvenile delinquency was unknown.

Children were seen, not heard. It was permissible to kill a youngster who had brought disgrace to his parents by breaking clan rules. However, according to historians, parents never whipped their children, but relied on admonitions to do the right thing.

Gambling—then, as now—was a part of the scene. Dice were made of round shells filled with asphaltum and marked with bits of white shell. Another favorite betting game was played with four black sticks and four white sticks of bone.

ORANGE COUNTY Indians prior to the mission era were semi-nomadic and each band had its own allotted food gathering territories ranging from the sea to the Santa Ana mountains. Invasions of this territory seemed to constitute their only disputes, and inter-clan gatherings were frequent for marriage rites, funerals, sport contests and feasts.

The society was patriarchal. Women had no say in government, religious affairs, nor in the choice of a husband.

Chingichinich, a sacred being who "created all things," had the power to do all things, and had his home "above," was the center of a religion based on fear. Fr. Gerónimo Boscano, attached to mission San Juan Capistrano, wrote the earliest work on the life and beliefs of the Indians in 1816.

ACCORDING to his writings, the rules of Chingichinich were strict. The faithful had to rise early, bathe daily, take good care of all old people, eat sparsely, never show anger, never shout in the presence of old men, refrain from scratching the skin with the fingers, and boys were to eat no meat of large animals until they were as tall as their father's shoulder.

Material things concerned them very little. Utensils were simply fashioned and undecorated, clothing was minimal or non-existent, and the only known instrument of money was a measure of clam disc beads.

MARRIAGE WAS a simple affair with the bride's parents picking the candidate who then moved into the family hut for a chaste observance of his future bride's domestic abilities. Her bridal attire included feathers, animal skins, and some new body paint. Relatives and friends carried her to her future husband's hut, dumped baskets of seeds over the couple's heads and pronounced them wed.

With the beginning of the exploration period, disease, brought by the newcomers, began to thin the ranks of the native population. By the middle of the mission period their population already was nearly decimated and the Indians later proved unable to surmount.

What remains of their own simple civilization may be seen in museums in Orange and Los Angeles counties. The rest may remain a secret forever, buried beneath a population influx which continues to expand across the remaining open land.

Want to Sound Off, Teens? Youth Forum's Coming Up

The Torrance Youth Welfare Commission has announced it plans to establish a community-wide youth forum, designed to give teen-agers an adult sounding board for every problem from homework to premarital sex.

"What we definitely don't want this to be," said commission chairman C. K. "Sandy" Norman, "is a bunch of adults acting as finks."

The program, originally proposed by Torrance Mayor Albert Isen, would provide regular meetings attended by student leaders from one parochial and four public high schools. At the sessions, the students hopefully would discuss among themselves the myriad problems of their age and, when necessary, seek the advice of the shirtsleeve panel of adult commissioners.

"Our prime format," said Norman, "will be 'youth speaks.' The kids will run the programs themselves; most of the time, we'll keep our mouths shut."

Norman said it is hoped the exchange of ideas between teen-agers and adults may lead to the revamping of laws which now may be antiquated, and to a better understanding by adults of the problems of today's youth. The commission eight months ago surveyed youth opinion of the then-new family billiard parlors, and won City Council approval of a measure to lower the minimum age for attendance from 18 to 16.

"In the same regard," said Norman, "we may find that our curfew laws should be modified. One way to determine that is to have the teen-agers discuss the problem among themselves."

When the program has been effectively established among student leaders, it would be expanded to include non-leaders—the group the commission hopes ultimately to reach.

AT A TRIAL SESSION conducted with members of the Bishop Montgomery High School student body, Norman said, the meeting proceeded falteringly at the outset. "Then the kids began to loosen up, when they found we weren't going to be critical of their ideas—that we weren't just a debating society in disguise."

Norman said the commission hopes to gather representatives from all five high schools, then meet initially in an informal setting with a youth moderator. "We need the confidence of the kids for this to succeed," said Norman. "Most important of all, we must respect their confidence."

LT. JIM LYNCH PRESENTS ACADEMIC AWARD TO BENJAMIN POST

Graduate 23 New Officers

Twenty-three new Long Beach patrolmen were graduated this week from the Police Academy, and the city immediately began looking for applicants for the next class, starting about mid-April.

The Civil Service Board announced that applications for jobs as patrolmen will be accepted through Feb. 9. Application forms and other information may be obtained at the Civil Service office in the Municipal Utilities Building, 215 W. Broadway.

The written examination will be given Monday, Feb. 20, at 8:15 a.m. in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

After undergoing examinations and background investigations, successful applicants will begin the eight-week course at the Police Academy.

THE CLASS that was graduated Friday actually consisted of 30, including the 23 Long Beach officers and seven from police departments in Torrance, Signal Hill and Palos Verdes Estates. One of the 23 Long Beach cadets was a policewoman.

Three of the Long Beach graduates received special honors. Benjamin W. Post was given the Chief's Award for Academic Excellence. Robert L. Wilson was cited for the best marksmanship, and James E. Harris was recognized for being the most improved shooter. The out-of-town officers do not compete for these awards.

Applicants for patrolman must be U.S. citizens, aged 21 through 30. Their height must be between 69 and 77 inches and their weight between 150 and 225 pounds. City residence is required at the time of employment. The job pays a monthly salary of $605 to $748.

Released Mental Patients Need Friends Most of All

By MARK CLUTTER

When a patient walks forth from a mental hospital free to live in the ordinary world, he often finds that his troubles are not over.

The problems of the released mental patient were considered at a dinner sponsored by religious and community groups this week in Covenant Presbyterian Church.

The principal speaker, Anna M. Smith, M.D., psychiatrist for the California State Department of Mental Health, said: "When patients do leave mental hospitals, they must find acceptance by their families, the community and employers."

SHE WARNED that individuals must not extend acceptance "in terms of carefully rehearsed attitudes."

"A former patient can read fears and reservations in a person," she said. "In accepting, there are no pat formulas. If you let your sensibilities as one human-being to another guide you, you are going in the right direction."

"In your encounters aim and intend, not to make a diagnosis, but to help the person realize his own strength."

She told about a young patient who came to her and said, "I don't need your medicine any more. 'What I need is a friend.'"

"I am your friend."

"Yes, but that is your profession. I need someone to like me spontaneously."

THE ERA OF LONG hospital stays is past, Dr. Smith pointed out. Patients are released as quickly as possible. "Communities must foster rehabilitation," she said. "If you do not meet the challenge, you will find your community hampered by malfunctioning individuals."

Often patients have been wounded by the wrong kind of family life. "It is important for them to have exposure to the family life they have never known," Dr. Smith said. "But when it comes that close, when it means taking them into the home, not many pass the test. A hospital is not a home."

Former patients find it difficult to get work even when they are qualified. Many employers are hampered by insurance rules, but others are reluctant because of their own fears, she said.

Pico Rivera Man Dies in Blaze

A 50-year-old Pico Rivera man died in a fire Saturday morning in a bedroom of his duplex apartment.

Los Angeles County coroner's deputies identified the victim as Chester Krolak, 5319 Rosemead Blvd. Firemen said the fire may have been caused by a cigarette igniting bedding.

cannot stand outpouring of love. Sometimes the person's behavior deteriorates. It is important to set limits on acceptable conduct."

The meeting was sponsored by the Long Beach Area Council of Churches, Bureau of Social Work, Catholic Welfare Bureau, Long Beach Community Welfare Council, Jewish Family Service, Mental Health Association and Metropolitan State Hospital.

County to Auction Vehicles

Ninety vehicles, including 17 late-model but high-mileage cars, will go on the auction block March 4 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Orange County road yard, 1102 Fruit St., Santa Ana.

They include sheriff's patrol cars which are driven long distances in short periods of time. Fourteen of them are 1965 models, and the other three are 1964 models.

There will be three station wagons, six trucks, four pickups, a 1943 fire engine and a 1944 model fire truck.

Courtney R. Chandler, Orange County's purchasing agent, said that the vehicles will be available for inspection on March 2 and 3 beginning at 9 a.m.

Consider Three as Librarian

City Mgr. Edward J. Ferraro has said he has narrowed to three candidates the search for a new Torrance librarian.

Provided a $3 million bond issue wins the voters' approval April 18, Torrance hopes to establish its own library system, autonomous from Los Angeles County, which has provided books and personnel in the past.

Torrance, the only city in the county with its own library buildings but county books and staff, has been told it must either relinquish the buildings to the county or create its own system by mid-1968.

Ferraro said there were 11 candidates for the $13,572-a-year post, being created now so the librarian can help coordinate the bond election and subsequently establish the system prior to the county's termination date.

Alta Loma Proposed as Park Name

Alta Loma will be the name proposed to the Torrance Park and Recreation Commission Wednesday for a new, four-acre park in the Victoria Knolls section.

Recreation Director Harry B. VanBellehem said department officials had expressed concern that the name Victoria-Knolls Park might create confusion between it and Victor Park several miles away.

Land for the facility, to be built at Delos Drive and Crest Road, is currently under acquisition.

BERGER, SEGAL... 'Quiller Memo'

On Film

"The Quiller Memorandum," spy thriller filmed in Berlin, and starring George Segal, Alec Guinness, Max von Sydow, Senta Berger, George Sanders and Robert Helpmann, opens in the area Wednesday.

"Memorandum," is the first of 13 motion pictures National General Productions, Inc., is making under special permission from the U.S. government. A second film, "Divorce American Style," starring Dick Van Dyke, Jean Simmons, Jason Robards, Debbie Reynolds and Van Johnson, has been completed. A third, "The Stalking Moon," with Gregory Peck, is in production.

National General Productions is a subsidiary of National General Corp., a theaterowning film. Some years ago, the U.S.

MacDONALD, EDDY... 'Maytime'

directed motion picture production firms divorce themselves from the exhibition end of the industry. National General's production activities are in association with established film-producing companies.

JANE FONDA

OTHER FILMS opening in the area Wednesday are "Any Wednesday," with Jason Robards, Jane Fonda, Rosemary Murphy and Dean Jones, and "Hallelucination Generation," starring George Montgomery and Danny Stone.

JEANETTE MAC DONALD and Nelson Eddy again join voices in the continuing series of Tuesday-only re-showings of famous operettas on film — this Tuesday, Sigmund Romberg's "Maytime." Second film on the matinee and evening bill at the Plaza Theater, Spring and Palo Verde, is Oscar Struass' "The Chocolate Soldier."

EARL WILSON

Buddy Rich's Feuds: Compton's Carolyn Daye

NEW YORK — Buddy Rich has been nicknamed "Mr. Warmth" and "Mr. Humility" by Johnny Carson because Buddy at the moment has successful feuds going with Vaughn Monroe, Russ Morgan, Artie Shaw and "Dusty" Springfield if you count "Dusty" Springfield... and Buddy doesn't.

The sometimes-called drummer's drummer, who has a big band album and a big band single on the best-seller charts, is a plain-spoken Brooklynite with a weakness for telling people what's wrong with them.

"What's wrong with saying what's wrong?" Buddy demanded the other day at Gallagher's.

"I'M VERY upset with a guy named Monroe putting down big bands," he blazed. "He doesn't know as much about music as some of these rock-and-roll groups. People don't pay much attention to him, anyway. But he had some big hits like that corny 'Racing to My Moon,' or whatever it was. Was it on? Why, it was laughable! Even in the commercial days before this present garbage came in, it was laughable."

"For a guy who's made so much money out of music to put down big bands is wrong, and he should get out of it and count his money!"

Russ Morgan—"nobody's heard much about him except coal miners," Bobby said—"made himself look like a real idiot claiming if you want to eat steak you have to play straight corn and if you play good music you'll live on hamburgers. "He's not a good musician, I hate everything he stands for!" Buddy said. "I can understand Vaughn Monroe because he's not too smart but for Russ Morgan to say that is insulting the intelligence of the American public."

Buddy was on a Johnny Carson program when Artie Shaw arrived and began talking about reading 20 books a day, most of them in French.

"Come off of it, Artie," Buddy said. "I know you, and when anybody listens to you for a while, they see you don't know what you're talking about."

SHOW BUSINESS and dogs are a way of life for gorgeous songstress Carolyn Day. But when one gets in the way of the other, her choice is clear.

"My manager booked a tour of European clubs for me," she said. "When I found out I couldn't bring my two Australian silky terriers there, I turned it down."

Instead of touring Europe, Carolyn, the daughter of Mrs. Florence McKinney, 2416 Alondra Blvd., Compton, is singing on the Playboy Club circuit.

And wherever she goes, her two little puppies follow.

"I bought them in Sidney, Australia," she told me. "When I flew back, Pan Am let me have three seats so we all could be comfortable. I call them my babies."

The boy dog is named Aussie. The girl is Luv.

"And then it happened," Carolyn said. "It happened while I was on stage at the Los Angeles Playboy Club, singing for guests from such shows as Danny Thomas, Danny Kaye, Jack Benny and the Hollywood Palace who were in the audience to audition me."

"The drama was taking place back stage. Unknown to all the people, my manager would signal to me each time Luv was giving birth."

"Twice I ran off stage to assist in the birth of the puppies. I ran right back on to finish the show."

She added: "I didn't get any of the TV shows yet, but I did come out ahead with four adorable puppies."

EARL'S PEARLS: Eddie Bracken of "Odd Couple" wants to become a writer: "You can't miss. Write a bad play, you sell it to the movies. Write a bad movie, you sell it to TV."

'BORN YESTERDAY'

Fresh Interpretation at Huntington Beach 'Barn'

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

I never quite appreciated the very real strength in Garson Kanin's spool of corruption and venality in Washington—until Friday night.

For it was always the late Judy Holliday's play. Her wistful, street-urchanish portrayal of dumb blonde Billie Dawn was too distracting. But life—and a good play—goes on, as was apparent when "Born Yesterday" opened before a capacity—and highly appreciative—crowd in Huntington Beach Playhouse.

This was a new interpretation with a life and vitality of its own. No longer did the play "belong" to Judy, or Paul Douglas and Broderick Crawford, who had done the part of millionaire junkman Harry Brock. Particularly was it divorced from the styles of the young actors who have played crusading magazine reporter Paul Verrall.

Harry Brock—with a difference from his predecessors in the role. In all his plans for corrupting United States Senators and creating a gigantic international cartel in junk, there was something very human about him. He ached at the appropriate moments.

Albertsen, too, played a second and very important role: his machine gun tempo served to time, to speed, his colleagues at precisely the right moment.

THE RADICALLY different approach was offered by Tom Titus, drama critic for an Orange County newspaper, who did reporter Paul Verrall, hired by Brock to teach Billie "how to deal with the right people."

Titus was a real reporter in the role, not feuding with or striking sparks on Brock until the time when his own moral values were compromised. That's a new approach—and a realistically refreshing one.

Excellent in their supporting roles as Sen. and Mrs. Norval Hedges were Tom Broderick and Audrey Snitzer. Effectively underplaying the corrupt and drunken cartel attorney was Bill Snitzer.

Also appearing were Ruth Dornard, Vance Larsen, Howard R. Solomon, Mike Barber, George Ralph, LaDonna deBarros and Robert Lammers.

Larry McPherson and Ruth Dornard shared directing chores and the exceptionally fine set was jointly created by Mike Barber, Bill Susman and Skeets Smith.

"Born Yesterday" continues Friday and Saturday nights through Feb. 11.

SCR BUILDING BENEFIT Ebsen Stars in Melodyland Show

Buddy Ebsen, star of TV's "The Beverly Hillbillies," will headline the star-studded show at Melodyland Theater, Anaheim, at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

South Coast Repertory Theater, 2815 Villa Way, Newport Beach, will receive all proceeds from the show for its building fund.

Ebsen not only will appear on the show, he is handling talent acquisition for the benefit. Among those who have agreed to appear are Jerry Lester, Sterling Holloway, handleader Jack Marshall and actress Ben Benaderet of TV's "Petticoat Junction."

THE TWO AND ONE-HALF hour show will feature a variety of acts by top names during the second half of the presentation. The 35-member repertory company will be featured in the first half in a documentary presenting the philosophies and goals of the theatrical group.

David M. Emmes, managing director of SCR, said the show will raise needed capital for a move to larger quarters and the renovation of an existing building.

HAITINK IN L.A. Satisfying--But More Craft Than Insight

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Bernard Haitink ended his two-week visit with the Los Angeles Philharmonic at Friday's matinee in Chandler Pavilion. His program listed the Overture to "Rosamunde," Janacek's "Taras Bulba," Debussy's "Six Epigraphes Antiques" (heard in Long Beach last week), and the Second Violin Concerto of Prokofiev, with David Frisina as soloist.

Though the Dutch conductor's programs displayed somewhat more craftsmanship than insight, they were in no wise unsatisfying.

His readings of Schubert, for example, benefitted from sharp, well-defined sectional profiles (adding dynamic dimensions rare in this orchestra), as well as his abstinence from rhythmic indulgences.

Unanimity of attacks and careful, as opposed to salutary, stylistic details characterized the orchestra's playing under his leadership.

IF THE TOTAL of these small matters sometimes revealed weakness not usually apparent in the Philharmonic's makeup, we owe the guest conductor more thanks than blame for making them so.

Frisina, the orchestra's concertmaster except for this one week a year, gave a thorough and sometimes glowing reading of the Prokofiev work, fourth installment in this season's survey of 20th century violin concertos.

He did not always project the violin's running opposition to the orchestral fabric, or all the many metrical juxtapositions, but there were moments (as in the highest passages of the Andante) of rich tone and soaring line.

Haitink's accompaniment was the model of clarity and musical sense. His rapport with Frisina demonstrated the sort of peer-cooperation too often missing in this hall.

PROMISING TALENTS, rather than professional achievement, were displayed by James Hansen, a young organist making his local recital debut before a receptive crowd Friday night in First Congregational Church.

His program was a sampler: movements from Vivaldi and Bach, first; three more of our century, last; Guilmant's D-minor Sonata, Opus 42, as the centerpiece.

The first movement of Vivaldi's A-minor Concerto (without its companions) opened the program, followed by the Chorale-prelude on "O Sacred Head," and the D-minor, the so-called "Dorian," Toccata (BWV 538), oddly, without its fugue.

The kind of full-blown frenzy so appropriate to Guilmant's showpiece, was, unfortunately, already in evidence in the 18th-century items. The sonata nevertheless shook the rafters, and, no doubt, some of the audience.

FORERUNNER OF PENNEY CHAIN . . . Kemmerer, Wyo., Dry Goods Store in 1902

NEW SHOWPLACE FOR PENNEY COMPANY . . . Ultramodern Lakewood Center Store

J. C. Penney's 'Showplace' to Open

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday will officially open the J. C. Penney Department Store in the Lakewood Shopping Center.

According to Jack T. Davies, manager, the store will be a showplace for the Penney Company in the Southland, displaying 30 lines of merchandise new to Penney's in this area as well as a general expansion of the company's traditional lines.

The new 163,000-square-foot store is located at the southern end of the Lakewood Shopping Center Mall at the corner of Del Amo and Lakewood Boulevards.

THE STORE is a three-level structure with a basement boasting a partial sales area along with offices, employee facilities and a receiving department.

There are two elevators and two-place escalators for customer convenience. Aisles are extra wide. Directional signs are plentiful and the decor is pleasing. To man the store, which will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, Penney's will employ 540 people.

Nearly 500 associates, as Penney's prefers to call its employees, are in newly created jobs. Key personnel members at the store were hand-picked from the company's 50 other stores in the Los Angeles area.

DAVIES SAID Penney's customers in the Lakewood area "will be amazed at the extensive lines of merchandise. Those who have known Penney's as a small soft goods store and the place to get work clothes and ready-to-wear garments will witness the expansion of traditional lines of clothing and the addition of completely new 'hard' lines, including major appliances, color television, hardware, furniture, sporting goods and fine jewelry."

The store also will offer new services such as a beauty salon, photographic studio and a 70-seat coffee shop.

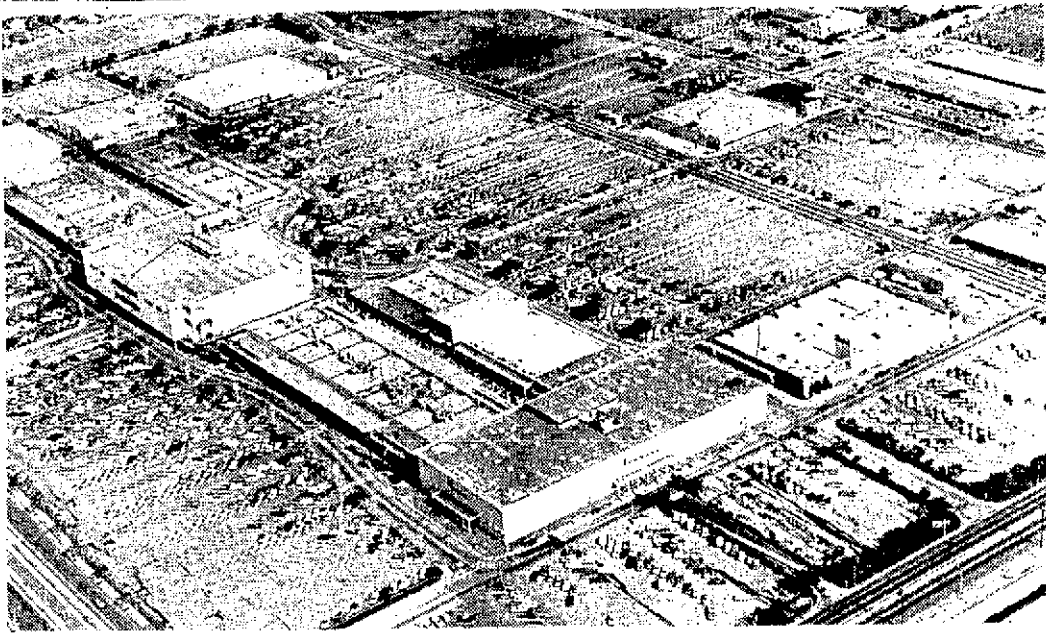

Depth of merchandise in the new departments is exemplified by the furniture selection. The store's display, which includes 11 complete room settings, occupies one-fifth of the second floor.

DECORATOR STYLES include Spanish and Italian Mediterranean, Early American French Provincial, American Contemporary and Danish Modern. Selection of upholstery is available for color, grade and style of fabric.

The major appliance department will offer a complete line of refrigerator-freezers, 16-pound programmed washing machines, electric and gas dryers, ranges, ovens and dishwashers.

Other new departments include cosmetics, candy, stationery, books and records. A housewares department will offer everything from paring knives and canister sets to small appliances including blenders and electric toothbrushes.

To provide for efficient restocking with the least amount of handling, the new store has an automatic conveyor system which delivers merchandise to any part of the store.

INCOMING merchandise for each department is put in individual containers at the company's central warehouse in Los Angeles.

When the container is received at the store, it is programmed to be sent to the specific department and inserted into the conveyor network. When the container reaches the intended department, it is automatically released and is ready for unloading.

Penney's has been increasing the size of its stores and merchandise selection since 1962. The average store in 1961 had 23,000 square feet. New stores now are averaging over 125,000 square feet.

THE LAKEWOOD store will be the 24th completely new, full-line department store opened by the company in the past twelve months. The total new space added to the company's physical plant during its 1966 fiscal year, which ends January 31, will be approximately 3,750,000 square feet.

As of October last year, Penney's exceeded 50 million square feet of space in its 1,663 stores in 49 states.

With 158 stores in California—50 in the Los Angeles area—the West continues to be an area of rapid growth for the company.

With the Lakewood store in operation, there will be four full-line Penney's stores in the Los Angeles area.

Plans for the next two years include three more big stores plus a mammoth new distribution center.

IN 1902, James Cash Penney opened a cash and carry store in a little frame building in the frontier coal mining town of Kemmerer, Wyo. He invested his entire savings of $500 plus $1,500 he borrowed, to buy a one-third interest in the 25 by 40-foot store. Population of Kemmerer was 1,000.

Penney called his store the "Golden Rule" with the idea to apply the Golden Rule philosophy to business. At the time, it was a new merchandising idea, radical in the cut-throat competition of the early 1900's.

His first customers soon learned they benefited from his idea—values at the Golden Rule were good, prices fair.

IN THE FIRST year in that little store, homemakers bought $28,898 worth of merchandise, a remarkable amount for a store of that size at the time.

From the first, Penney wanted to build a small group of stores operating under partner-ownership.

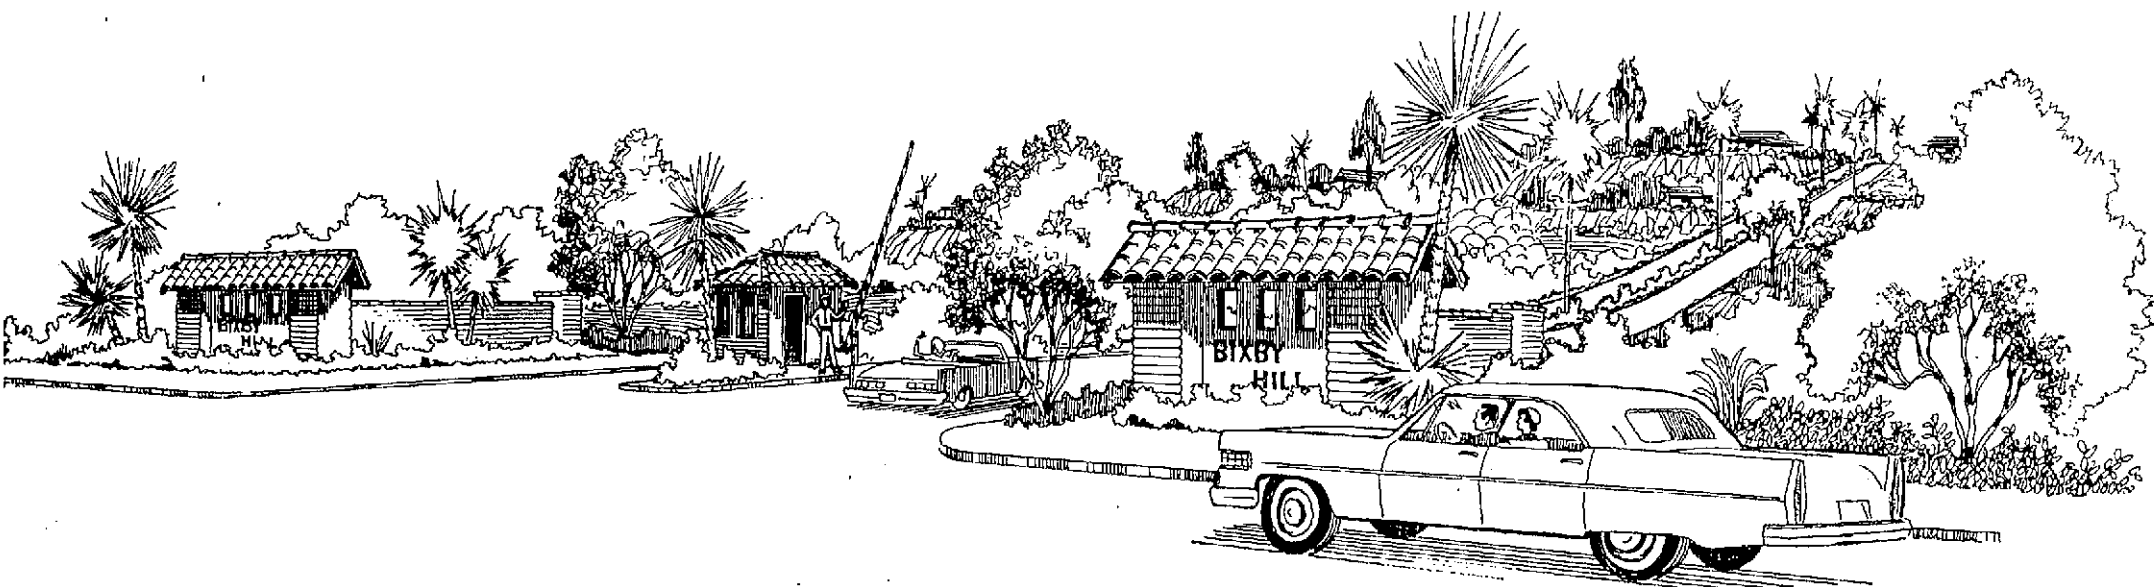

In 1910, eight new stores were opened, making a total of 14 stores doing an annual business of more than half a million dollars.

By 1912, there were 34 stores with total sales of more than $2 million. In 1913, company headquarters were moved to New York City.

BIXBY HILL HAS TRAINED PRIVATE GUARDS

Modern Gated Communities Offer High Degree of Security

Rising crime statistics and overworked and undermanned police departments spotlight the fact that while privacy is attainable in varying degrees, security of person and property is of growing concern to the citizenry.

Incidents of burglars backing vans up to homes and stripping them clean of color television sets, bulky furniture, heavy safes and even carpeting while owners are absent have been reported across the nation in recent months.

Exclusive neighborhoods within or on the fringes of our big cities are no longer exempt from invasion by brazen criminals who commit burglaries even in daylight.

This has led to a new revolution by residential developers—the private community in which entry is gained only through security-guarded gates where all who enter and leave do so under the surveillance of trained, private police.

Bixby Hill, a community created by S & S Construction Company, is the second such development in the Long Beach area. The first was Rolling Hills, established more than 30 years ago.

The wall-encircled, security-guarded community provides:

1. Security guards at the gates, checking the identification of all who enter and leave.

2. Screening of visitors to the community. If prior notice of an expected visitor had not been given to the guards, guards will phone the owner for permission to admit the visitor.

3. Protection of the home during owner's absences, especially during lengthy trips.

4. Private thoroughfares, offering greater traffic safety to the children of owners.

Rolling Hills is established proof the system works, that it is possible to achieve a high degree of security for person and property. Not only does the walled city have its own private guards, but the city contracts to the L.A. Sheriff's office for patrol and traffic duties.

The Bixby Hill site is bounded by Anaheim-State College Road, Studebaker Road, Seventh Street and Long Beach State College.

The historical Bixby Ranch house and farm buildings are located on 7½ acres within the community. During Bixby Hill's visiting hours, visitors to the ranch will be passed through the guarded gates without hesitation.

Bixby Hill is the latest achievement in the building careers of Nathan and David Shapell, principals in the development company. In the past decade, they have built and sold more than 10,000 residences in the Southland.

They have received many awards.

The scenic lots overlooking the Long Beach area deserve homes built around the elegant way of life.

Ranging from 2,300 to 3,340 square feet of living space, the homes are in ranch, Spanish, classic and contemporary stylings. Up to five bedrooms and up to three-car garages are offered in a variety of designs associated with seven basic floor plans.

"The acceptance of the beauty and super-security of 'The Private World of Bixby Hill' has been so great," according to S & S general manager Bernard S. McCune, "that a study is under way to evaluate the feasibility of a condominium development within the community."

With trips planned for man to go to the moon in some phases and to probe the ocean bottom in others, a space laboratory in Palos Verdes is launching a major program to develop new systems to enable man to operate in such new and unfamiliar environments.

Approximately 300 additional Northrop Corp. employees will be assigned to the Nortronics Division in the Palos Verdes Research Park to aid in the project, effective Feb. 1, bringing the total employment to 650 persons with a payroll of about $7 million a year.

Frederick Stevens, corporate vice president and division general manager said the Palos Verdes expansion is the result of recent realignment within Northrop which combined the Northrop Space Laboratories at Hawthorne with Nortronics.

A new organization will be formed within the Nortronics Division combining programs and people from Nortronics and the former Space Laboratories. The new organization, called Northrop Systems Laboratories will be headed by Dr. V. W. Howard, a division vice president who was formerly manager of Northrop Space Laboratories at Hawthorne.

INCLUDED IN THE NEW organization — which is comprised primarily of engineering, scientific, management and highly skilled support personnel — will be military and space programs.

These programs will be concerned with deep submergence systems, space systems, information systems and mechanical systems for the Mariner 69 spacecraft.

"In general terms," Stevens said, "one of the most significant objectives of the new organization will be to develop new systems to enable man to operate in new and unfamiliar environments of outer space and beneath the ocean."

Northrop Space Laboratories (NSL) now occupies facilities in Hawthorne and many of the Lab's scientists and engineers will remain there where necessary equipment already is installed," Stevens added.

Northrop President Thomas V. Jones said the "with the organizational change technical abilities can be brought more effectively to bear on the customer's needs by combining them into a single organization with a common technical approach and a common objective."

NORTRONICS WILL ASSUME administrative responsibilities for NSL field offices at Cape Kennedy, Edwards AFB and six other locations. Management of these outlying facilities and programs is vested in the Northrop Support Operations Department. L. H. Brenwald is manager of this department which is headquartered at Palos Verdes.

Palos Verdes Research Park is headquarters for Nortronics and houses many of the research laboratories in the division.

Nortronics, Northrop's most diversified division, also has facilities in Anaheim, Hawthorne, Newbury Park and two departments near Boston.

"Nortronics, today, participates in more major aerospace programs than ever before in our history," Stevens said. "Our outlook for the future indicates that our position will continue to grow in the years ahead."

A TREND TO BRING INDUSTRY back to the inner city may be developing all across the nation, with new architectural ideas and material handling techniques making such a return economically sound for many.

Properly designed multistory buildings is the answer. When industries began moving from the inner city to the industrial suburbs during the 1940's and continuing in the '50's they had good cost-cutting reasons. Suburban land was cheap and taxes were low.

It is a different story now. People began moving close to the new industries. And with people there naturally came vast new housing units which called for new schools, better highways and costly sewers and other facilities. Those cheap taxes have been mounting. Unless fire and police protection kept pace with the growth, insurance rates climbed. And improved police and fire services mean more taxes.

MANY INDUSTRIES moved to a 150,000 to 200,000-square-foot single-story building outside the city. The economies of single-story material handling combined with low land costs or rents could not be denied at first, says Handling & Shipping Magazine.

Now the values which made this kind of a move economically attractive rapidly are changing. Suburban land costs have risen steeply the past five years and are approaching city land costs in many locales.

Supervision has gone down where the large plants sprawled over a vast area with one-story construction. Travel time within the plant mounted.

Areas which are close to the center of a city yet sufficiently removed from the high-rent, crowded core, are looking more attractive, economically. Multistory industrial buildings using recent advances in construction and material handling may rise again.

Such buildings will be close to adequate labor supply, to urban transportation, to freight carriers. It will have adequate parking, city water, fire and police facilities, all of which have been problems in the suburbs.

AN ENTIRELY NEW UNITED STATES, will have to be built within 35 years because of the population growth, believes a leading West Coast industrialist.

John D. Gray, president of Omak Industries of Portland, points out that in the past 15 years population of the U.S. grew by 42 million and it will increase another 50 million in the next 15.

"Shortly after the turn of the century it is expected the total number of American families will double. This means that within 35 years we will have to build an entirely new U.S. — double the present number of housing units, hospitals, schools, office buildings, factories and public buildings," explains Gray whose firm is an interna-

Silver Experts Say 'No Profit in Hoarding'

New York Times Service

Except by taking a discount from the going rate, it is difficult to sell small quantities of silver bullion. But this difficulty is nothing, compared with trying to melt a pocketful of change into bullion on a kitchen stove.

For these and other reasons attempting to hoard silver coins for fun and profit may turn out to be only fun.

Contrary to recent popular speculation, it will be a lucky hoarder who makes a profit.

Authorities on the silver market advanced this view of the hoarding phenomenon, which at first was the result and later part of the cause of a three-year coin shortage.

Since the Treasury Department began more than a year ago to cut the silver content of half-dollars to 40 per cent and to issue quarters and dimes as of half-dollars to 40 per cent and to issue quarters and dimes as nickel-and-copper sandwiches, it has been common to see consumers scratching through handfuls of change to separate the old dimes and quarters from the new.

THE CUPRO-NICKEL coins were spent; the silver ones tucked away.

While the Treasury's action had solved the coin shortage, a silver shortage continued, market sources emphasized, and it was getting worse, even though Britain and Canada also had largely abandoned silver coinage. Industrial demand alone was far ahead of production.

The price—currently pegged at $1.293 and ounce by the Treasury—would inevitably rise.

But it was unlikely to rise soon enough or high enough to justify the naive hopes of coin hoarders or the more sophisticated calculations of commodity speculators, who have pushed silver futures lately as high as $1.37 and ounce.

In Wall Street last week there were rumors of an early break in the line the Treasury was holding, resulting in a rise to perhaps $1.50 an ounce.

THIS SPECULATION, however, was dismissed as "totally unrealistic" by a senior executive of one major silver producer. Moreover, he termed "utterly ridiculous" what appeared to be a popular theory—that silver would go so high that dimes, quarters and half-dollars would be worth (melted down) more than their face value.

At the existing price, a silver dollar is worth its face value. At $1.38 and ounce, dimes, quarters and halves would be worth their face values, but only in theory, the executive said.

"Apart from rare coins, the speculator would have to save his coins until the silver price reached about $1.75," he said.

"Otherwise, the money would probably grow faster in a 5 per cent savings account."

It was possible but highly unlikely, he added, that the metal would so catch the fancy of speculators that a self-perpetuating landslide of buying would bring precisely the result the buyers sought—immediately higher prices.

IN COMMON WITH other authorities, he forecast a moderate price rise—to about $1.40 an ounce—early in 1968. By that time, it was estimated, the Treasury's stocks would finally be so low that it would be unable to do as it had been doing for three years—selling silver to all buyers at $1.293 an ounce, thus making it pointless for a consumer to pay more elsewhere.

A spokesman for the Treasury dispute even this estimate of how soon the price line would break. With certain developments, the Treasury silver stocks could be stretched—and prices held down—for six or seven years, he said.

The paradox of a stable, relatively low price for the metal amid an acute, worldwide shortage can be explained by two developments. Silver today is mostly an industrial commodity. But the Treasury must continue to view it mostly as money.

THE INDUSTRIAL use of silver has risen in the United States from 95 million ounces 10 years ago to 145 million ounces last year.

Coinage use 10 years ago was 52 million ounces. With the sudden introduction of the cupro-nickel it plunged last year to about 35 million ounces.

Even so, this amounted to total consumption of about 180 million ounces, compared with production last year of an estimated 42 million ounces.

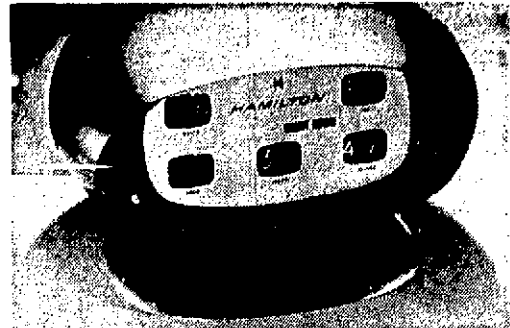

Coinage and industrial consumption in the non-Communist world, moreover, was about 730 million ounces, while world production lagged behind at 250 million ounces.

PRODUCTION RESPONDS so sluggishly to demand mainly because few deposits are mined primarily for silver. More than two-thirds of the world output is a by-product of lead, zinc and copper mining.

Thus, a major controlling factor is how much of these primary-target metals is being mined, as well as whether silver-rich or silver-poor grades are being worked.

In the classic free-market situation, industry sources said, this imbalance undoubtedly would long ago have led to much higher prices.

IT'S TOO MUCH HOUSE FOR THE MONEY.

Some people may feel that our homes at Greenbrook are almost too good to be true.

For a starter, just look at their size.

Not one of these homes has less than 3 bedrooms. Some have 4, some 5, and some even 6. And they're all big bedrooms at that.

Then, there's the styling of these homes.

We put a lot of talent and imagination into designing the interiors and exteriors of these homes. We think you'll like what we've done.

Outside, you will see a great deal of natural rough-sawn wood and Adobles brick. This gives our homes a warm, cheerful, comfortable look.

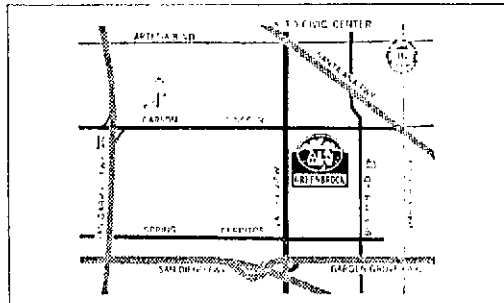

Inside, you'll see styling like you've never seen before. Beautiful fireplaces, balconies, and "mile-high" living-room ceilings. (Several people have used the word "fantastic" to describe the interiors of our homes.)

Finally, there are the prices of these homes.

Even though our homes are big and well-designed, we have been able to make the prices very, very reasonable.

When you see the homes at Greenbrook, we think you'll be spoiled.

DIRECTIONS: Greenbrook is in Cypress. Take San Diego Fwy. or Garden Grove Fwy. to Valley View. Go north to models.

From Santa Ana Fwy. take Valley View south to models.

Disney Firm Net Income in Increase

Net Income of Walt Disney Productions and its domestic subsidiaries for the fiscal year ended Oct. 1, 1966 (52 weeks) increased to $12,392,000, representing $6.34 per share, president and chairman of the board Roy O. Disney said in his annual report to the stockholders.

This compares with the previous year's net profit of $11,379,000, equal to $6.08 per share on the shares then outstanding.

GROSS REVENUES for the year were $116,543,000, up $6,596,000 over the previous year high of $109,947,000. Revenues from theatrical films, television, Disneyland Park and other entertainment activities all increased over the prior year.

DURING THE YEAR the company paid cash dividends totalling 40 cents per share, plus 3 per cent in stock.

Feminine Lead

Wall Street Briefs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thomson & McKinnon says it is a fact of economic life that taxes stay high and are raised only in a continuing period of prosperity, and the market rarely stays down for long on news of a proposed tax increase.

The company says that apparently the administration is convinced the economy is strong enough and will stay strong enough to absorb the impact of increased spending and a higher tax structure. In this frame of reference, the company feels the President's message might be interpreted as having bullish overtones.

Monte Gordon of Bache & Co. says the President's decision on taxes cannot be painted all black or all white. He feels the key question is whether the decline of 1966 already has discounted much of the economic aberration of 1967. He believes the market has and will continue to dwell on the potential of an economic resurgence in the second half.

Anthony Tabell of Walston & Co. says the market may take some time to evaluate the many implications of President Johnson's proposal of a 6 per cent surcharge on personal and corporate income. The analyst says the most significant point in the President's speech is the prospect of easier money. He believes the proposal does not alter the company's belief that the market is now forming a base that will ultimately lead to substantially higher prices.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Two Cleveland brokerage houses, Ball, Burge & Krause and Fahey, Clark & Co. announced they will be merged. Fahey, Clark will become a division of Ball, Burge. Both firms do a large municipal bond business. Ball, Burge is a member of the New York, American and Midwest Stock Exchanges.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Strou & Co. and Elkins Morris, Stokes & Co., securities brokerage houses, have decided to merge under the name Iins Morris, Stroud & Co. The combined firm will be a member of the New York, American and Philadelphia-Baltimore-Washington stock exchanges.

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (UPI) — Duro-Test Corp. said it has sold the defense department a large order of 20,000-watt xenon highintensity lamps for battlefield illumination.

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill. (UPI) — Oak Electronics Corp. said it has shifted the Phillips-Advanced Control Division at Joliet, Ill., of Hart Co., acquired last August, to Hart's main plant at Hartford, Conn. Both Phillips-Advanced and Hart make electronics relays.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walter W. Finke, new president of Dictaphone Corp., said there is no truth in "loose rumors" that Dictaphone is negotiating merger. Kinke said the loose rumor had linked Dictaphone with a number of large electronic firms.

NEW YORK (UPI) — American Electric Power (AEP) Co. has decided to name the $200 million electric generating station being built on the Ohio River near Moundsville, W.Va., the Mitchell Plant. It will honor the late Sidney Z. Mitchell, founding chairman of AEP, and his son, the late Sidney A., long a company director.

NEW YORK (UPI) — W.R. Grace & Co. said its Grace line shipping subsidiary will offer $30 million worth of 25-year merchant marine bonds guaranteed by the federal government for sale in Wall Street within the next three weeks. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., will head the underwriting group. Proceeds will go to help finance construction of six new fast cargo ships for service between the Atlantic ports of the United States and Pacific ports of South America.

Home-O-Rama Slated in March

Carl Brooks, Long Beach general contractor, will serve as general chairman of the 1967 Home-O-Rama to be held March 1 through 5 in the Long Beach Arena.

Announcement of Brooks' appointment was made by Newt Wrench, president of the Long Beach Builders Exchange which is sponsoring the home show for the eighth consecutive year.

As general chairman, Brooks will work closely with Wrench; Jack Horner, manager of the Builders Exchange, and George Colours, producer, in planning the show.

BROOKS SAID ONE of the first major events to be held in connection with the Home-O-Rama will be a contest Feb. 13 in the Lafayette Hotel to select the "Home-O-Rama Sweetheart" for 1967.

Members of the builders group will name the winner and two princesses during a dinner meeting.

Principal purpose of the Home-O-Rama is to showcase products for the home all under one roof, Wrench said. Decorated booths will be set up in the Arena to display the latest products of interest to homeowners and prospective homeowners, he said.

New City Park Big Boost for El Dorado Pk. Homes

"Homeowners of El Dorado Park Estates can't be blamed for taking a proprietary interest in the progress of the city's new El Dorado Park next door," declares Jerry Henderson, sales and marketing manager for the agents of S & S Construction Co., builders-developers of the community.

"Not many residential developments anywhere in the country have the good fortune to be adjacent to recreation land of such potential beauty, and know that it will be developed, to the tune of at least $3.5 million," he adds. "Our owners realize that the park's lakes, streams and golf courses can't help but add to the value of their own properties."

THE OWNERS' enthusiasm has contributed to the success of the development. Recommendations to friends and relatives have accounted for an almost steady stream of visitors to the model homes, with sales closing out one unit after another. A new unit is being opened this weekend.

The builders have not become complacent with the achievement of sales success, Henderson points out; new floor plans, the latest concepts in exterior design are adopted when their desirability is proved by intensive studies. As a result, the display of furnished models is a changing one. A visitor who has not returned to El Dorado Park Estates within a two-month period can expect an almost "new show."

The homes, of three, four and five bedrooms, are offered in a variety of floor plans—one and two story, split-level and tri-level. Prices are from $36,850.

During the recent preview showing, Casa La Cuesta homes, in the new city of Cerritos, reported over 25 percent of the homes sold.

Featuring early Californian and Spanish styling, builder Frank H. Ayres and Son, paid special attention to authentic detail utilizing custom home quality materials and construction methods.

Departing from ordinary tract designed homes, Newport Beach architect Thomas Echternach, ATA, called for extensive use of natural wood siding, imaginative application of masonry and huge stained timbers.

COMPLEMENTING the authentic architecture, imported brick and mission tile for roofs, originating prior to the 1920s, is used throughout the homes.

quality design and construction has played a large part in the success of Casa La Cuesta sales," stated project sales manager, Ray Parscheck.

"The newness of the city of Cerritos and the fact that it is entirely master-planned has created quite an interest in property appreciation potential," Parscheck said.

CASA LA CUESTA homes range in price from $25,990 to $31,990 and may be purchased through FHA or VA financing. Featuring from three to six bedrooms and family room, the homes contain up to 2660 square feet.

Model homes are located on Artesia Boulevard, just 600 feet west of Carmonita Road, and may be viewed from 10 to 16 daily.

New Freight Terminal for United Open

The Southland's largest air freight facility was put into operation as United Air Lines opened the doors of its $3.5 million air freight terminal at Los Angeles International Airport's Cargo City last week.

Francis T. Fox, general manager of the airport, sent the first shipment on its way by switching on an automated cargo conveyor system.

The facility is located on an 11.8-acre site adjacent to United's maintenance area. The freight complex contains 110,000 square feet to handle incoming and outbound shipments, plus another 36,080 square feet of office space.

THE TERMINAL is equipped to handle five DC-8F Jet Freighters at the same time and has 23 truck loading docks, some of which are wide enough to accommodate two trucks simultaneously.

Airline officials said they expect to move some 10 million pounds of revenue freight through the new facility each month.

PORTS O' PROGRESS

Rights-of-Way for Sailboats at End

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

Beginning Feb. 3, the captains of deep-draft vessels and the pilots who ease them in and out of port will get some long over-due relief from the headaches caused by foolhardy operators of smaller craft.

Since the invention of the power-driven vessel, sailboats have enjoyed the right-of-way over power boats, except in a few unusual circumstances.

A recent change in the inland rules state that sailboats and power boats under 65 feet shall not hinder the safe passage of the big freighters, passenger liners, and cargo ships while navigating in the channels of our two local harbors.

FIRST MANAGER Lakewood 'Different'

Jack Davies, manager of the new 163,000-square-foot Penney's Lakewood Store opening Wednesday, is no stranger to Southern Los Angeles or to the Penney Company.

The 33-year company veteran has managed both the Compton and Bellflower stores since he came to Los Angeles in 1959. He was transferred to the new Lakewood store from Bellflower last October to begin the long task of getting a new store ready for opening.

The job has been a combination of overseeing construction, the physical placement of merchandise and equipment, hiring 500 new employees and boning up on some 30 new lines of merchandise ranging from musical instruments to major appliances to paint and hardware.

DAVIES CREDITS the smooth transition from a soft goods store to a major department store to his top aides at Lakewood. The store's key personnel were hand-picked from the fifty Penney stores in the Los Angeles area.

Penney's Lakewood is the ultimate in the company's thinking in merchandise and services.

Davies also is very gratified with the caliber of people who have applied and been hired to man the store. The 500 new Penney employees, nearly all from Lakewood and vicinity, are "the heart of the new store," Davies said.

After graduating from Brigham Young University in 1934, Davies began his career with Penney's as a salesman in the company's Eureka, Utah store, a building that measured 25-feet by 40-feet.

SALESMAN DAVIES' duties then were far different from manager Davies' responsibilities today. In 1934, he would arrive at the store at 7:00 on winter mornings to take out ashes and get a fire going in the old pot-bellied stove in the center of the store. By the time the store opened at 8:30 it would be cozy enough for the town's old-timers.

It was at the Eureka store where Davies first met James Cash Penney, the founder.

PREDICT 'STABLE' 1967

Unemployment Figure Is Static

WASHINGTON —The nation's unemployment figure showed little change in December, making 1966 the first year since 1953 that unemployment averaged below 4 per cent of the labor force, the Labor Department reported.

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of labor statistics, predicted at a news conference that unemployment would continue to be essentially stable in 1967 and would remain at the end of the year about where it is now. The unemployment rate for December, seasonally adjusted, was 3.8 per cent of the labor force. The average for 1966 was 3.9 per cent.

THIS MEANS an average unemployment figure of about 3 million, which rises and falls during the year.

Ross stressed that unemployment, after declining almost without interruption during the long economic expansion that began early in 1961, had not changed significantly since the spring of last year. The rate has fluctuated very narrowly around 3.8 per cent since that time. Comparing 1966 with 1965, the employment situation improved for all labor categories. Overall unemployment fell from 4.6 per cent to 3.9 per cent. Nonwhite unemployment fell from 8.3 per cent to 7.5 per cent, while unemployment among whites dropped from 4.1 per cent to 3.4 per cent.

AT THE END of last year there were only 450,000 workers who had been out of work for 15 weeks or more, a drop from 600,000 a year earlier and more than 800,000 economy.

However, taking December to December, there was no decline in nonwhite unemployment during 1966. The rate last month was the same as a year earlier, 7.6 per cent. However, white unemployment declined in that period from 3.7 per cent to 3.3 per cent.

Although the general employment picture remained as strong in December as earlier in the year, the latest figures contained two indicators of possible softening in the

THE AVERAGE work-week in manufacturing declined from 41.3 hours in November to 41.0 hours in December, which indicated a drop in overtime work. In addition, the number of workers who had only part-time employment for economic reasons rose last month by 300,000 to 1.8 million.

Ross said he based his forecast of stable unemployment on the assumption of an actual growth in the economy of 4 per cent or slightly less.

Ross foresaw a rise in the labor force of 1.4 million in 1967, compared with 1.8 million in 1966. He also indicated that productivity, or output per manhour, would rise less in 1967 than in other recent years.

Unemployment Insurance Is Theme of Confab

The San Pedro and Wilmington Unemployment Insurance Offices of the Department of Employment will conduct an Employer Institute on Unemployment Insurance Tuesday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the YMCA building, 301 S. Bandini St., San Pedro.

2 Officials Retiring at Security First National

Two officials of a Long Beach bank with a combined total of 77 years in banking are retiring from Security First National Bank's Fourth and Cherry Avenue branch.

Manager Harry W. Schurch, who joined the branch in 1943, and Reva Andrews, a senior platform clerk who had been with the branch since 1926, are the two.

SCHURCH'S 23 YEARS at Fourth and Cherry were preceded by 14 years with Security Bank. He estimates he worked in more than 30 branches of the bank during his first 14 years after beginning as a teller on the bank's relief staff.

He was assigned to the Long Beach branch as chief clerk in 1943, named assistant manager in 1945 and appointed to his manager's post in 1952.

Schurch, who has been active in the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, Elks Club, Optimist Club and All Saints Episcopal Church, and his wife, Bonney, live in Long Beach. They have a son, four daughters and six grandchildren.

MISS ANDREWS, who lives only two blocks from the branch, has served 40 years and has handled every phase of the branch's duties except those of the escrow department.

She began in 1926 as the only woman in the branch, which at the time employed eight men. As she retires, there are 14 women and three men at Fourth & Cherry.

AMONG LANDMARK'S NEW MODELS

Located in the East Lakewood area, Landmark Homes is offering some new models of large residences. For $30,875, a 2,425 square foot home is offered for 5 per cent down and on a 30-year loan. The homes include carpeting, landscaping, fencing, sprinklers, patio kitchens and three-car garages. Here is one of the models.

Landmark Showing New Home Models

According to R. B. Sheakley, Landmark Homes sales manager at the La Palma homesite, the all-new model homes are open for public viewing. Sheakley pointed out that choice sites and homes are now available immediately with prices starting at $30,875. He added that the complete Landmark family-ready package is offered that includes: Carpeting, landscaping, custom fencing, sprinklers, patio kitchens and concrete driveways. By taking advantage of these extras that are all included in the purchase price at no extra cost, the buyer actually saves thousands of dollars on "after move-in expenses."

Many buyers are attracted by the low 5 per cent down payment plan in effect. Of course, the new 30-year loan financing is another key factor, Sheakley adds. AN ADDITIONAL feature appreciated is the three-car garages. Other features include: underground utilities, magnificent entries, spacious family rooms, deluxe built-ins, fireplaces custom entry flooring, cultured pullmans, separate service areas, step-down living and family rooms, massive master bedroom suites and convenient dressing alcoves.

Prices range from $30,875 to $32,250. All terms are completely flexible.

THERE WILL NEVER BE A BETTER TIME TO BUY A HOME

You will pay a lot more in just a few months.

It is estimated that increasing labor and materials costs are adding about $1,000 per year to the price of a $20,000 house. And costs are sure to increase faster in the near future. Thousands of families from other areas are coming to Southern California every month. They are looking for places to live and you have to compete with them in increasing numbers. And available land for building homes is shrinking fast. These things plus increasing interest rates points to one conclusion . . . buy that home now. The longer you wait, the more you will pay.

And remember. A house is a good hedge against inflation. The house you own can only increase in value as other prices go up. You're protected.

In the pages of this newspaper you will find the best in home value. . . the size, the floor plan, the location you want. Consult them now. And do something about it. Buy that home now and save money.

WORLD OF WINGS Mooney Handles Well, Economically

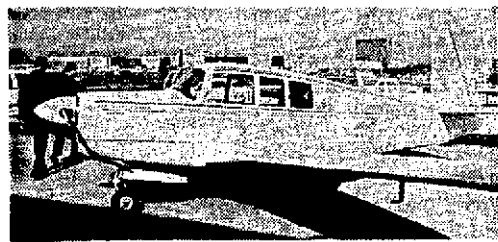

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

Mooney's positive control gimmick has just gained another convert.

This standard equipment stability system is, by now, nothing new but we hadn't gotten around to trying it—or flying a Mooney, for that matter—until recently in a flight with Marvin McNatt, general manager of Pacific Mooney at Long Beach Airport.

We put a Mooney Executive 21 in steep climbing turns, with the control wheel button pressed which deactivates the system, then let go to see what would happen.

The Mooney swung slowly back to wings-level, the nose oscillated up and down three times through about 1,500 feet of air and we wound up with a few hundred feet of altitude lost—but right side up. Amazing.

ONE THING ABOUT IT we did not like. There's no switch to turn the darn thing off, so you can use it only when you need it. As McNatt says, the habit of depressing the button when maneuvering is probably quickly formed, but we still see no reason why it's necessary.

Also, operating Mooney's standard retractable gear takes a bit of betting used to—quite a bit, as a matter of fact. We invariably got hung up in the middle of throwing the lever, or couldn't get it locked up or down without getting mad and letting go of the airplane to work on it. An optional electric gear is only $995 and worth it.

Otherwise, we were extremely impressed. The new enlarged cabin gives plenty of room, handling qualities are excellent, workmanship quality above average and performance superb with surprising economy.

Only Seven Big Homes Are Unsold

Only seven "Homes with Imagination" remain to be sold in Hayford Square, La Palma. And these seven include sprinklers, drapes and many other luxury items.

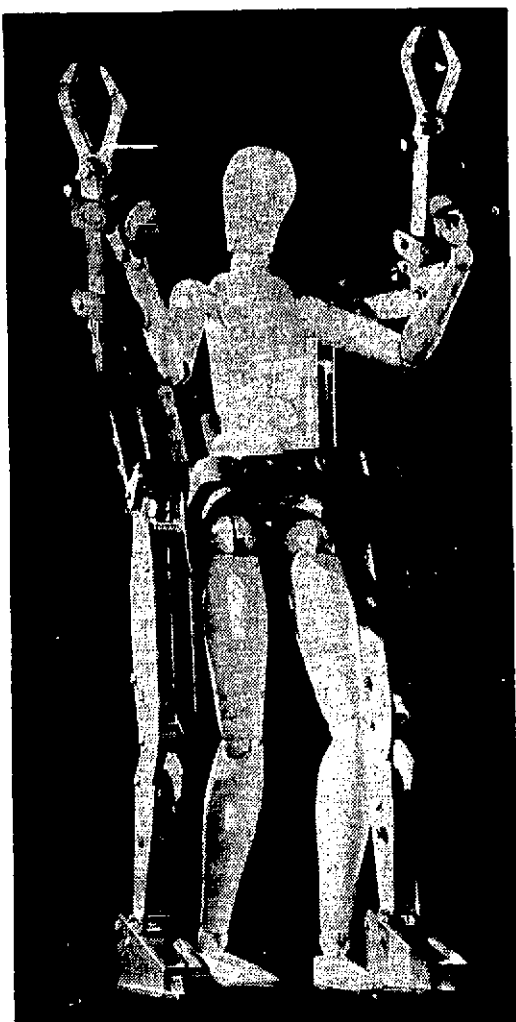

Sterling Development Inc., builders have produced a home that looks and lives like thousands of dollars more than the listed price of $26,325 to $30,925. A token payment of $1 down moves in a veteran. FHA terms available with minimum down for non-veterans.

These homes have up to 22,320 sq. ft. of living area and have three to five large bedrooms and up to three baths. Ceilings and exterior walls are fully insulated, oak floors, floating stairways, oak parquet family rooms, ceramic tile garden kitchens, ceramic tile baths and showers, underground utilities, completely finished garages, plus the largest bonus room to be found (496) square feet.

Hartford Square can be reached by driving out Carson to Walker in Orange County then north on Walker to La Palma and the furnished models.

Underwriters Plan Seminar Feb. 9

The Orange County-Long Beach Chapter, Charter Life Underwriters, will hold their annual seminar Thursday, Feb. 9, at the Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim.

WEAR THIS MACHINE... For Endurance

Instant Super Strength Goes on Market in '68

Special to the Progress Section

Under a joint contract with Army-Navy agencies, a mechanical muscles machine is under development which could make an instant Superman out of any 97-pound weakling.

Worn like an external skeleton, the unique machine will mimic and amplify the movements of its operator, giving him the strength and endurance of a giant.

A research prototype of the muscle machine is now being developed at the General Electric Research and Development Center in Schenectady, N.Y.

WHEN FINISHED, the artificial muscle provider will use an advanced system of levers, control linkages and servomechanisms to permit its wearer to lift a 1500-pound load while exerting only a fraction of this force.

He will be able to perform general load-handling tasks, including walking, lifting, climbing, pushing and pulling. Technically described as a "powered exoskeleton," the machine will be attached to the operator at the feet, forearms and waist.

Potential applications include warehouse and factory operations, bomb-loading and underwater salvage. Although the prototype will be connected to a separate power supply by means of flexible hydraulic lines, later models will have self-contained power units.

KEY TO THE machine's concept is "force feedback" control, which means that proportions of the forces generated or encountered by the machine are duplicated and reflected to the operator.

For instance, if the machine's arm or leg bumps into a wall, the operator feels the impact in his arm or leg. As a result, the machine becomes an extension of the man, giving him the ability to control a multi-motion machine in a natural way and to move loads faster and with greater dexterity than ever before. Training time will be negligible.

The prototype machine is scheduled for delivery in early 1968.

BankAmericard Growth Told

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—gross sales during the past year reached $228,305,345, BankAmericard experienced the greatest growth period in $42.2 million more than 1965. In addition, he said, the number of California cardholders increased nearly 50 per cent during the year, from 1.25 million in 1965 to 1.9 million in 1966.

Kenneth V. Larkin, vice president in charge of BankAmericard activities, said:

Carpeting Included in Price at Premier

According to Frank McFarland, sales agent, carpeting approved by FHA will now be provided in Premier Homes. This 501 continuous filament nylon carpeting consists of long fibers, tightly woven, producing a fantastic wearing quality, reducing dust problem because of non-shed feature of nylon. Buyers may choose from decorator color selections.

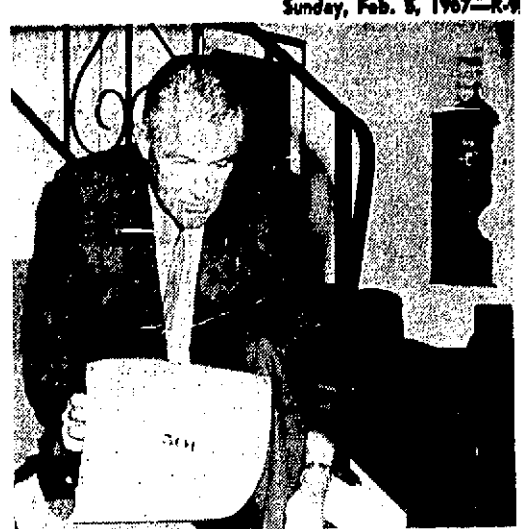

Rear fences, front lawns and shrubs are also included in the purchase price. These three- and four-bedroom homes with two baths and family room are available in a choice of beautiful exteriors. Some models feature completely finished Premium Room with plumbing rough-in, which may be used as hobby or recreation room and wet bar, or converted to two extra bedrooms and third bath.

ROOM ARRANGEMENT has been carefully planned so that every square foot of housing offers useable living area. Living rooms are set off of center hall for privacy and protection from through traffic, with decorator fireplace as the focal point.

Heads S&S Home Sales

Curtis J. (Jerry) Henderson has been appointed general sales and marketing manager of Shapell Land Co., agents for S & S Construction Co., it was announced by Nathan and David Shapell, principals in the firm.

Henderson, a native of San Francisco, during the past seven years has been associated with one of the largest builders in the Bay Area in a similar capacity. He is well known in Southern California building trade circles as a participant in marketing panels at Pacific Builders' conferences in recent years.

In his new capacity Henderson will direct sales and marketing efforts at all S & S developments. Exclusive Bixby Hill and parkside El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach, centrally located College Park in Seal Beach, and the soon-to-be-opened Golden West College Estates in Westminster.

MANAGER

Donald Brown of Long Beach has been appointed manager of East Long Beach branch of Bank of California, not of the Bank of America as was inadvertently stated in last week's Progress Section. Brown succeeds Frank Plummer.

Sneak Preview of New Homes

In response to many inquiries from passersby who have been observing the creation of a new residential community adjacent to the new Golden West Junior College, an invitation is extended to the public to "pre-preview" the community, according to Bud Bierman, project sales manager.

The residential development is Golden West College Estates, and the builder is S & S Construction Co.

"We're not quite ready to show the community in its ultimate beauty," Bierman said, "but homebuyers who don't mind stepping over a sack of cement here and a piece of lumber there have a chance to see the quality that is being put into these homes. They're welcome to make site selections right now, too."

"THE SAME EXCELLENCE of quality that has won awards for S & S communities in the past will be found here. Lath and plaster construction, concrete driveways and underground utilities are indicative of that—from the ground up."

The homes, offered in five basic floor plans and thirty exteriors, are priced from $26,850, and include up to 2,430 square feet of living space.

VA and FHA financing guarantees step-by-step inspections of construction and quality by government agencies, Bierman pointed out. Cal-Vet and conventional terms are also available.

To see the homes, via San Diego Freeway take the Golden West turnoff, go south to McFadden, turn left to the models—opposite Golden West College.

New Patents Add Talking Matchbook

A British company received a patent for radioactive vending machine tokens. The patentee said a "need" has developed for tokens of higher monetary value than the largest coins now in use. As weight, shape and size could easily be imitated, the use of radioactive isotopes is proposed to discourage counterfeiting.

The tokens invented by Stefan Klackowski and three associates for Thomas De La Rie and Co., Ltd., London, contain carbon 14 in proportions to emit particles at a rate within a fixed range.

The inventors say two geiger counters can be so placed that the electric circuits of the vending machine will not operate if the radiation is weaker or stronger than the limits set.

Dr. George J. Kreier Jr. of Philadelphia was awarded a patent this week on fiberglass holds for poured concrete which he manufactures for the building industry.

The lightweight forms are lined with materials designed to prevent them from sticking when they are removed from the hardened concrete and to enable them to be used repeatedly.

A retired machinist has invented an attachment that makes micrometer gauges easier to manipulate. Such gauges are used in industry to measure height, width or thickness down to a thousandth of an inch.

James E. Barry Sr. of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., got the patent last week. He says that without his improvement 40 turns of the micrometer are needed for an adjustment of one inch and the same number to reverse it. His attachment requires only two turns to the inch.

A thermal garment, originally developed by United Aircraft Corporation as an inner suit for spacemen, is believed to have a potential market among racing drivers, aircraft pilots and divers.

The garment is made entirely of fine plastic tubing. The fabric closely fits the wearer's body. A shorter version covers only the torso.

The patent was granted this week to James H. Hopper of the Hamilton Standard Division's Space and Life Systems Department, Windsor Locks, Conn.

CAUGHT IN RATE WAR

Employee Credit Union Savings Slow

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Preliminary figures suggest that savings in employee credit unions continued to expand last year, but at a slower rate than in 1965. Caught up in a highly competitive rate war with commercial banks and other thrift institutions, the credit unions lost ground.

The average deposit, or "shareholdings" in Federal Employee Credit Unions—so-called because they are chartered by the federal government rather than state authorities—is about $525.

Some of the professionals in the industry argue that credit union deposits are less likely to move in search of higher yields elsewhere precisely because they are relatively small. Another half-point in interest doesn't make all that much difference to the saver.

OTHERS SAY that credit union shareholdings tend to be more stable, say, than savings bank deposits, because they often come off the top of the paycheck in the relatively painless form of payroll deductions.

The regular payroll deduction, in fact, is for many, the prime incentive to open a credit union account. Doing so permits them to save systematically.

The figures suggest that some credit union shareholders have taken advantage of the system by piling up a nest egg under payroll deduction and then moving it into higher-yielding savings banks.

THAT SEEMS to be the reason why Federal Employee Credit Union shareholdings increased only 8.8 per cent through last November, the latest figure available, compared with 13 per cent in the period of 1965.

There are incentives for keeping cash on tap in a credit union, not the least of which, in most cases, is free life insurance.

The insurance covers the life of the saver, usually up to a $2,000 maximum, on a matching basis with every dollar in his account, up to age 55.

FROM 55 TO 65, the insurance coverage drops on a pro-rata basis from 100 per cent to 50 per cent, but only on deposits made after the cut-off point. It remains at 100 per cent on all shareholding bought before age 55.

Credit unions can lend only $750 (plus the value of shareholdings) on an unsecured basis and can make secured loans of as much as $10,000.

The interest rate at least competitive with those charged by commercial banks and are often lower.

THE PACKAGE usually includes insurance that automatically liquidates the debt if the borrower dies or becomes permanently disabled.

The single biggest handicap credit unions labor under is the fact that savings shares are not insured as are deposits in savings and commercial banks, or savings and loan shares.

There have been efforts to bring Federal Employee Credit Unions under the umbrella of an organization such as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation but they have not materialized into legislation.

Ryun Breezes in Mile at Indoor Track Meet

By JOHN DIXON

Jim Ryun won't be old enough to vote for 15 months, but he may be the greatest athlete in the world today.

Certainly the 19-year-old Kansas U. sophomore is the most fantastic heart and lung machine in the track world.

A two-time world record breaker last year, Ryun previewed 1967 with an easy victory in the featured race of the eighth L.A. Invitational.

Ryun let the others do the work, took the lead when he wanted it, won like a sure thing.

Dave Sirl of New Zealand led through a 59.4 quartermile and 2:02.7 half-mile, moved in front briefly at the three-quarter pole in 3:04.8, and then the real racing commenced.

Tom Von Ruden of the 49er Truck Club jumped Ryun with two laps left, and Dyrrol Burleson made it a three-way struggle.

Ryun shifted into high gear on the backstretch of the final go-round, spurred ahead and it was all over.

Ryun was credited with a five-yard victory in 4:02.6, Von Ruden was second in 4:03.3, Burleson third in 4:03.8.

A crowd of 11,346 in the L.A. Sports Arena had plenty to cheer about as one close finish followed another.

Among the major achievements were an American record women's half-mile of 2:10.1 by Doris Brown, a high jump victory at 6-11½ by John Rambo, victory in a thrilling two-mile by Jim Grelle, and an "almost" record in the pole vault by Bob Seagren.

Seagren, a USC sophomore and owner of the hot-house standard of 17 feet, 1 inch, catapulted well over 17-2 on his second attempt, but his pole fell in the wrong direction—into the pit — and suddenly the cheers turned to moans, the success to failure.

Seagren won the event at 16-6, followed by Chris Panico of Greece, Bob Steinhoff and Paul Heglar, all at 16-0.

Gerry Lindgren, constructed like a piece of soggy spaghetti, but blessed with a heart as solid as a shotput, led all but 120 yards of the two-mile.

But they were the most important yards.

Lindgren tried to break it open after the first half-mile with a 62 second quarter, but Grelle and another old-timer, George Young, gradually moved up to hailing distance.

As the brilliant threesome, all former Olympians, began the final 160-yard lap, Lindgren led Grelle by one yard, with Young another two yards to the rear.

Tiny Gerry maintained his advantage around the first curve, but Grelle turned on the jets, zipped in front, and had three yards to spare over Lindgren at the tape. Young was another two yards to the rear. Times were 8:45.0 for Grelle, 8:45.6 for Lindgren 8:45.8 for Young.

"I don't see why anyone should be surprised I won," frowned Grelle. "I've run nine seconds faster than he (Lindgren) has. I expected Lindgren to run in spurts, and when he was unable to repeat that, I felt that I would win. Mexico City? I'll be there—leading a tour."

In the early events, the long jump and 60-yard dash were won by odds-out favorites, while the 60-yard hurdles and women's 60 were surprises.

But the noteworthy news was created by an also-ran.

Jerry Proctor, a 17-year-old Muir High kangaroo, finished second in the long jump, but four of his six flare-outs extended farther than any other high school boy as ever soared, indoors or out.

Proctor had successive efforts of 25-7, 25-10½, 25-2, 25-9½, 25-9¾ and foul. World record holder Ralph Boston took the lead with a 26-3¾ lunge on his third effort, and that was plenty.

Charlie Greene of Nebraska, who hasn't lost a race since Richard Nixon won one, repeated as winner in the 60 sprint but his 6.0 missed the meet record he set a year ago by one-tenth of a heartbeat.

Larry Dunn was second in 6.1. Dunn tried to steal it on the first try, but his rolling start—and decisive lead—were detected and the gallopers had to do it all over.

Barbara Farrell of the L.A. Mercuries captured the women's 60 in meet record tying 6.7 as overwhelming favorite, teammate Marilyn White, never threatened and wandered home fifth.

Richmond Flowers, sophomore at Tennessee U. drubbed a powerhouse field in the 60 hurdles. He was

East Rallies to Win AFL's 'Flood Bowl'

Parilli Spurs Upset With 2 TD Passes

OAKLAND (UPI) — Vito (Bahe) Parilli, 36-year-old dean of the pros, fired a pair of touchdown passes Saturday during a second-half rally which carried the East to a 30-23 victory over the West in the American Football League's All-Star game.

It marked the first win in the five-game series for the East, which went into the game a 7-point underdog and was trailing 23-2 with about 23 minutes left in the contest.

But then the East broke loose for four successive touchdowns with the go-ahead tally coming on a 17-yard pass from the veteran Boston Patriots' quarterback to Charley Frazier of Houston. Frazier caught the ball in a small lake close to the goal line, fell on the seat of his pants, then got up and munched in to break a 23-23 tie.

First downs	8	9

Gino Cappelletti's third conversion gave the East their 30-23 margin and the West never could make it back.

The East intercepted a total of seven passes, five thrown by Flores and two by Dawson. The thefts against Flores tied a game mark which was established against George Blanda of Houston in 1961.

Parilli had narrowed the West's lead to 23-16 with 0:49 left in the third period on a 4-yard scoring toss to Wray Carlton of Buffalo.

LaRusso Suspended by NBA

By DOUG IVES

The Rudy LaRusso caper took a new and unusual twist Saturday when NBA commissioner J. Walter Kennedy announced from New York that LaRusso had been suspended.

Coming more than 24 hours after LaRusso's reinstatement, the Lakers were naturally miffed by what prompted Kennedy's surprising move.

"Naturally, we were shocked," coach Fred Schaus told the I. P.-T. from Baltimore. "You would have thought any move they made would have come earlier."

Kennedy admitted there was no rule governing his decision, just instinct. He said he acted on requests made both by Baltimore and Detroit, which came out on the short end of the LaRusso trade.

LaRusso's fate will not be known until the Board of Governors meets Thursday, thus meaning he will miss today's game in Boston and a home contest Wednesday.

He also was only a spectator in Baltimore Saturday evening when the Lakers played the Bullets. Neither Schaus nor general manager Lou Mohs would speculate on what the league Limerick on S-3 might do, but both expected that LaRusso would remain a Laker... and an active one.

Meanwhile, Mel Counts, the Bullets' seven-foot center, will leave Oregon Monday to rejoin the Baltimore basketball team, his wife said Saturday.

Counts had been part of the three-way trade that would have sent him to the Lakers. He and Mrs. Counts came to St. Paul, Ore., for a visit at the home of her parents. She said they had shipped their furniture to Los Angeles, thinking the trade was final. It fell through when LaRusso refused to leave the Lakers.

Then if the Lakers hadn't received enough bad news, Jerry Chambers was informed that he will have to report Tuesday to his draft board in Washington D.C. for his physical examination. It's possible Chambers could be inducted before the season is over.

Rudy LaRusso was in Baltimore Saturday night, but he didn't get to play against the Bullets.

Seemingly still shocked by the decision that LaRusso was still under suspension, the Lakers fell prey to a third period bullet rally, falling to the lowly five, 126-119, in a National Basketball Assn. game.

Today the Lakers are in Boston to face the Celtics in a game that will be televised in Los Angeles on Channel 7 at 11 a.m.

RESUMES TODAY (MAYBE)

Wind, Rain Halt Crosby Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — Hideous weather with gale winds, rain and some hail forced cancellation Saturday of third round play in Bing Crosby's $104,500 golf tournament.

The round was rescheduled for today with the final 18 holes going over to Monday.

With scores soaring, sand being blown out of traps and tree limbs breaking, tournament director Jack Tunhill of the Professional Golfers' Assn. ordered cancellation of Saturday's play.

When they resume today, again the pro-amateur teams will be divided among three courses. Monday the finals will be played at Pebble Beach.

The few full scores posted in the third round were canceled and so were partial results such as the five-over-par 37 for the 13 holes Jack Nicklaus had played at Spyglass Hill.

Nicklaus led by two strokes at 142 after the second round and was the only one of the 168 pros under par for 36 holes.

"I'm disappointed," he said when the cancellation was announced. "Even though I probably would take an 80, I believe I'd still be leading the tournament in this kind of weather."

He said Spyglass was still playable, being somewhat protected from the weather, but added, "I think the committee used good judgment in canceling the play because Pebble Beach and Cypress Point must be terrible."

The pros are shooting for a $16,000 top prize with $2,700 to the professional on the winning pro-am team.

Wind gusts were up to 60 miles an hour on the points along the seaside courses and at one point power went temporarily out in the surrounding Del Monte forest.

Some pros who left early in the teeth of the storm were reported as much as 19 strokes over par for their first nine holes.

Jack Nicklaus draws a laugh from gallery as he gestures and asks: "This far? Or this far?" By-play occurred on fifth at Spyglass Hill Saturday after Nicklaus' ball was knocked away from pin by Bob Sterling's tee shot. Nicklaus was allowed to move ball back to its approximate position. He then shot birdie on three-par hole. But, the effort went for naught as weather conditions put a halt to Crosby National Pro-Am.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

'Will Get Fish if It Kills Us'

Gerald (Jerry) Chrisman, new chairman of the Long Beach Yacht Club Anglers, is a very busy man, running his marine fuel dock and restaurant at 62nd Place and Bay Shore Walk, but he says that 1967 must have some interesting fishing moments or life won't be worth living.

The Anglers call their chief "chairman . . . instead of 'president,'" but it matters little for Jerry should be an excellent leader for them this year, which will be only their fourth since organization.

Jerry succeeded Charles S. Cox, who despite open-heart surgery and other problems in 1966, pushed the club to another remarkable year. The club, which doesn't exactly own the world-record book yet, is well on its way.

Jerry and his wife, Virginia, a superb angler in her own right live at 6201 Bay Shore Walk, just above their place of business. They have reared three children to adulthood: a daughter, Mrs. Diana Bagnard, whose husband is the son of Lyle Bagnard, who fished with Zane Grey many times, and sons Gary and Robert.

The Chrismans' boat is the 43-foot cruiser, Diana, named for their daughter and which figured in some outstanding fishing exploits last year. Top performance was Virginia's catch of a 172½-pound marlin on the final day of the Anglers' billfish tournament in October. And the marlin's bill had been broken off.

CHRISMAN'S LOVE OF FISHING came easily. He was born in Colorado, but his family moved to Southern California before he knew how to hold a fishing rod. He grew up in the South Bay area and his father, Roy, operated a live-bait concession out of Redondo Beach. Jerry worked on the Hermosa Beach barge while in grade school.

His interest in fishing grew when the family moved to Long Beach in 1941. He has been a member of the Long Beach Yacht Club for five years. Membership in that club is necessary to become a participant in the LBYC Anglers group.

Chrisman plans to continue the club's special charters for albacore in addition to supporting the annual billfish tournament, started last year as a part of the International Sea Festival at Long Beach. Jerry puts it this way: "We're going to have fun fishing if it kills us."

J. W. (Spud) Martin, who has a winter's schedule laid out on a newly purchased hull, will be vice chairman and Ed McClendon will be secretary. Other directors are Clarence Hunt, Mel Marsh, Bill Muntz, Mike Callan, the retiring president, Cox, and the LBYC's new commodore, Don Horton.

bership of the club had soared to a total of 141 in 1966. Cox, in his swan-song appearance, said that the membership of the Anglers had come quite close to some records. He said that the trophy banquet would be held in mid-March.

THE CURRENT SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Recreational Vehicle Show, under way now through Jan. 29 at the Anaheim Stadium, gives one an idea of what to expect from Orange County's largest city in the months and years to come.

When H. Werner Buck, the Southland's foremost producer of sports shows, announced that the Trailer Coach Assn. and the Recreational Coach and Equipment Assn. were putting 300 or more units into the Anaheim Stadium for the season's biggest show of its kind, we wondered just where all those units would be placed without infringing upon the green turf of the California Angels' infield.

It was done with the construction of new type tents which Buck designed for the stadium. I toured the layout Friday afternoon at its press opening and I believe that I covered as much ground as any outfielder before the afternoon was finished.

Actually, the show is a circular exhibition, starting in the curving stadium concourse on the ground floor and going through the moon-shaped tent in the outfield, then back into the concourse again.

If you are in the market for campers that sleep two to 12 persons, travel trailers that have everything, including the kitchen sink, and low-slung tent trailers that can be put together in minutes, take a look at the Anaheim show. It's well worth your time. Wear warm clothing, the tents are heated by big gas burners, but the concourse is a bit cold.

MOORE LEAGUE BOOM

Wrestling Success Minus Dramatics

By FRANK LIEBERMAN

After a 25-year absence, wrestling has returned to Long Beach high schools and unlike its professional counterpart a prerequisite of dramatics is not required.

Surprisingly, the interest in the new sport has been very high, not only on the participation level, but with spectator backing. We've had fine tournaments at our matches," noted Jordan coach Ross McDonald. We've almost filled out gym on a couple of occasions and considering that we wrestle in the afternoon I think that's great."

But the turnout at Jordan may be for another reason — the Panthers are on top of the Moore League after first round matches. It wasn't until this past Friday that Jordan suffered its first league defeat, 52-10, at the hands of Poly.

Earlier in the week the bulky, concise McDonald told the Independent, Press-Telegram his views on the sport. The main thing it does for most of the boys is give them self-expression and a chance to do something by themselves.

"WHEN I HELD tryouts I set down certain rules, one being that all boys on the team would have to have their hair cut short. I lost four right after that statement," laughed the coach. "Not everyone on our team, or the others in the league, are born wrestlers or in that matter athletes."

"But they all seem to want to stick it out and learn."

Asked where most of his squad came from, McDonald answered, "I thought I'd get most of them from the football team, but the majority came from P. E. classes and other sports. We have a couple of football players, notably Lee Fair who has gone undefeated in league matches so far."

"Wrestling gives all boys of any size, height and weight a chance to partake in a sport. The different divisions allow the boy to meet his equal. In football or basketball you really aren't given that chance," added the mentor.

McDonald and his assistant Dick Foat agree that strength isn't going to make a good wrestler, in fact, the coaches list strength as the last necessity. They feel that speed, balance, and savvy come before, though they do admit the latter certainly does help on many occasions.

For the novice, a high school wrestling match has three 2-minute periods. The initial one starts with the boys standing, in the referee position, while the other two start with them on the mat as pictured above. The remainder of the above sequence shows the basic switch.

McDONALD'S lone complaint about the return of the sport was that it was organized so late, making it difficult to obtain practice matches.

"We just weren't given sufficient time to get practice matches. If fact, I got raked over the coals for one that I did schedule," added McDonald.

It seems that the coach of the St. John Bosco wrestling team called and asked since they were also in their first year of the sport if Jordan would like to have a match.

"Unaware of the Long Beach Board of Education's policy on private schools because I don't live in the Long Beach area and didn't see your stories on the subject, I accepted the match," explained McDonald.

"We won easily 51-3, but the next day I really heard about it from our school officials. I told them I knew nothing about the policy and explained that nothing happened, and of the problems of scheduling, but it all was a waste. They just didn't seem to care."

"I'M NOT CONCERNED about the talk. It doesn't bother me that much. The boys will be hurt by it. We're new in this sport and we need to find an equal to wrestle if we want to improve and hold interest," McDonald said, "Let's not kid ourselves, Jordan needs a winner and we can have one in this sport; otherwise, as in football, the interest will drop."

"It's a shame that the officials of the Board won't help."

But despite the problems, McDonald is proud of his team and of his confidence builder. "When the boys win it is great and when they lose they feel bad. But unlike other sports they have only one person to blame and that's themselves. If they want to improve, they've got to do it themselves and that's what everyone on every team in this league wants to do."

MAYOR SAM GETS OYSTERS FROM RIVAL

It was finally resolved Saturday that mayor Sam Yorty is not a betting man.

Last November there was quite a fuss over whether or not Yorty had made a bet with Mayor Theodore McKeldin of Baltimore on the outcome of the World Series.

Yorty subsequently sent McKeldin some California wine, but insisted he was not paying off a bet. Yorty maintained that the wine was merely a good will gesture, and had nothing to do with the fact that the Baltimore Orioles had trounced the Dodgers.

Today, McKeldin sent Yorty 170 pounds of Chesapeake Bay oysters which arrived on a plane from Baltimore at International Airport.

An accompanying letter from McKeldin said: "Since we did not make a wager on the game and I would not want anyone to think you lost a bet and were paying off with a gift of California wine, and since we feel you suffered enough in the loss of the Series, and should not be deprived of a true gastronomic treat, I am shipping you the finest oysters in the world from the waters of Chesapeake Bay."

McKeldin added, "You will find our oysters every bit as good as our Orioles."

Signal SOS for volunteers

By Joyce Christensen
Staff Writer

With a nostalgic backward glance at cramped quarters, exposed pipes, bulkheads that need constant avoiding and paint that's a little tired of hanging on, Red Cross volunteers are about to abandon the Navy hospital ship, the USS Haven.

Along with regular personnel, they are in the process of moving across town to the striking structure of concrete, glass and steel that is the new U.S. Naval Hospital of Long Beach.

Scheduled to open in early February, the new facility will house 350 patients, as compared to the 250-bed capacity of the beloved, but now-outdated Haven.

Of vital concern to the American Red Cross, which traditionally conducts volunteer service in Navy hospitals, will be the demand for some 100 to 150 volunteers—more than five times the number required aboard the Haven.

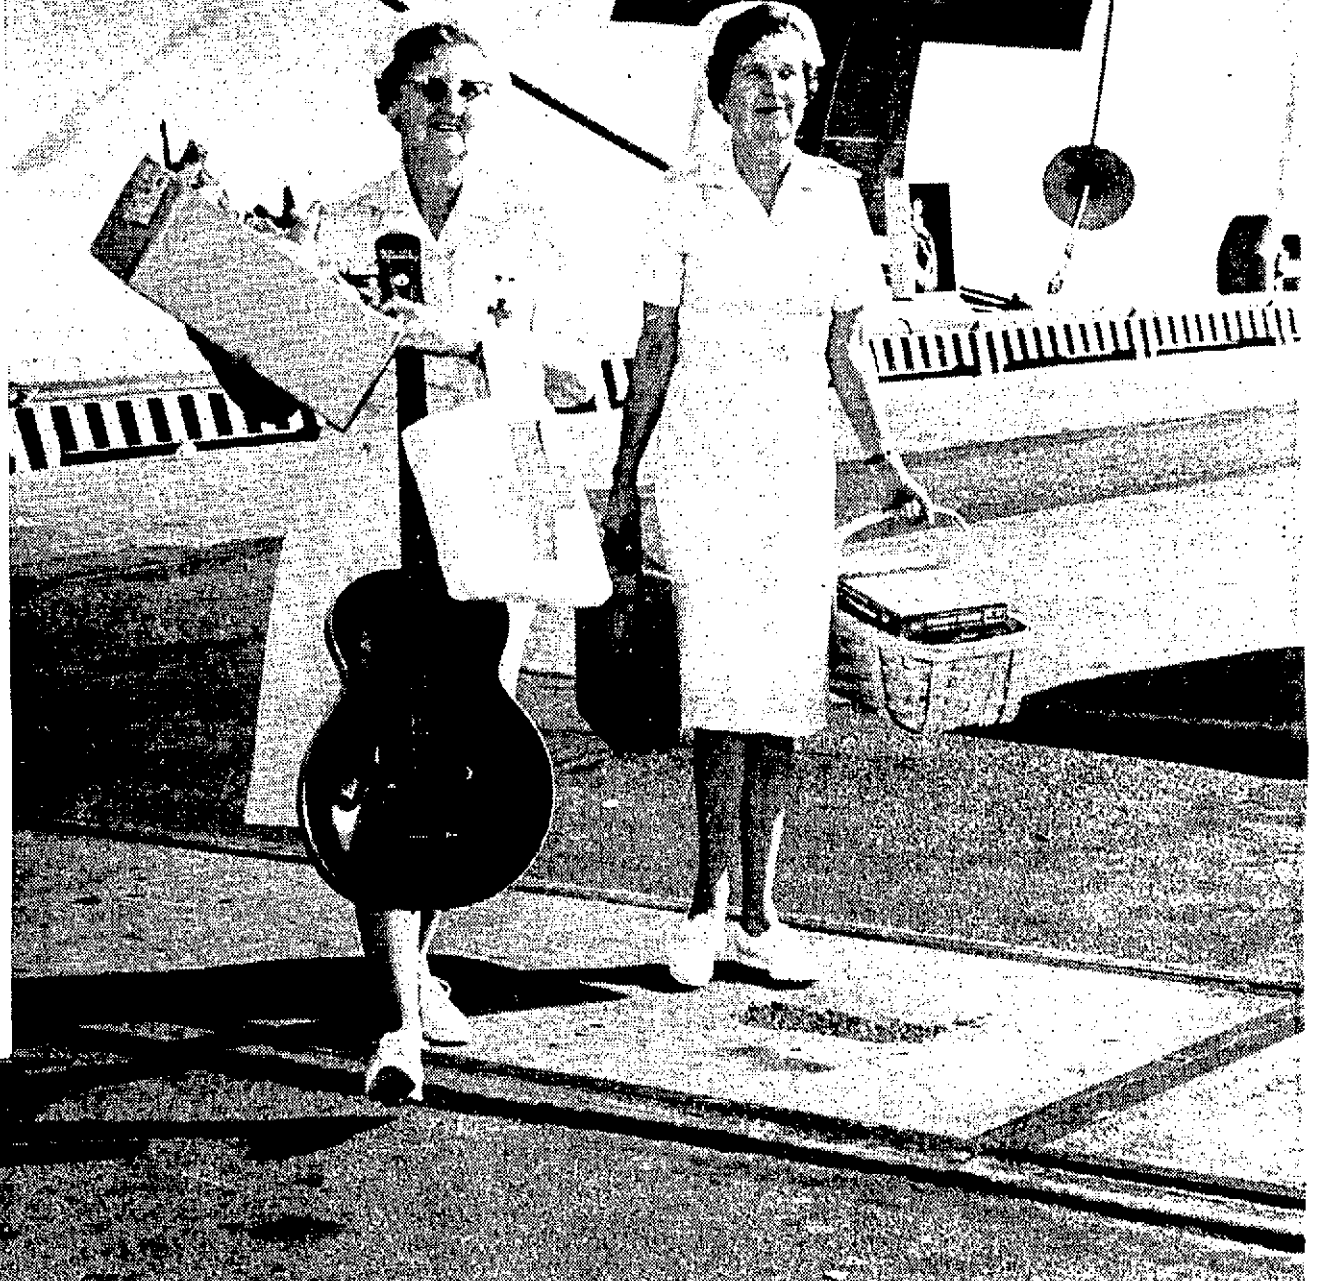

Long Beach ARC Chapter, jurisdictional unit for recruiting volunteers, hastily is counting noses of stand-by volunteers while compiling lists of additional need for service in other areas.

Would YOU like to become a volunteer at the new hospital?

You can—simply by calling Long Beach Chapter for an interview, then attending an all-day class in basic introduction to be given Feb. 3 by Mrs. George R. Imboden, chairman of volunteers. Additional classes and specialized

WORLD OF FASHION SKIRTS THE ISSUE

Battle of the hemline wages on all fronts

By Mary Ellis Carlton
Director, Women's News

After previewing New York's spring fashion collections and pouring over wire stories from the Italian showings, here's one conclusion:

These are rough times for store buyers!

It's a season when anything goes... when nothing—not even nudity—is barred.

It's no longer classified information that Dame Fashion has been overthrown. No longer does she dictate what length skirts fashionable femmes will wear, where they'll wear the pants—or when!

In New York

In New York, for instance, where press showings were concluded a week ago, the fashion platform for spring ran something like this:

—Skirts will continue to diminish.

—Pants will be acceptable to everyone, even maitre d's.

—Paper will revolutionize utility fashions, but not necessarily couture fashions.

—Nearly every designer will have a hand in improving the chic or archaically dressed men.

ONE MORE MINISCULE MINI ITEM: Moscow's new fashions have now switched superradical or deviationist conservative (depending on how you look at them) by introducing the first Soviet miniskirt. It will brave Russia's Arctic winter with hemlines all of two inches above sturdy Communist knees (11 inches has been common in Britain this season).

—And Mrs. John F. Kennedy will remain on her fashion pedestal.

All this was made clear at a press luncheon attended by this country's most influential apparel makers. Their discussion with the nation's fashion reporters was the closing gun of a two-week showing of spring collections previewed for the press by the New York Couture Group and the American Designer Series.

GASTON BERGELOT, French couturier for New York's house of Christian Dior, expressed hope that the opening European collections might promise some hem line surprise.

But American designers, and particularly Oleg Cassini (Jackie Kennedy's official designer during her fashion reign in the White House), offered consolation that the eye would eventually get used to the escalating skirt.

"As skirts get shorter we will concentrate on dressing the leg," said Oscar de la Renta, who does so with glittering knee pants tights and silver stockings in his current collection.

He complimented Rudi Gernreich, of topless bathing suit fame, for paving the way with bright leotards and striped stockings to match his dresses. His latest collection concentrates the eye on the leg and gives total coordination by means of pasties and decals from chin to thigh-high hemline. (What makes them "coordinated"? They match his almost-dresses.)

The belted waistline will return, Donald Brook primed. "We have had all the little shifts, skimmers and baby dresses we can stand. I think we will go back to what nature

WILD WAVES

Three cheers — post-holiday hibernation ending

By IOLA MASTERSTON
Society Editor

DRAWING UP blueprints to build a bigger chapter for Southern California American Institute of Architects in '67 is a job which has just been handed over to our own Ed Killingsworth.

He was installed president at a gala and formal dinner dance in the Venetian Room of the Ambassador Hotel. Ed tells me this 72-year-old chapter is second largest in the U.S.

By the year's end, there's no question but what membership will be up to 1,000 architects. Currently it is membered by one fifth of all architects in California and a thirtieth in the U.S.

Attending the swish party with Ed was wife Laura, plus their sons, Greg and Kim, with dates Peggy Woods and Prudy Lee. It was a wild, wonderful evening said Ed, with the wildest saved for last—the battle home, via freeway, through the pea soup fog. Now begins the big work as Ed coordinates the chapter's 47 committees. That's right, 47!

THE ART of putting on a jazzy party is main concern of Friends of the Museum this week as they block out plans for a 10th anniversary celebration next Saturday at the home of Joe and Nancy Byrne, 270 St. Joseph Ave.

In charge of the cocktail hour and potluck dinner is Irene Daniel, who'll be present with husband, Jerry. Among founding members who have signed up for party night are Dr. Sumner and Dolores Trent, Al and Phyllis Schmidt, Don and Sandy Gill, Dr. Gar and Pauline Sinow, Sandy and Jane Helm, Marv and Veronica Tinscher, Jim and Mary Jane Edmons, Jack and Carol Feeney.

Special guests will be Jason Wong, acting director of the Long Beach Museum, plus staff members. A few other "art dealers" who'll paint the night happy will be

Paul and Jackie Southgate, Bill and Annette Corcoran, Dr. Sam and Addie Pilchman, Bob and Ginny Hall and Ted and Marie Baird.

To add to the party mood, Nancy and assistants have been hanging all manner of paintings, her own and borrowed, around the house. That could lead to some peppery art critic conversation—a diversion this gang dotes on.

IF ALL went according to Hoyle and Horrocks, Pat should be home by today. Pat Horrocks not Hoyle. She has been a hospital guest at that ether lodge known as Memorial the past week following surgery.

GETTING SQUARED away for whopping goodwill tour of South America are members of Long Beach Mounted Police plus members of Long Beach's sister city committee to Valparaiso, Chile. At least 55 will make the trip, all by commercial planes. First they go to Rio, Brazil, where our famous Mounted Police riders will appear in a huge parade, part of Rio's world-renowned carnival season preceding Lent.

Trip begins Jan. 31. After Rio, where they'll all be royally entertained at lots of receptions, balls and luncheons, they'll fly on to Sao Paulo, Lima Peru, Valparaiso (big doings there, you can be sure) as well as Santiago and Buenos Aires, Argentina, before returning home.

The 20 riders who will be featured Feb. 5 in the opening carnival parade and again Feb. 7 in the Parade of Allegorical Floats of the High Society, will take their fancy saddles, other gear, but will be provided horses down there. Caramba! Hope those Brazilian steeds know a couple of pertinent English words, hopefully whoa and giddyup.

Some going are Andy Zurick, MP's president, Ward Thompson, captain, Ollie and Virginia Brown, Tom Gold, Tom Cole, Fred Dean, Miles and Lois Perovich, Fred and June Taylor, the Jack Duns, John and Dorothy Flanagan (of Rolling Hills), Bill Cozart, Bud Ridings, Mayor Ed

HURRAH NIGHT, FULL OF CONGRATULATIONS. NGW THE WORK REALLY BEGINS . . . Laura and Ed Killingsworth (left) are congratulated by Henry Wright, past national president of American Institute of Architects, and Mrs. Wright as Ed took office as president of Southern Cal. Chapter, AIA. It is second largest chapter in U.S.

Wade, Ted and Sue Cruchley, Jim and Evelyn Pine, Carl and Betty Hess, Jim and Sue Bragg, Jim and Pauline Worsham and Dr. Carl and Florence Bishop.

Joyce Jacobowsky will head up the sister city contingent which will include Helen and Loyd Smith, Irma McCall, Maria Louisa Evans, Cathy and Manuel Echeverria.

Manuel and Cathy will go directly to Chile to meet the Long Beach gang on arrival, then will stop over in Santiago, where Manuel was born, to visit relatives.

AFTER NEARLY six months of around-the-world travels, the Bocks, Dr. Gus and Helen, are back.

They went on a Swedish freighter to Sweden, where they fanned out, by ship, train or plane, visiting Lapland, cruising at one time above the Arctic Circle, touring in both Sweden and Norway. They flew to Stuttgart, Germany, and picked up a Mercedes 230-SL, a gift for Helen.

Then by car they drove through Switzerland, Italy, Austria and along the entire coast of Yugoslavia. After this, they shipped the car back to the U.S. and boarded another freighter, this time a Norwegian vessel, living aboard for five weeks as they visited ports in Portugal, Spain, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Singapore and Hong Kong, where they debarked to spend a couple weeks ashore.

On still another Norwegian freighter, they went to Japan where they jumped ship to tour Nippon, mostly by air, before rejoining freighter for the voyage home.

Needless to say, the Bocks dote on freighter travel—have their next trip all charted. In two, maybe three, years they'll head off for a 180-day cruise through the South Seas, New Zealand, Australia, Africa and around and about Europe again.

A POPULAR type shower, an around-the-clock affair, was given by co-hostesses Francine Collins, Marcia Ellis and Phyl Norris for bride-to-be Cathy Gotfriedson, who weds Peter Wisheyn Jan. 28.

Guests to such showers are given various hours and bring gifts appropriate for the bride to use at such hours.

So if you get an invitation to this type of party, remember the hour you are given refers to the type of gift—not to the time you're expected to arrive. Look elsewhere for party time.

AS A gag, Lois Richards showed up at a neighborhood coffee party at home of Margaret (Mrs. Perry) Olive wearing pajamas, a robe and her new mink stole. Lois, who received the mink from husband Richard, always had said if she got such a fur she'd sleep in it. Of course, a few milk men, postmen, other passers-by were startled by Lois walking along in her ensemble, but she made her point to everyone's glee.

No telling what she'll wear to the gang's next morning coffee. Son Jack, serving in the Air Force in Tokyo, has written he purchased some material in Tokyo, some on the base and is having his houseboy's mother make her a gift, which will arrive in mid-February. It could be anything from formal kimono to a tablecloth. Whatever, she'll no doubt model it.

WORK IS well underway for this year's second annual California Sea Festival at Long Beach, to take place Aug. 12-20. Sandy Kemp, festival director, returned from business trip to both Miami and New York where he found the weather great, both places, and the climate favorable for getting some fine publicity for the festival. ABC will telecast world champion water skiers and drag boat racers, who will compete here during the sea days, on its Wide Wide World of Sports.

RAN INTO Millie and Frank Vessels, in town to dine at Victor Hugo's. Not often we see them around—too busy with their Los Alamitos Quarter Horse Track, their stables and golf course.

Anyway, Frank was sporting a cast on his right arm. He was leading a couple of quarter horse mares bought at a horse auction off the ramp when he slipped and broke a bone in his wrist.

Millie has some exciting plans. She and good friend Marty (Mrs. Jack) Schwabacher of San Francisco are going on a tiger hunt in India. On this safari, as well as the month they'll spend there, they'll be guests of His Highness Brijrah Singh and his wife of Kotah in Rajasthan.

The Schwabachers entertained the royal Indian family quite extensively when they visited the U.S. three years ago. Frank hopes to join the gals for the tiger hunt but not the rest of their travels, which will include tours of the Orient and Europe.

WHAT WOULD AN ARTY PARTY BE WITHOUT A LOT OF ARTY TOUCHES? . . . Nancy Byrne (left), Dolores Trent, Patty McCarty hang up one of many additional pictures to grace Byrne home for Friends of Museum party. P. S. Dolores is no midget nor are other two giants. Nancy and Patty were both standing on ladders.

Warren Joneses to live in Long Beach

A reception in Petroleum Club followed 8 p.m. nuptials Friday in St. Luke's Lutheran Church uniting Kathleen Jeffers and L. Warren Jones.

The daughter of John Jeffers Jr. of Norwalk wore a floor-length gown of velvet. A velvet pillbox rim secured her floor-length veil dotted by lace roses.

Mrs. Paul Johnson was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Judy Peterson, Diane Silverthorne and Mrs. Dave Marquette.

The son of Mrs. John Dee, 2935 Vista Ave., asked Dave Marquette to be his best man. Ushers were John Matson, Ray Hiland, Rick Traver and Bill Smith. Tommy Green lighted candles.

Upon returning from a trip to San Francisco, Monterey and Carmel, the newlyweds will be at home at 519 Ximeno Ave.

RED CROSS Recruitment program on

training will be provided later at the hospital.

Cmdr. Sue Smoker (NC) USN, chief nurse at the Haven the past year and already established in the same capacity at the new hospital, estimates a minimum of 16 volunteers will be needed daily in outpatient clinics. Needed are receptionists, Clerical helpers and, on stand-by duty, volunteers for audio, radiology, X-ray and other clinics.

Personal services to patients—writing letters, reading, shopping — will comprise the largest volunteer service. A minimum of 10 recreation volunteers ("games and handicrafts can do wonders for both rehabilitation and morale") will be needed, as will dental assistants and social welfare aides.

"OFF WITH THE OLD, on with the new" for volunteers also includes a new uniform — one style for all services. The two-piece uniform is of crisp blue and white corded cotton and dacron with a simple Red Cross emblem on left blouse front.

Projected dates for putting the new facility (located just west of the San Gabriel Freeway off Carson Street and Pioneer Boulevard) into operation are:

Opening of the hospital on or near Feb. 1; transfer of patients from the Haven, Feb. 5 to 10. New patients will be admitted "as soon as feasible."

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Doormat wife is wise

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

About a year ago my husband of 20 years was unfaithful to me. He swore it was the first time since we'd been married—and maybe it was—or wasn't.

Anyway, he was very contrite—I guess guys always are when they are caught—and swore no more running around, no more drinking, he'd go to church and all that.

Ha-ha-ha, only recently he and another woman registered as Mr. and Mrs. at a nearby hotel. I have proof, although I haven't mentioned it to him yet. I just want to see how far he'll go thinking he can pull the wool over Mama's eyes.

It's no isolated incident any more to find the ladies' calling cards in his car—lipstick, earrings, hobby pins, once even a girdle.

size 38, believe it or not.

Now Molly, what hope is there for our marriage? But what the Samuel Hill to do? He says he loves me. I love him. But he lies and he cheats, and he thinks he has me "snowed" with his promises.

What would you do?

FED TO THE GILLS

DEAR FED:

Fed to the Gills—or Girls—which?

What would I do? Well for one thing I'd get me the best lawyer at hand and call a halt to his shenanigans. And why? Simply because I couldn't live with a man who treated me as though I were some dumb bunny posing like a hearth rug! Or doormat! Or old shoe!

To heck with him. It's all very well to be broad-minded and try to overlook broken marriage vows, but ye Gnds, there is a limit and I'd say you had reached it.

Let your lawyer speak for you—he's not likely to get the snow job. Let the bully know it's straighten up and fly right or else he can move his overnight bag (no pun) to any motel he chooses.

Get going, gal!

Every little letter has meaning all its own

By Iola Masterson Society
Editor

Harry Silvers is a man who can read your character from A to Z. And he does it by the way you write from A to Z—including all the letters in between.

Do you cross a T with a heavy or a light slash? How big do you make the loop on an L or an H? These are among the clues that reveal your character and personality.

A practicing handwriting expert for 40 years, he has testified in both civil and criminal court cases and has been consulted by the FBI and Scotland Yard.

HE PROVED himself a ball of energy with a lively sense of humor when he appeared as speaker for Long Beach Medical Auxiliary.

Silvers claims people literally can change their temperament by changing some of their writing habits. For instance, the person who consistently writes downhill tends to have a bleak outlook on life. If that person will spend just three or four minutes each day practicing to correct the slant his writing takes, from down to level, with some of it taking a perky upswing, his mental attitude will definitely improve, the expert said.

Now, said the speaker, the ones who constantly write uphill are the high mood people, always see things on the bright side. "Not so good," said Silvers. Optimism is fine but this denotes over-optimism which isn't always realistic.

He concluded that those who fluctuate, writing a little up and a little down, are the best balanced.

SLANT OF individual letters in writing tells a lot about personality, too. Letters formed straight up and down indicate emotional discipline. If, under all moods, the writer continues this pattern he is too disciplined. Left slanted writers? "Dynamite," said Silvers. Slant left writing puts the body, hand and head in defensive, unrealistic position, indicates suppressed emotion, mental conflict. The slant to the right is the natural slant and the best. It invariably, he said, is the extrovert's writing.

About those Ts. If very lightly crossed it is the work of one with little will power. When more heavily crossed, it signifies a person of will power who enjoys responsibility, likes to rule. Very heavy T crossers should beware they don't push people around too much. T bar slanted up is evidence of qualities of the dreamer or idealist. Crossed downward suggests a materialistic soul.

Silver said that those who securely close the letter A can be trusted to keep a secret but, those who leave it open, tend to gossip.

OTHER points he made: Those who form large capital letters have a sense of the dramatic and those who write with a semi-broken pattern, with various letters disconnected in a given word, have intuitive minds with many showing actual psychic traits.

People who make no loop at all on such letters as Y, P or G are very practical. Writing in a semi or full block form indicates an artistic bent. People who write in large letters like display, are natural born hosts or hostesses. They also are apt to exaggerate. Small writing denotes a person of keen observation, good at detail and one with scientific skills.

If your regular penmanship has rather wide spacing between letters it points out you are a generous type but if the space is cramped you're slow with a buck even if you have plenty of them to splurge.

The one who joins his letters with smoothly flowing round links is a kind and gentle type. The less rounded the linking process, the firmer, more resolute the person.

Silvers gave many additional writing pointers but, for now and here, that's about the ABC of it.

Long Beach is the largest port in Southern California
HANDWRITING expert said Betty Botzbach's signature (left), done without ever lifting pen from paper, proved she could think her way out of tight places.

Long Beach is the largest port in Southern California

"IMAGINATIVE, extroverted, fine sense of rhythm," said expert of Mrs. Charlotte Smith from sample of her handwriting.

Charlotte C. Smith

Long Beach is the largest port in Southern California.

Elizabeth P. Frankenfild

HE CALLED BETTY FRANKENFELD FLUENT OF THOUGHT AND SPEECH ... she also has sense of humor, Silvers said, deducted she's idealist, due to upswing at end of letters.

Beauty Hint

To give your complexion a delightful bloom use this simple beauty trick. Damp a cloth in lemon Jelvyn freshener and press over your face moulding it to your features. Lie back for a few minutes whilst the lemon tones and refines the skin. Now to vitalize and hold the bloom, smooth on your oil of Olay and keep it there always under your make-up to protect against wrinkle-dryness and to give the skin a day-long dewy look.

FASHIONABLE SETTING FOR A FASHIONABLE SCHOOL... Wilma Hastings checks floor plans for fashion modeling and finishing school she will open Feb. 1 at 530 E. Wardlow Road.

Long Beach's fashion arbiter changes hats, headquarters

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Maintaining fashion headquarters in downtown Long Beach for 22 years started to become old hat last fall to Wilma Hastings—the woman whose name is synonymous with fashion and elegance.

And if there's anything Long Beach's champion of good-grooming won't abide, it's an old hat. She not only wears chic chapeaux to luncheons and teas, but to and from work and even around the corner for a snack. What better way to start a new year than with a new school in a new building—particularly when the impressive two-story structure is the property of your brother?

This was the feminine logic that led Mrs. Hastings' decision to open her new fashion modelling and finishing school Feb. 1 at 530 E. Wardlow Road.

Classes will be conducted on second floor of California Funding Corp. building, a contemporary structure designed by Long Beach architect George M. Montierth, which houses business offices of Mrs. Hastings' brother, Roy Dial, on the ground level.

Elegant interiors and panoramic views of Long Beach afforded by the new locale undoubtedly will reflect basic aims of Mrs. Hastings' 10-week self-improvement courses.

"MY GOAL isn't so much to train models as to prepare women for richer, more rewarding lives through developing self-confidence by a better understanding of themselves," said Mrs. Hastings.

"As an individual becomes aware of the correct way to dress and behave, she discovers her real interests, what she most enjoys in her work. It is this realization of quality in appearance and bearing that lead to success."

In an attempt to further improve her courses, Mrs. Hastings intends to set a minimum of 12 to 15 students for each class. "Learning techniques of high fashion modelling seems to be the icing on the cake," she said. "Students achieve that final touch of poise once they feel they've mastered body coordination and balance."

"REAL PROOF of the pudding, however, is the self-confidence gained through lessons in figure control conversation and speech development, etiquette and fashion coordination."

Mrs. Hastings pointed out the need to develop charm and self-assurance is not restricted to young women, adding that some of her most enthusiastic students are those in two classes at Leisure World in Seal Beach.

Her new headquarters will further another Hastings ambition: To offer her school as setting for small cultural gatherings such as music recitals and lectures.

Invitations for an open house early in February are being mailed to former students, associates and friends. Considering that more than 10,000 women have passed through the portals of her school during the past 22 years, we predict a full house.

Gold stars to convene

Mrs. Olive Anderson, president of Long Beach Chapter, American Gold Star Mothers Inc., will head a delegation of members leaving Tuesday for Santa Barbara to attend the bi-annual board meeting of Department of California, Arizona and Nevada.

Accompanying Mrs. Anderson will be Leona Stolz, department custodian of records, Elsie Scruggs, Tarcila Howard, Maudie Miller, Clemmie Lee, Katherine Patricia, Martha Murphy, Mae Upton and Blanche Rhoades.

Holy Family Parents note benefit dansant

Plans are under way by Holy Family Adoptive Parents League for its major fund-raising event of the year, the third annual dinner dance to be presented Feb. 4 in Statler Hilton Hotel Pacific Ballroom, Los Angeles.

A 7 p.m. social hour in the Sierra Room will precede the 8 p.m. dinner. Music for dancing will be played by Lex Golden and his orchestra. Comedy magic routines will be provided by Senor Jose Frackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Caruso are honorary cochairmen. Walter O'Malley is patron of the Holy Family Adoption Service benefit.

The adoption service is second largest private agency in California and has placed over 2,600 infants in permanent homes in the past 17 years. Additional information may be obtained from Elvin G. Norley, 1921 W. Hall St., Santa Ana.

THE MINI LOOKS OF SPRING

Men, better hem up those jackets

intended a modern woman to look like."

AS FOR PANTS — party kinds, slack suits, knicker or culotte suits—designers feel they have done such a good job of retaining femininity that all objections will be withheld... even by headwaiters at posh places—like 21 and the Colony in New York, who hitherto have hesitated to admit a lady in any kind of skirt that takes a divided stand.

Because workmanship is costly, paper is not practical for high fashion, insisted Gerreich. But he is convinced that it is tomorrow's answer to utilitarian and travel clothes.

John Weitz, who fast is revolutionizing men's fashions, has decided disposable paper shirts for men would be ideal. "Men buy back their shirts 30 times over at the laundry," he said.

Has Mrs. John F. Kennedy fallen off her pedestal as the darling of the fashion industry, somebody asked the panel at large (There was, of course, reference to her "tarnished image" as a result of publicity regarding the William Manchester book.)

"Not at all," answered John Weitz. "She remains the epitome of chic, modern young womanhood to us all."

And, as you've no doubt seen in many a photo, Jacqueline Kennedy has hiked HER hemlines some three inches above the knee.

In Italy

MEANWHILE, Italians had their ups and downs over hemlines in spring collections previewed the past week in Florence and Rome.

Short was the buy-word, even for men's suit coats and these fashion points for both sexes appeared settled in the Italian lineup:

—Skirts are short and will probably stay that way.

—Skirts are complicated.

—Bright and bold colors are in vogue.

—Men's high fashion has become big business.

The Italian designers, according to United Press International, seldom hit the mini-skirt hemline but, Garnett and Fontana excepted, they all go along with skirts ending a few inches above the knee.

Rather than echo the abbreviated geometry of Carnaby Street, Italian designers—like those in New York, Italian couturiers provided long to their shorter skirts.

That meant pleats, ruffles, fringes and flares to vary the tube look of the average mini-skirt. Also like New York, Italian couturiers provided long sleeves on almost everything to keep the proportions right.

MEN'S FASHIONS staged a revolution in the Italian showings.

Some seasons ago a high fashion buyer just giggled when a gentlemen's red velvet walking suit was displayed. The past week they gazed appreciatively at brightly colored, short-short suit coats and grabbed for their checkbooks.

Male fashion designer Luciano Franzoni said "something had to happen to men's clothes. They were too dull."

What's happened is that men's fashion designers tend toward the bizarre as much as stylists for women.

Franzoni's collection included dinner jackets with two buttons—pearls set in gold.

Datti, until this season one of the most conservative Roman tailors, presented Ivy League cuts in shades ranging from bronze to brick, shirts were brightly colored, neckties were vivid and wide.

For evenings, Datti showed Edwardian suits with zing colors.

Litrico displayed the masculine equivalent of the mini-skirt. It was brown, double-breasted and had a jacket six inches shorter than the conventional.

And that's the way fashions shaped up both for men and women—in New York and Italy.

All eyes are now turned to Paris where collections are about to be unveiled.

The big excitement there is Courreges, who will show his first collection since revolutionizing the world's garment industry several seasons ago with his white boots, short skirts, architectural silhouettes and welt seaming.

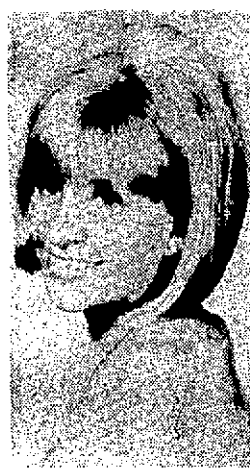

Considering he did all that with the whipped together, fashion buyers from first and only collection he ever Podunk to Paris are holding their breaths.

HAREM PANTS, ITALIAN-STYLE... from the collection of couturier Emilio Pucci. In silver lame jersey, lozenge-shaped bra dangles a big pearl at midriff. Turban hair style is by Alba and Francesca. Proving the inscrutable East has Italian designers in its thrall, this is one of many Oriental influences in spring fashion collections previewed the past week in Florence and Rome. Others: obi-bashed coats, leather-soled stockings, pagoda shoulders on sleeveless tunics, coolie shirt dresses with detachable sleeves, high-button jackets and loose-legged pants straight from the rice fields.

(That's why we call this new Jaguar 420
a Sports Sedan.
Why else?)

When you drive this new sedan, you'll discover just how much of a sports car it really is. The 420 is powered by a 4.2 liter engine, just like our XKE. It has disc brakes on all four wheels, dual braking systems and all-around independent suspension. This new car features Varamatic power steering, a new automatic transmission, an alternator and optional factory-installed air conditioning. The 420 also has a padded dash, padded shelf and the same luxurious interior appointments that all Jaguars have. See and drive it soon. It'll do your heart good.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Jordan principal cooks Texas-style

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Food Editor

Wise County, Tex. (about 20 miles northwest of L.B.J. country) didn't exactly form the pattern of his future life. The itinerary of today's Chef of the Week, Clifton N. Patterson, principal of Jordan High, reads like this:

He did a bit of farming, shipped out on freighters as a seaman; returned to dry land and received a BA degree from Technological College, Lubbock, Tex., and followed it with a masters degree from USC.

Then Patterson went to war. As a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, he was a gunnery officer who saw action in the South Pacific.

In 1946, he returned to Long Beach and put his education to use as a teacher at Lindbergh Junior High. He climbed the education ladder to the rung of dean of adult division, Long Beach City College, when "Chef" Odie Wright was appointed principal at Poly High.

In 1960, Patterson became Dean of Business and Technology at City College, and in 1965, was elevated to his present position at Jordan High. The school boasts some 2,500 students.

Patterson belongs to the North Long Beach Lions Club and Masonic Lodge 327. He's also active in the American Association of Advanced Sciences and the American Association of Tool and Manufacturers Engineers. He is a past president of the Long Beach Welfare Association.

Patterson and his wife, Allene, who teaches music, have a son, Ted, 24, a Navy Lieutenant (j.g.) who is stationed at Ford Island, Honolulu, and Ralf, 20 a student and commercial pilot.

He golfs when given a chance, but come summer vacation, the yen for farming takes over. He tours the nurseries for plants of all kinds, plants them, then leaves them to fate — mostly Allene.

Today our "Chef" is busy cooking up a batch of Sweet-Sour Short Ribs.

SWEET-SOUR SHORT RIBS

- 5 to 6 lbs. short ribs
- 2 to 3 large onions (sliced)
- 3 cups hot water
- 1 large bay leaf
- 1/2 cup cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
- 2/3 cup catsup
- 1 1/2 tsp. salt
- pepper to taste

Wipe short ribs with damp cloth and cut into individual serving pieces. Remove excess fat. Dredge in flour and brown well on all sides, using a minimum amount of hot oil. Remove ribs and add onion slices, and saute. Return ribs to same pan with onions. Combine hot water, bay leaf, vinegar, brown sugar, catsup, salt and pepper. Pour over ribs and cover pan tightly. Cook slowly until tender. Takes about 2 hours. Serves 10 to 12, with buttered noodles, whole green beans, a relish tray, and your favorite dessert.

School menus for L.B. students

The following menus will be served in Long Beach Elementary Schools in the week of January 23 - 27:

MONDAY: Spaghetti, southern style, tossed green salad, fruit cup supreme, 1/2 peanut butter sandwich and milk.

TUESDAY: Taco, chili beans, fresh sliced carrots, cherry sauce, 1/2 whole wheat sandwich and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, creamy coleslaw, chocolate pudding with whip topping, hot cornbread and milk.

THURSDAY: Lasagne, seasoned green beans, apricot halves, 1/2 peanut butter sandwich and milk.

FRIDAY: Toasted cheese sandwich, garden peas, apple wedges, homemade raisin cookie and milk.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch 35 cents. Soup and salad from the Junior-Senior High School a la carte menu are sold in the elementary schools, but they may be purchased by the children only after they have purchased the tray lunch.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL MENU

MONDAY: Italian spaghetti, seasoned green beans, cherry sauce, hot French bread and milk.

TUESDAY: Hamburger on bun, pickle slices, potato salad, apricot halves and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Beef-noodle casserole, garden peas, spicy applesauce, 1/2 peanut butter sandwich and milk.

THURSDAY: Turkey in gravy on mashed potatoes, garden salad, golden custard square with whip topping, hot biscuit and milk.

FRIDAY: Cheese enchilada or beef chop suey on rice, creamy coleslaw, fruit gelatin, 1/2 whole wheat sandwich and milk.

JACOBY No-trump bids have dividends

Today's had shows Eric Murray at work again. We approve of his double of one spade but sort of shudder at his two no-trump call. On the other hand, Eric's style is to bid when it is his turn and his two no-trump bid produced fine dividends.

Sammy Kehela in the East went to three hearts and if South had only passed even Sammy would have had to work to hold his loss to down two. Down two undoubted and not vulnerable would not have represented any real loss but if South had doubled three hearts, Eric's two no-trump call would have been a real loser.

As it was the bid produced a five International Match Point profit for the Canadian star.

South won the opening heart lead and returned the heart lead. East won and shifted to a diamond. South allowed this game and a slam is only to run to Eric's queen and worth 13 IMPs so that three Eric led another heart. South ruffed in dummy, discarded a diamond on the ace of clubs and led a diamond for a finesse.

The finesse lost to Eric's king and because the defense still had to make two trump tricks, South was down one.

At the other tables, South was allowed to play two spades and with the play going the same way, these South players made the same eight tricks for a plus of 110 points instead of a minus of 100 points.

THESE SMALL swings don't amount to much in a rubber bridge game but in IMP competition they actually determine who wins and who loses.

In the IMP scale a swing of 170-210 points is worth 5 which represents the difference between a vulnerable a diamond. South allowed this game and a slam is only to run to Eric's queen and worth 13 IMPs so that three such part-score swings more than balance a missed slam.

Acapulco: where the jet set turns off its motors

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

ACAPULCO, Mexico — Dan Sanborn, the Mexican auto insurance man who regularly publishes authentic, up-to-date news bulletins about Mexican highways and facilities for U.S. tourists in Mexico, likes to refer to this city of 100,000 as a "Miami with mountains."

Someone else (I wish it had been I) describes this beautiful Pacific coast resort as the place "where the jet set turns off its motors." World travelers who, indeed, do come here to live it up in the sun and become a part of a dizzy brand of nightlife found nowhere else, see it as THE "American Riviera" which easily excels the French or Italian Riviera, or any other Riviera for that matter, for its magnificent setting, its climate, its special brand of happy people, and the almost endless opportunities for excitement.

ACAPULCO, while far off the beaten tourist paths, nevertheless hosts as many as 100,000 visitors at a given time during its busy winter season. They stream in on the big jets from every direction, mostly from the west and east coasts of the United States. Others drive down over good highways. This winter, more are coming in on cruise ships, among these the Canadian Pacific Lines' Princess Patricia, which is now making regular sailings at attractive fares from Los Angeles Harbor. Tourists arriving on the Princess Pat are lucky, for the ship is their hotel while in port. Others less fortunate who do not arrange for reservations in advance are having some difficulty finding rooms despite the fact that the 320 registered first to third class hostels boast 23,000 accommodations with hundreds more in the construction stage.

Ricardo Olivera, special consul for the Mexican National Tourist Council, estimates that Acapulco will host 80,000 visitors a day from now through March. The hotels are reportedly booked solid through April, but the Council's sub-coordinator general, Guillermo Moreno, offers this advice to prospective visitors: "We suggest making requests through agents or others who have space allocations and who, given sufficient advance notice and some flexibility as to choice and dates, will be able to get the reservations."

WHY DO travelers swarm to Acapulco?

It is no fiction that many Americans and not a few Europeans find that they can impress friends by dropping the name "Acapulco" as their vacation stop. But mainly they come here to bask in Acapulco's international appeal as the liveliest and loveliest winter sun gathering place in the Americas. The influx continues in the "off season" — between April and Dec. 15 — when hotel prices dive as much as 40 per cent.

The climate, naturally, is the major factor. Situated well in the tropics, the mercury rarely drops below 72 degrees in winter. Maximum summer readings sometimes reach 86 to 88 degrees. The rainy season is July to September, with most of the precipitation coming at night.

In such a climate, activities for visitors on a profusion of excellent beaches are all but endless with swimming, sun-bathing and girl-watching, water skiing and skindiving in the lead. Next comes fishing, followed by jaunts in launches and glass-bottomed boats, sailing cruises, and golf.

Another sport catching on fast is parachute skiing,

in which participants may soar more than 100 feet above the bay while attached to speedboats.

NIGHT LIFE is wildly a-go-go with a choice of native, American or European-type entertainment. There are nightly water ski shows at 10, jai alai at 9 (10 pesos) with pari mutuels, and first-class bullfights every Sunday afternoon in a centrally-located arena. Restaurants offer mediocre to superb international cuisine, famous local sea food specialties, and typical Mexican dishes. And a nice part of stepping out here is that you may leave your tie and jacket at home.

Some sportsmen spread out into the verdant mountains nearby to hunt for deer, jabalin, jaguar, wildcat and fox, and for quail, or ducks in the many lagoons. Acapulco is also a base for inland tours by auto or plane to such popular spots as Oaxaca, Cuernavaca and even Mexico City.

Women find shopping a fascinating experience. Native crafts from practically every corner of the Republic find their way into these air-conditioned stores. One popular stop is Spralling's, which stocks all kinds of silver merchandise made in Taxco. Casa Maya has abundant souvenirs and such establishments as Anny, Milpas and La Mota's stock the latest Mexican fashions.

Practically everyone who comes here enjoys a city tour with stops high in the hills for birdseye views of the magnificent bay, and a walk through Fuerte de San Diego, an ancient fort which has become little more than a landmark except in November when a famous film festival is held there.

And few overlook the high divers who leap from the top of the Quebrada cliffs, near the El Mirador Hotel, into the sea, 135 feet below.

ACAPULCO has always been an important port. Founded in 1550 by the Spanish, it was for many years a chief west coast port for shipping. These cargoes included Oriental female slaves who readily found a market among the Conquistadors. It was from here that rich shipments from Spanish, Chinese and Japanese sailing ships were transported overland by mule train to the east coast port of Veracruz for trans-shipment to Spain. And it was a favorite haunt for the buccancer, Sir Francis Drake.

The first resort-hotel was built here in 1938, the superhighway from Mexico City in 1955. The rest is history.

S.F. Chinese to celebrate Year of Ram

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco's Chinese community - the biggest in the western world - has grown by more than 8 per cent in the past year.

According to immigration officials here, about 8,000 China-born immigrants from all over the world have entered the U.S. since December, 1965, when the new law increasing the Chinese quota went into effect. Of these, some 4,500 have settled in San Francisco, swelling the city's Chinese population to approximately 65,000.

The reputation of the city's Chinese New Year extravaganza has been growing, too. In recent years the annual Golden Dragon parade has come to be regarded as a not-to-be missed classic, by hundreds of thousands of parade buffs throughout the West.

THE CHINESE citizenry will join hands with the Caucasian community next Feb. 18-26 to ring in the Year of the Ram - Chinese lunar calendar year 4666 - with a round of exotic festivities the like of which is seen nowhere else in the Occident.

In keeping with local custom, the big public celebration will follow the traditional, family-style observance of the New Year which falls on Feb. 9, 1967.

The Chinese festival gets under way the ensuing week with "Miss Chinatown USA" pageantry, street fairs and outdoor programs, Chinese cultural events, lion dancing and firecracker barrages. It will reach an ear-splitting crescendo on Saturday, Feb. 25, the night of the city's spectacular Chinese New Year parade, according to the San Francisco Convention & Visitors Bureau.

THE FACT that the forthcoming lunar year will be dominated by the sign of the ram is of special significance to Chinese San Franciscans whose ancestors began arriving in the "Great City of the Golden Hill," as they called it, over a century ago.

They, and most of their countrymen who came later, were southern Chinese from the region around Canton. Cantonese dialect and Cantonese cooking prevail today in this quarter of the city.

Canadians map voyageur routes

Canoe enthusiasts in Canada will soon have an opportunity to explore the white-water routes of the old-time voyageurs. Maps of the early waterways used by explorers and fur traders are being prepared by the Canadian Camping Association with the aid of a grant from the Canadian Centennial Commission. The maps will show rapids, portages and campsites as well as historical information as the Indian lore of the territory.

For further information about Alaska write to the Pacific Area Travel Association, 442 Post St., Dept. PD-20, San Francisco, Calif. 94102.

Canadians, not Ford, did it first

Henry Ford wasn't old enough to vote when the first car was built in Ontario, says the Canadian Government Travel Bureau. That was in 1883 and every car buff knows that Ford didn't produce his first tin lizzy until 1896. It might also be surprising to know that 35 different automobiles — excluding makes associated with foreign manufacturers — were created and produced in Canada before 1932. These and other little-known facts on the history of motor cars continue to fascinate visitors to the Canadian Automotive Museum in Ontario's motor city of Oshawa, 20 miles from Toronto.

Tucson's Vaqueros Rodeo opens Feb. 23

TUCSON, Ariz. — An all-horse drawn parade, with mechanized entries prohibited, will be a feature of the 1967 Fiesta de los Vaqueros Rodeo to be held here Feb. 23-28.

In the mile-long procession, which annually draws more than 150,000 spectators, will be at least 350 entries, including musicians, riding groups, silver saddle entries and floats depicting hundreds of years of history of Arizona and the Southwest.

The parade at 10 a.m. Feb. 23 will kick off the four-day "Feast of the Cowboy," the lone outdoor winter show in the nation. It will draw many of the top-money-winning cowpokes in the country for an original purse of $11,200 with entry fees added swelling the total prize money to well above $30,000.

SPECIAL events will include Glenn Randall's performing horses; the St. John's Indian Dancers; authentic Apache, Pima Navajo and Papago Indians performing authentic dances; the University of Arizona Girls Quadrille Team with a performance of precision drill riding and, of course, the Rodeo Cowboy Clowns, Chuck Henson and Larry McKinney with Jimmy Schumacher in the barrel to fight the bulls.

Four afternoon performances are scheduled, starting at 2 o'clock.

Details of the event, including advance ticket information, are available from the Tucson Chamber of Commerce, Rodeo Dept., P. O. Box 991, Tucson.

Cairo offers contrasts of old and new to traveler

THE GINZA PYRAMIDS are an important part of the 4,000-year-old treasure of historic relics that await world travelers to Cairo and the Nile Valley. (Scandinavian Airlines System photo)

The great Pyramids, the Valley of the Kings, the Place of Abdeen with its 500 halls and rooms... a broad new esplanade built along the banks of the Nile.

These contrasts of old and new, past and present, focused against the background of one of civilization's oldest cultures, are just some of the memorable sights in store for visitors to Cairo this year.

Travelers will find Cairo and its surroundings a treasure house of historic relics dating back some 4,000 years.

Of major appeal to travelers are the former royal palaces, now converted into museums. Principal among these is Abdeen, originally the residence of the "Wali" or head of state. This palace contains 500 halls and rooms, including such unique highlights as the Red Gallery, the crystal staircase, and the elaborate Byzantine Salon which took two years to complete. The walls of the salon are covered with paintings by the Italian artist Salvetti.

nade has been built along the banks of the Nile. Cairo is criss-crossed by wide modern boulevards.

Dramatically, a new lighting system has been installed in the capital city. Added to this are such major luxury hotels as the 400-room Nile Hilton, and the 300-room Sheppard's.

Visitors to Italy get hotel rates

Alitalia Airlines in cooperation with the CIGA hotel chain, operators of more than a dozen of Italy's most luxurious hotels, including the Danieli in Venice and the Excelsior in Rome, announce a winter package plan for visitors to Italy offering a half-price rate at all of CIGA's hotels. The program is effective through Feb. 28.

Under this, the Calycanthus, plan, tourists flying any of the CIGA hotels. One ticket covers room and bath and demipension, or half-pension of breakfast and one major meal—either lunch or dinner.

Canada speeds border crossings

U.S. visitors entering Canada by car for the nation's Centennial celebrations this year will find it is easier and faster to cross the border than ever before.

Canada Customs will eliminate the issuance of travelers vehicle permits to non-residents entering Canada, effective March 1.

Representatives of Canada's tourist industry are delighted that Canada Customs has been able to make these arrangements on the eve of our Centennial celebrations, International Tourist Year, and the opening of EXPO '67, for we are expecting a record number of visitors from other countries during the coming year," said Dan Wallace, director, Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

Valley in the sky

Kathmandu, exotic capital of Nepal, is one of the highest cities in the world, yet it is dwarfed by the towering Himalayan peaks which surround it.

CAIRO'S MOST celebrated monuments are the Pyramids—one of the classic Seven Wonders of the World. The great Pyramid of Cheops, the first of the giant structures to be built, took 100,000 men 20 years to erect. At the foot of the pyramid, the Sphinx, symbol of ageless silence, maintains its mysterious vigil before the burial places of the Pharaohs.

In Cairo is the oldest university in the world. The university—like the Mosques—shrines and old houses of the city, is a masterpiece of Islamic architecture typified by elaborately beautiful mosaics.

EQUALLY STRIKING is the Manial Palace, surrounded by large, colorful gardens that are being developed into an international botanical center, says Scandinavian Airlines, whose world-wide pure jet network serves 107 cities—including Cairo—in 49 countries.

Easily reached from Cairo are other major centers of historical and scenic appeal: Alexandria, Luxor, Memphis, the capital of ancient Egypt, the Valley of the Kings. Here the visitor will find the imposing remnants of life and culture as old as recorded history.

At the same time, in Cairo, Alexandria, and other major cities, the new is rising in the shadow of the old. A giant new esplanade

INDEPENDENT-Press-Telegram Travel and RESORTS

STAN DELAPLANE Palm Springs goes for 'Fairway Living'

PALM SPRINGS—President Eisenhower arrived the other day. This desert resort is filled again. And electric golf carts are about as common as automobiles.

"Fairway living" along the 21 golf courses is the big thing. Owners post the cost of replacing the picture window outside. So if you bang a golf ball through it, you know what it will cost you without asking.

Movie stars own luxury estates. (The Chamber of Commerce will give you a list of them from Arnez, Desi to Zanuck, Darryl.) Desert lots sell from $25,000 to $100,000.

The Spa Hotel is the elegant hostelry. Swirlpool baths for every guest. ($22 to $100 a day.) But Palm Springs doesn't want to discourage the modest spender. I could recommend the Oasis. Or the Village Inn.

Rates drop about a third during the off-season—October-December and Easter to June 15.

"For two college men who will be in Europe this summer, where is that swinging London?"

THE MINISKIRT parade is in the afternoon in the King's Road in Chelsea. Start at Sloane Square and walk up.

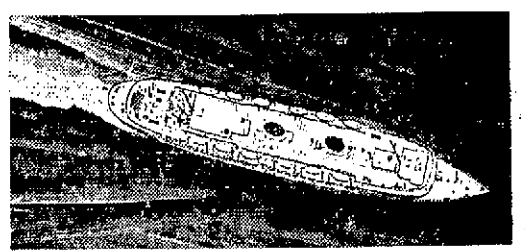

"We want to take the children with us to Europe but cannot find out if we can get proper food for the youngest. He is still on baby food."

NO PROBLEM. I've hauled my own around Europe at all ages. You find snap-top jar baby food in all countries this side of the Iron Curtain—usually the Heinz label. Sometimes in grocery stores, sometimes only in drug stores. Powdered milk in all countries. Make it with bottled water.

"Our new car will be delivered in Germany. We want to just drift around Europe without being regimented by advance reservations..."

IT JUST isn't easy in the crowded summer. I'd choose

Cerritos art faculty evinces versatility

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The Faculty Art Exhibit at Cerritos College is evidence that quality and versatility can outweigh numbers. Only seven artists are shown (two are part-time faculty), but the show is rich in variety and media.

Department chairman Melvin Wood, for example, is represented by two shimmering acrylic still lifes, sketches and photographs of the spectacular costumes he designed for last year's "The Spider and the Fly," some elegant mounted silver castings, and a small group of rich ceramic vessels.

Rudolph Aguirre's 12 drawings in pencil or ink are fine, perceptive renderings. Walter Jones is represented by three bronze sculptures and 13 large oils.

While most of the latter are surrealist expressionism, there are two chic, witty Pop Art ladies in thin wash and matte of flat color.

ROLAND SHUTT'S work includes an impressive selection of high-refined ceramics, graphic works, watercolors, a "painting" of nailheads over black, and a sensitive collage printed with a Haiku verse—27 works in all.

Manuel DeLeon's concern is mainly with monumental figure studies, ranging from a classic nude in green chalk to one of gesso on asphaltum. A lithograph, "Piscadores de Algozón," is enlarged in a tremendous oil painting. His "Indian Allegory" is a massed montage of anguished figures and expressive hands.

MARGARET CANNON'S 20 works are equally divided in two groups. One consists of small colored pencil drawings of figures. The other 10 are a garden of large acrylic paintings in all hues of red and yellow—rhythmic lozenge forms and are nouveau lines flowing over the canvases and around the unframed edges.

'The fun is all in the search'

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

"I strive for the expression of a thread of meaning which is never too clear to me at any given time. Some of us are compelled to search. The guarantee of finding answers is of lowest priority.

"The fun is all in the search. No one can deny me the right to fail in my search. The few times I feel success, I become suspicious of the resultant work. But this is a habit which I may overcome when I am 92 years old."

This is the philosophy of Kenneth Glenn, professor of sculpture at California State College, Long Beach, and organizer and director of the 1965 summer International Sculpture Symposium held on campus.

Glenn's sculpture and oil paintings by Donald H. Spencer are on exhibit in the Art Rental and Sales Service Gallery of Palos Verdes Community Arts Association 405 Via Chico, Malaga Cove Plaza, Palos Verdes, where they will remain through Feb. 11.

Glenn's sculpture is in the permanent collections of Seattle Art Museum, Downey Art Museum and the Museum of Modern Art in Jerusalem, Israel. In the gallery show are several pieces created in Israel where Glenn lived for five months while on sabbatical in 1964.

Spencer, owner of the Spencer Art Gallery, 316

Manhattan Beach Blvd., Manhattan Beach, has won numerous awards among them three consecutive first places at the annual South Bay Art Association shows. He was named one of the Outstanding Young Men of America in the Junior Chamber of Commerce 1965 publication. In this show his subjects are people in a beach environment.

A GROUP of prize-winning entries in the 1966 Los Angeles All-City outdoor Art Festival is on view at Home Savings and Loan Association's Long Beach office, 201 E. First St.

Among the pieces is the People's Choice $600 award-winning wood sculpture, "David," by Dale Webster of Van Nuys.

Other artists whose work will be shown are William Lane, Nick Boisvert, Peter L. Plagens, Robert Hanson, Martin De Dubovay and Virginia Montgomery of Los Angeles, and Hal Reed of Sherman Oaks.

Hours for the free exhibit are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Fridays. The show will continue through Jan. 31.

Home Savings has been patron sponsor of the art festival for 12 years and this year donated $7,200 for awards.

A COMPREHENSIVE one-man show of paintings by Dean Spille, will open with a reception today from 4 to 6 p.m. at Gallery Carnot, 142 Main St. Seal Beach. The public is invited.

Currently teaching design and animation at California State College, Long Beach, Spille holds a master's degree from that college and did additional graduate study at UCLA and the Accademia de Belle Arte in Florence, Italy. He studied under Kokoschka at the International Summer Academy of Painting in Salzburg, Germany, in 1957.

The Gallery Carnot exhibit, first retrospective for Spille since his European studies two years ago, will continue through Feb. 13.

ANAHEIM Art Association's juried show will be on display through January at Glendale Savings and Loan Building, 320 N. Harbor Blvd., Fullerton.

LA PALMA Women's Club is sponsoring an art class, open to the public, to be held one night, every other week, from 7 to 10 o'clock in Cypress Park Clubhouse, Crescent Street and Walker Avenue, Cypress.

Artist Gordon Flemmer will teach in any field students request. There will be a modest charge. For further information, call Mrs. Jack Abrahamson, 5021 Cartagena Circle, La Palma.

Professional and amateur entries will be judged separately. Call Mrs. Clifford Holt, 1308 W. Commonwealth, Fullerton, for further information.

Sophisticated Lisa Gets Giggles

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

NOW THAT SHE IS 18 years old, Lisa Jak is learning how to giggle.

"I'm getting younger now," she said. "Three years ago I was very sophisticated."

Lisa a gorgeous blonde, is one of eight starlets who will compete for the title of "1967 Hollywood Star of Tomorrow" when the award ceremonies are telecast 9:30 p.m. in color Saturday on channel 7.

She also has the repeating role of Lorna Wales in ABC-TV's "The Monroes."

Three years ago, when she was very sophisticated, there was nothing to giggle about. Worse, there was no girlfriend with whom to share a giggle or even an ordinary laugh.

A gorgeous blonde, sure. A gorgeous, lonely, shy blonde who knew she had developed a general feeling of inferiority.

IN NEW JERSEY, they selected her "Miss High School." Actually, there were two Miss High Schools. One was selected for talent. The other, Lisa, was chosen for her beauty.

When the selection was announced, the tears came and they wouldn't stop.

She was pretty sure she was crying for joy, but at the same time she kept thinking:

"Now they'll never accept me. I'm afraid to go back to school."

Her classmates had never really accepted her before. The boys were afraid to approach her, but that wasn't the most distressing thing. It was the rejection by the girls.

"I KNOW," she said, "it was because they felt they were inferior when they were with me. They weren't really aware that I was the one who felt inferior, in a sense, to them."

"They felt that if I was with them, no one would look at them. No one would pay attention to them."

"I was told many times, 'Well, you're beautiful but I'm intelligent and talented.'"

"I didn't really see people as being ugly or beautiful as such. And I didn't understand what intelligence or talent had to do with being ugly or beautiful."

"Really it gave me a complex. I think of it as my ugly stage."

SPECIAL

THOROUGHbred — Racing Hall of Fame jockey Eddie Arcaio is narrator for an NBC News Special documenting the story of a young race horse—from birth to first racing season as a 2-year-old. Stamp Act, a colt from the Greenree Stable, is followed from his foaling in Lexington, Ky.; "wintering" in Ocala, Fla.; training at Aiken, S.C., and Belmont Park, N.Y.; and his first competition at Saratoga Race Track. During the Chet Hagan-produced hour at 6:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4, Stamp Act wins his first two races, and then is fifth in his first stake event. Incidentally, in the 1954 edition of the Saratoga stakes in which Stamp Act was fifth, jockey Arcaio rode his sire, Royal Coinage, to a victory.

IT'S ABOUT TIME — With a change in locale, the astronaut-cave man series hopes to boost its ratings by falling more in the pattern of the Beverly Hillsbillies—transporting Mahomet to the mountain. When Mac and Hector find Gronk faces death for stealing the diamond which repaired their spaceship's mechanism, they load him aboard for the flight back to the present, along with Shad, Mlor and Breer (dropping the rest from the revised cast). So at 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 2, the bewildered cave family is left to explore the wonders of modern-day suburban apartment living.

LUCILLE BALL Comedy Hour—In a show with a show, based on Sherwood Schwartz' "Mr. and Mrs.," Lucy plays the boss of a television studio (which she is) which plans to produce a special starring Bob Hope. Setting out with tight-fisted company director Gale Gordon to locate Hope, her journey takes them from Alaska to Moscow and on to the Philippines. Rebroadcast from a 1964 airing at 9 p.m., ch. 2, show features Miss Ball's children, Lucy and Desi, in bit roles among a group of autograph seekers. (This hour next week, plus the time slot of "Candid Camera," goes to the premiere broadcast of "CBS Playhouse," starring Ivan Dixon as a Negro master sergeant serving a tour of duty in Vietnam as an adviser in 1963.)

CRITICS' CORNER

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Programs

Program: "Bob Hope Christmas Special," aired last Wednesday on channel 4.

Reviewing a Bob Hope war camp show is like re-reading the Declaration of Independence: They are both very special in their own way, rarely change concept and unleash a surge of patriotism. Coming off Chrysler's 90-minute special, there could be little sentiment against our Vietnam policy. Anyone not moved by the sea of smiling faces, some 175,000 of them who live from day to day needs repair to his plumbing.

Hope would be the first to say that the show was the audience, the GI's on the fighting front and in the hospitals. The cameras spent as much time on the smiling faces as on the entertainers that must've heated up the coldest set-sider heart. Of course, what did it was Hope and his little band of heart warmers. They've been doing it for years and too many take it for granted that where there's a war there's Hope, and you can take that both ways.

The Hope Christmas shows follow a set pattern and if the jokes and gags are too service-oriented the looker can be thankful he was privileged to see it in the safety of his home.

Critic Helm of "Variety"

Program: "The Barrump Bump Show," aired last Wednesday on channel 4.

One of the toughest assignments in television is to follow Hope's Christmas show. Dom De Luise, a comedian last seen regularly on "The Entertainers" drew that difficult chore. He starred in a half-hour variety special, "The Barrump Bump Show."

Word was leaked that the program was a pilot for a De Luise series. Just a year ago, Roger Miller filled the same post-Hope half hour and reception was so good that he was rewarded with his own series last September.

It is doubtful that De Luise will have the same kind of luck. He's a round-faced young man who works awfully hard at being funny. He obviously has talent, but somebody has to harness and control it.

Vikk Carr sang, but the most impressive performance of the evening was by Barbara Eden of "I Dream of Jeannie," who demonstrated she can sing and dance attractively.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: "The Italians," aired last Tuesday night on channel 2.

Luigi Barzini, author and narrator of the special, is for Italy what Maurice Chevalier is for France.

Barzini has wit, charm, and an essence of masculinity that I'm sure made almost every woman believe he was talking to her alone.

Despite the tremendous advantage of Barzini's presence, the program came close to being dull. Unfortunately, the cameraman had all the creativity of an amateur making a home movie.

Bert Resnik of "TeleVues"

This was worth staying up late. It had that good, warm feeling about a people who have taught the world the art of living. The show is the thing and that takes in all 50 million in Italy. Orson Welles put it another way: "there are 50 million actors in Italy and most of the bad ones are on the stage or in pictures." Far from a travelogue, it was a deep study of the Paisano, his character and traits, in a country of "paralyzed democracy and theatrical spectacle."

The hour doc was based upon a book of that title by Luigi Barzini, who acted as narrator, and a good one. The baroque mood and free-wheeling existence were amply etched with touches of humor, such as Barzini's "they say 50 per cent of the population is communicative and 95 per cent Catholic," at opposite ends of the ideological syndrome. "But," he added, "The Reds will never take over Italy. They've been on the road too long and the church is putting on a better show." As for Mussolini, it was a photo whether he was a show-off or a showman. An incident of defaming the American Flag at a commy rally was quickly passed over.

Commented Barzini, who could be a delightful emcee if he wasn't an author, "Italians live life as if it were a show. They are a gay people yet desolate and desperate but supreme realists." The Mafia country of Sicily was described as a mixture of virtue and vice, where government is subverted to the whims of the mob. He told of a village where the water supply was shut off because tribute wasn't paid. What he called "genius" was the Neapolitan trick of buying frozen fish from other countries and passing them off as freshly caught in the Bay of Naples.

Children's Movie Festival on TV in February

New York Times Service
NEW YORK — A Sunday afternoon children's film festival, including motion pictures made in Japan, the Soviet Union, Poland and France, will be televised by the Columbia Broadcasting System beginning Feb. 5.

Hosts for the series will be the "Kukla, Fran and Ollie" puppet troupe headed by Burr Tillstrom and Fran Allison. Seven films will be presented on successive Sundays and the eighth and last on Easter.

The initial film will be a Japanese production, "Skinny and Fatty," which is about two bony—one who studies, excels in sports and makes friends, and one who is shy.

The second program will be "The Blind Bird," a Soviet film about a boy who makes great sacrifices to have sight restored to his pet pelican.

FORMERLY SHIRLEY TEMPLE BUTLER

Teenagers Rediscover Arthur Treacher

By ALINE MOSBY

NEW YORK (UPI) — He was that butler named Jeeves in the movies, you remember, the snooty Englishman who, eyebrows hoisted, snarled delicately.

Now Arthur Treacher, of all people, has become a television idol of teen-agers. And as an announcer, of all things, on the Merv Griffin television show (airs 8:30 p.m. daily on Channel 11).

Treacher at 72 has carved out a gold mine of a new career.

The older set remembers stone-faced Treacher in all those Shirley Temple movies, "National Velvet" with Elizabeth Taylor, "Wonderbar" with Al Jolson and countless Broadway plays. The younger crowd recalls him as the cop in the recent "Mary Poppins" film. Now the mod-and-miniskirt group has discovered him on the Griffin show.

Treacher announces the opening of the show in a most un-Jeeves-like voice. Then while Griffin interviews guests, Treacher jabs in remarks that break up Griffin's side-kick, or aide-de-camp, or "ah-noun-sah," as Treacher puts it. One TV critic called him "just about the most color-conversation piece since Tiffany lamps."

To one mod-type on the show, Treacher sniffed. "Go home, take a bath and dress like a young lady." In his acid British accent, it devastates Americans.

"SOMETIMES in an interview I can see Merv is in a hole so I help him out," said Treacher, like some imperious Jeeves.

"If he gives me a line I say something. Today he said, 'What do you think, Arthur,' and I said 'I haven't been, lately, but I will now.'"

"The show is like after-dinner conversation only with-out the drink in my hand."

Once Treacher was nipped by a baby lamb on the program. Sometimes guests are asked to play Juliet to his Romeo, or other Shakespearean roles that he has performed on the stage.

"When I was with Shirley Temple I not only had the grownups but the young," he explained. "Then I lost the young people completely as they were growing up and having bad complexions and that sort of thing and now on this show a great many young people ask for photos. Also old people who remember me.

"But," he added briskly, "all this publicity doesn't mean a thing, you know. It doesn't mean you're going to be employed all the time."

He likes to work on the show, seen on five Westinghouse Broadcasting stations and syndicated on tape to 30 more, explaining, "I'm not rich, but mentally independent."

TREACHER'S SECOND round of success since he arrived in the United States from England in 1926 also has brought him side benefits.

He and Griffin recorded some albums (Treacher calls them "gramophone records"), one of the envelopes showing them in England wearing derby hats. Treacher has sung some of the songs, such as an English music hall ditty, on the TV program. Another Treacher record is "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," only snarled to what the actor calls "The Little Rascals."

"Pretty good for a man of 72, acting since 1914," he smiled.

He also poses for ads for whiskey, a product he admires. And far from fighting the butler image, Treacher has capitalized upon it by organizing a butler-cleaning-catering service in 37 cities named "Call Arthur Treacher." You dial the agency and hope that a butler with the silent good taste of Treacher's movie butlers rings your doorbell. One of his employees is a former footman from Buckingham Palace in London.

Treacher fell into the butler mold when he went from Broadway to Hollywood in 1934 to portray one. He didn't like the role and informed the director in haughty tones he was going back to New York. The director cried in glee for him to play the part that way. Treacher did, and a film stereotype was born.

His idea of a perfect butler, incidentally, is "That you must not know he even is there." Was Treacher always like that in his films?

"Every butler I played was rude to his employers. If I had a butler like that, I'd sack him," he announced.

THE CAVEMAN FAMILY of Joe E. Ross (left), Imogene Coca, Mary Grace and Pat Cardi are transported to the 20th century during "It's About Time."

NO MORE DINOSAURS

'It's About Time' Goes Modern

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) Yes, Virginia, there is a Sherwood Schwartz.

In fact there are five or six of them sprinkled around the country, according to the Sherwood Schwartz who is the creator and producer of "Gilligan's Island" and "It's About Time."

"Gilligan's Island" is running along smoothly safe in the ratings game. But "It's About Time," a new offering this season, is in trouble.

The story involves a pair of astronauts who somehow orbited back in time to one million B.C. There they've been beset by dinosaurs and cave men.

But there are a limited number of adventures and surprises for astronauts in prehistoric surroundings. And by the sixth week on the air, "It's About Time" had all but exhausted the possibilities. It became a one-joke series.

Rather than see his show axed, Schwartz flew to New York to confer with CBS-TV brass. He had an idea on how to save the series.

So the astronauts have repaired their space capsule and will escape back to the 20th century with a caveman family that befriended them—Imogene Coca, Joe E. Ross and the kids, Mary Grace and Pat Cardi (7:30 p.m. today, Sunday, on channel 2 in color).

The situation possibilities, according to Schwartz, are increased a thousandfold.

WHAT WILL the cave men think of airplanes, skyscrapers, indoor plumbing, race riots, atom bombs, mini-skirts and LBJ?

"We're the first show in history to replace itself on the second season," said Schwartz, a quietly humorous man. "Our story lines were getting thin and the ratings weren't the best."

"This change will give the series a new lift. It was a little drab what with caves and people running around in furs. Now there will be more colorful surroundings."

"Not only that, it will make the show easier to understand. Viewers had to listen carefully before because the caveman language was difficult to comprehend."

"WHEN THE NEW format goes on the air, only about one-eighth of the dialogue will be in primitive language. The astronauts and the rest of the cast will be speaking modern English."

Schwartz is grateful to network executives who have given him a second chance.

The current trend is to drop a show and replace it with something equally catastrophic. But at least it gets the networks through the season.

Schwartz believes his caveman show can become a big hit when the prehistoric zany encounter modern civilization. It worked for the "Beverly Hillbillies." If the motley crew from the hill country is perplexed by Beverly Hills, one can only imagine the reactions of the Gronk family from one million B.C.

VIDEO MENAGERIE NOTE

CBS-TV May Adopt Bear

By VAL ADAMS

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The Columbia Broadcasting System is a friend to animals. For 13 years the television network has sheltered Lassie and last year it gave a home to Clarence, the cross-eyed lion, who has a comfortable role on the Tuesday evening series titled "Daktari." Now CBS is seriously considering the adoption of a bear—a big, black bear named Ben.

Later this year, probably in the summer when kids are out of school, Paramount Pictures will distribute to motion picture theaters a feature film tentatively titled "Gentle Ben." This theatrical release may well provide what is known as a spin-off into television.

"GENTLE BEN" is about a game warden, his 7-year-old son and a baby bear that the boy finds in the wilderness and takes home to keep. The game warden is played by Dennis Weaver, formerly the Chester of "Gunsmoke." The boy is portrayed by Clint Howard, the brother of Ronny Howard who plays Opie Taylor on the "Andy Griffith Show." Ben, the bear, plays himself, although in the course of filming several bears had to be used, all named Ben.

"Gentle Ben" was produced by Ivan Tors, producer of "Daktari" for CBS as well as "Flipper" for the National Broadcasting Co. and who presumably is still trying to interest the American Broadcasting Co. in an animal or underwater show.

Caped Crusader Survives One Year

By VERNON SCOTT

ADAM WEST . . . The "Batman"

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The trumpets blare, the banners unfurl, huzzahs are raised and we hear the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance."

What is this magnificent occasion?

The first anniversary on television of "Batman!" That's what.

The caped crusader and Robin have survived 12 months on the air, twice weekly, to the joy of fully half the population and the chagrin of the other half.

It is incumbent on any reporter, then to discuss this milestone with the man responsible for bringing the daring duo to our living rooms. That man is quiet, scholarly William Dozier.

As producer and father of the ABC-TV series, Dozier is proud that "Batman" has held up well in the ratings.

"We're consistently in the Top 20 in the ratings," he said. "Naturally, we couldn't expect to maintain the top standing we had in the first week or two."

"WE'RE ON at 7:30 and no show has ever remained in the Top 10 or 20 for more than a week because there are fewer sets in use at that time than later in the evening."

"Batman's" format was new to television. Half of the show is beamed on Wednesday nights, the conclusion on Thursdays.

For some murky reason, Thursday nights have outdrawn Wednesday. Dozier now is considering the possibility of putting the two half hours together on Thursday evenings next fall.

"A solid hour, instead of two half hours, may work out a little better," he said. "Anyhow, that is the way the show is written and filmed. Otherwise we don't expect to change very much."

"This season we've introduced 14 new villains and there will be more of them next year."

Dozier was asked who watched "Batman."

"WELL, RESEARCH show that 65 per cent of the audience is in the 4-11 age bracket and 15 per cent are from 13-19. That's 85 per cent and the rest are adults," he answered.

"There's a gap among the 11-13 year olds. They say it's a kids' show. They're too young to see the humor and spoof, but too old to be carried away by the action and adventure."

"The show is a big hit now in England — where it gets a 45 per cent share of the audience — and in France, Japan, Latin America, South America and Australia."

"Someone told me it's difficult to believe 'Batman' has been on the air only a year. I find it hard to accept myself. It's now a part of folklore. And it can run forever."

Dozier didn't mean that he will be making episodes into infinity. He expects another two or three years on prime time, thereafter running the show in the afternoons for small fry and still later on Saturday mornings. Finally, it will go into syndication.

"We're very happy with our success," he concluded. "We hope it will continue."

READ WHAT REDUCING CRITICS SAY ABOUT PAT WALKER

I had a beautiful figure before I had my two children. Then my weight went up to over 170 pounds. I tried everything to reduce but nothing worked.

I will always be grateful that I saw your ad and decided to give it a try.

Now I'm down to 128 pounds and wear size 12. I feel like a million and my husband is so very proud of my appearance.

I sincerely recommend your program to anyone who wants to lose weight and feel better.

—Mrs. Janette Gleason, Long Beach

"I have a TV programme in Sydney and write the 'Dear Del' column in the newspapers. Recently I started to be conscious of my hips and the tops of my legs. Everything I eat seems to go to the same place, which—well you know.

Reducing at Pat Walker's is done without guesswork and in the salon's luxurious atmosphere. You can be lazy, pampered and reduce and you'll see the results after three treatments.

—Del Cartwright, Sydney, Australia

Now, I truly enjoy going in a store to buy a size 12 dress. I am not embarrassed any more when a sales clerk asks me what size I wear, for I don't have to say a size 20.

I can look in the mirror now without having to look at rolls of ugly flab and fat. Now, I see only firmness. I am more active in church and school work because I feel so much better.

Best of all, my husband says I am the most glamorous grandmother in town.

—Mrs. Bernice Ashby, Lakewood

It took me two years of indecision before I finally took the plunge and went to your salon.

You can look like a mattress tied in the middle for just so long or look at your bulges in a three-way mirror and pretend you don't see what you do see.

I went to Pat Walker's and reduced from a size 18 to a size 10. Believe me it's most gratifying.

—Mrs. Lillian Cooney, Lakewood

The day I walked into Pat Walker's was one of the most important days of my life.

I was at 182 pounds and felt it. I was trying all kinds of diets. None of these worked. I was really tired of being fat.

I've reduced from a size 22½ to a size 16 and am still going down. Now I feel wonderful. I have a lot of pep and I am not tired all the time as before.

I can say by experience about Pat Walker's that they don't care how fat you are or how much you weigh because they are there to help you reduce and they do.

—Mrs. Helen Lynch, Norwalk

I was fat, frustrated and frumpy. For eight years I had tried every pill, powder, potion, and diet in an effort to reduce. My bulging hips and thighs defied them all. I began to think of myself as a hopelessly fat woman.

I really went to Pat Walker's to prove that no treatment or method could reduce my hips and thighs. I was so delightfully and completely wrong.

I sincerely advise any woman who thinks she is a hopeless case to go to a Pat Walker Salon.

—Mrs. Marie V. Hernandez, Lakewood

My only regret at this time about the Pat Walker Program is that I waited so long. I could have been enjoying my new figure years ago.

Like many others, I read her ads and thought this just couldn't happen to me. I had been overweight most of my adult life.

I believe I tried most every new diet or reducing fad that came along. Now that I am a perfect size 8 instead of my former size 18 I feel like a new person.

—Miss LaVerne Daniel, Pasadena

A SPECIAL REDUCING OFFER

One Week Only!

January 22, 1967

Dear (Miss) or Mrs. (Write in Your Name)

If you feel that your figure problems are next to hopeless, if you think that reducing will work for everyone else but not for you, if you think that you are too old, or too young, or too flabby, or that being overweight runs in your family, or that your bone structure is too large, or too small, or that you have waited too long, or that you have an impossible reducing problem, or if you have found some unique, special excuse for your overweight problems, then this letter, which may be used as a special incentive offer valued at $20.00, may be used by you to start reducing now, so that you too can enjoy the New Year with a new figure that you will be proud of, because you too can reduce quickly and easily, in complete privacy, without strenuous exercise, without starving, without starvation diets as over 3,000,000 women have done with our program.

If you should make the decision to start reducing now you may use this letter valued at $20.00 this week only and apply it to the cost of your figure correction.

Sincerely yours,

Pat Walker

ANOTHER PAT WALKER SALON OPENING IN ORANGE COUNTY ON OR ABOUT FEBRUARY 1, 1967

Before last Christmas I weighed 170 pounds. I decided to put myself on a diet. After three months of dieting, I had lost only 5 pounds which is very frustrating. I was adhering to the diet but was not being compensated by weight loss.

My husband agreed that I should try Pat Walker's. With her program I have reduced to a trim 122 pound size 12.

My husband readily agrees that the Pat Walker Program can't be beat.

—Mrs. Maggie Pozura, Honolulu

I had no pep or energy. I even hated to shop for a new dress; I was so ashamed of my size 20½. I had gotten to the point where I felt nothing would work.

With the Pat Walker program I have reduced to 123 pounds and to a size 10 dress, and am still losing inches. The treatments are terrific for firming the tissue while taking off inches, plus pounds.

I can't praise Pat Walker enough, as I give her credit for my slender figure and I have a whole new outlook on life.

When I was obese, men wouldn't look at me. Now I have no problems. I have never felt better and now enjoy a good social life.

—Mrs. Helen Roberts, Long Beach

For the past 4 years I avoided getting on the scales completely.

My emotional insecurity increased and I had no interest in nice clothes or any kind of social life.

Now a short time later I wear a size 10 instead of a size 16. I have 10 times the energy compared to when I was dragging around all those extra pounds.

My husband and 4 children are so very proud of me. It is a sure thing for anyone to reduce with Pat Walker's program.

—Mrs. J. Holmes, Jr., Woodland Hills

Last year I went to a New Year's party wearing a size 50 dress. I looked for all kinds of excuses not to go. It's awful to dread what most everyone looks forward to. But when you're so overweight you feel so conspicuous and have that "left-out feeling."

In fact my weight and inch losses are proof that the Pat Walker Program works. I am down to a size 14 and that's a long way from the size 50 that I was.

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La medieval German occupation Reina Rule in care of South-term "Stuller" dignifying the land Magazine, 604 Pine remote ancestor as "weaver Ave., Long Beach, Calif. on a loom." No armorial 90801, for origin, meaning shield is in records for this and brief genealogy, for reply lineage.

MISS RULE: MAY we have the background on RUTLEDGE? — P. B., J. W., D. R., Long Beach, J. G., Inglewood.

RUTLEDGE is famous as the name of Ann Rutledge, sweetheart of President Abraham Lincoln. She passed away at the age of 19. The titled English Rutledge family achieved their surname from a home locality term "Red-Lache" meaning "Red pool." The main branch of this lineage were banished from England to County Cavan, Ireland, in 1655 after they supported the ill-fated Stuart kings of Britain. John Rutledge came from Ireland to South Carolina in 1735. His son John was the first governor of South Carolina, 1776-1782. Another son, Edward, was a signer of our Declaration of Independence. The Rutledge armorial shield is red, emblazoned with a silver cross.

MISS RULE: Please explain the background of KELSO—S. M., Long Beach.

KELSO is a north English and Scottish surname used by the ancestor in honor of his native city called Kelso, located on the River Tweed in Roxburghshire, Scotland. Kelso was called "Calkou" in the 1100s, a place-term meaning "chalk hill." The chalky hill near this town is now called "Chalk-Heugh." The honored family founder was Hugo de Kelso, recorded in 1296. The Kelso armorial shield has an ermine stripe lying between three golden wheat sheaves on a black background. The family motto "Otium cum dignitate" means "Leisure with dignity."

MISS RULE: May we have a brief genealogy on WORLEY?—E. B., Bellflower.

WORLEY had its inception in England during the 13th Century surname-inception period. It began as "Ware-leah" portraying the forefather's home as being located on a "meadow containing a dammed-up stream." Ware-leah developed as the surnames Wareley and Worley. The Worley armorial shield from Kent in southern England is covered with ermine, decorated with a rampant red lion.

MISS RULE: Please explain WATSON, WASSON—G. E., P. W., R. T., Long Beach.

WATSON and the variation WASSON trace to the old north English nickname Wat, taken from the baptismal name Walter, meaning "army ruler." Wat's sons, who took the surname Wat-son, have lived in Yorkshire and Lancashire nearly 1,000 years. The Watson armorial shield is silver, decorated with three black heraldic birds. Descendants were Hartford, Conn. residents as early as the 1640s.

RELIABLE • EXPERIENCED CONTRACTOR

IN THE PAST 25 years language scholars have seen a mammoth growth in the vocabulary of the English speaking peoples. Our dash into the jet age has brought an avalanche of scientific and technical words, as well as an explosion of regional dialects and slang.

We've borrowed words from all the major languages, especially from the French, German, Latin as well as the Scandinavian. With more than a million words at our command, we can "talk up a storm" and be understood by people throughout the world. English is now spoken by more people than any other language except Chinese.

In the late 15th and early 16th centuries a great vowel shift took place in the pronunciation of words.

It caused the letters a, e, i, o and u, to differ in pronunciation from the way other European languages were pronounced. Scholars can now ascertain when words were borrowed by the way that they are now pronounced, giving rise to the term B.N.S., before noun shift.

The French word came before, the Italian violin, stanza, cameo, during the Renaissance, along with words borrowed from more than 50 languages.

AMERICANS began to form their version from the moment the first pilgrims stepped ashore. Before there were unknown peoples, animals and plants.

With a directness of mind they tackled the problem of names, trying when they could to transpose the Indian names into meaningful, easy-to-pronounce English words.

Confusion hit both sides of the language barrier. For instance poketawes. The new settlers were familiar with the maize that Columbus had brought back to the old world. It was known in England as early as the year 1555, but when the colonists reached Virginia the Indians told them the small golden ears were called poketawes and sometimes even hokotawes.

Finding these words clumsy, they soon began to call it by their more familiar old-world words: Indian corn or wheat. (In England any grain-producing plant was called corn, whether it was rye, oats, barley or other cereal-producing plants.)

It wasn't long before the white men had shortened the two-word combination to one: Corn, which referred to both the kernels and the plant. As the years went by, they developed the Indians staple into a variety of products; corn meal, whiskey, oil and syrup.

Even today, corn cob smoking farmers feed corn to their animals (any kind of grain) while modern young people laugh at trite, banal, sentimental or old-fashion songs, sayings or jokes they call corny. It being a great "old world" word.

The settlers found there were over 40 languages spoken by the natives of North America as they moved across the land. In their effort to translate these unusual Indian voice sounds, an immediate collocation of all the mother tongues took place.

NOW IN the United States only a scattered few still speak with the unclouded tongue of their fathers. The rest of us use an exotic blend of words drawn from the Indians as well as people and cultures throughout the world.

Many of the beautiful Indian words have been preserved, some in greater use and truth than others.

Names like Allegheny, Chesapeake, Chicago, Erie, Manhattan, Massachusetts, Natchez, Niagara and Omaha from the eastern half of the country and out West the hills ring with names like Apache, Cheyenne, Mojave, Siskiyou, Temecula, Tehachapi, Tujunga, Wichita, and Yosemite.

We barbecue over hickory, relish terrapin (turtle) soup, enjoy hominy grits baked squash, pecan pie and persimmon pudding, all named by the Indians.

Unfortunately however, they did not have a written language and seldom knew the real meaning of the words they used.

It was not until the great Chief Sequoyah (1760-1843) of the Cherokee Tribe invented an alphabet of 85 characters, that any real headway was made in the white man's understanding of the peoples and cultures that he had displaced.

So outstanding was Sequoyah (whose "white" name was George Guess) that the great redwood trees of the Western slopes and the coast line of the Sierra Nevada mountain range, as well as the famous Sequoia National Park in California, were named for this Indian leader.

His alphabet was so successful that its principles were used by the far-flung missionaries in their efforts to record all the Indian languages.

Because of the rich blending of the American English, Noah Webster in 1800 announced he would print a new dictionary. "Already there are many differences between England and America," he said.

TRULY he spoke. Each decade has brought newer, more complete dictionaries out to crowd the libraries and home bookshelves, each larger than the last.

The United States is probably the largest English-speaking country in the world, whose citizens, though having different accents speak and understand each other clearly.

Many common words and names are not the English, Indian, or "borrowed" phrases, but the modified change of the inventors or discover's name. People who made the news in their time.

George Washington Gale Ferris (1859-1896) was designer of the wonderful ferris wheel seen first at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893.

Muldoon, the San Francisco ruffian whose name hit the newspapers as Noodlum, either by mistake or by the reporters fear of reprisal during the Barbary Coast days contributed an oft-used word. The word, slightly changed to hoodlum, has been part of our language ever since.

Black Maria was the boarding house keeper who cooperated with Boston police when any of her sailor lodgers needed to be picked up. In 1847 a Boston paper speaks of a new black Maria being put into service.

Southern California is sprinkled with tall oil derricks. The name derrick has been common since the 17th century, when a hangman of that name became the talk of England by hoisting many notorious criminals to his high wooden cross bar.

REBELS with a grudge against a stubborn English land agent caused the man great trouble. Belligerent Irish farmers protesting high rents, banded together, and ostracized him from their town, successfully preventing Charles C. Boycott from making purchases in the town or hiring workers for his own

THE donut, or do-nut, has become an American staple, the top-of-the-morning diet of millions. Ever wonder how it got its name?

Early in the past century, some sources say, a Boston baker began to experiment with dough to provide his customers with the finest loaf of bread possible. But what he liked they didn't. And vice versa.

When he persisted in making what he thought was excellent bread and when the customers bought what he considered to be poor bread, he neared bankruptcy. So, bitter and defeated, he decided people were nuts and in exasperation he created, in protest, what he thought was the most indigestible concoction imaginable.

Everyone loved his new item. The baker named them dough-for-nuts and he became a successful businessman once again.

A nation that has grown accustomed to the melodies of The Pennsylvanians has grown up with the renditions of Fred Waring's group, which is celebrating 50 years of music.

YOUTH SINGS TO YOUTH

The Young Nostalgia

PERHAPS FRED Waring's very special kind of music nostalgically recalls youthful prewar days for a generation of Americans now painfully discovering it is becoming middle-aged.

But strongly assisting the 40-plussers in packing Long Beach's Municipal Auditorium for Waring programs in recent years is a younger element from the supposed rock n' roll generation.

Youth sings to youth and every season's tour brings forth its own brand of young musicianship. This year, for instance, 10 fresh, young talents will be showcased Thursday night when Waring and his Pennsylvanians concertize in the auditorium.

Singers or instrumentalists, the youngsters ably represent today's rising generation in Waring's famed aggregation, this year celebrating its 50th anniversary.

But, the musical past is not forgotten by the group which departs from its Shawnee Inn, Pa., headquarters to tour much of the U.S. With them yet is Poley McClintock, a member of the original 1916 jazz combo who, with Waring, is the only founder still active in the group.

Another oldtimer retaining the bloom and vigor of youth is the Pennsylvanians' haunting theme song, "Sleep," which has framed every Waring performance for a half-century.

"Visions of Sleep" was the theme's original title when composed in 1893 by blind church organist Adam Geibel.

The composition came to the attention of Waring and his brother, Tom, then the pianist for the small band, shortly after it was formed in Tyrone, Pa.

Tom Waring adapted the melody and wrote lyrics still sung by the Pennsylvanians. But when Geibel learned in 1916 that his hymn had been transformed into a popular song, he feared it might cloud his reputation as a church musician.

Fred and Tom settled the blind organist's fears by publishing "Sleep" under a nom de plume, Adam Lebieg, or Geibel spelled backwards. Though Geibel today may be remembered as the composer of some 3,000 hymns, his worldwide fame most likely would rest upon the continuing popularity of "Sleep" — were it not for his hesitancy so long ago.

McClintock, who grew up next door to the Waring in Tyrone, was a $3-night drummer in the original group. In those days he had a fine tenor voice — which was lost forever after a night in Detroit when he sang a ditty entitled "Oogie, Oogie, Wha, Wah" at a theater date.

His voice cracked and croaked then, but since that memorable night Poley's frog-voiced singing has become a delightful part of the Pennsylvanians' performances.

This year's new talent includes sopranos Beth Mayer, Linda Wicker, Janice Zoch and Karen Kopseng; male vocalists Leonard Krankendonk, Don Madaris and Ralph Isbell; singer-guitarist Karen Klein; banjo comedian Bobby Day and prize-winning accordionist Donna Lee Anderson.

The old and the new are represented by Poley McClintock, original member of group, and 18-year-old instrumentalist Donna Lee Anderson, youngest.

Don't You Notice Anything Different?

By Noel Gardner

I HAD WAITED impatiently for a month when, finally, the message came. A voice on the telephone said, "Your hairpiece will be here at 9:30 sharp tomorrow morning. Can you spare an hour for us to style it on your head?"

"I'll be there," I said.

Next morning I rushed to the shop. A special operator had come to Long Beach from Los Angeles to style the piece. Immediately he went to work. For nearly an hour he clipped, thinned, combed and brushed.

At last I emerged from the intensive care looking 10 years younger. But I wasn't sure I liked it. It appeared natural, all right! The hair blended perfectly with my own, and, short of the closest scrutiny, the hairline could not be detected as false. But it just didn't seem to be me looking out of the mirror.

Oh, well, I thought, the old image will just have to go; I'll soon get used to it. I'll be fun if nothing else, I thought, as I remitted more than a few twenties for the balance due.

Then I returned to my dry cleaning establishment where I had maintained a close, personal contact with my customers for over 15 years. It will amuse me to watch their faces when they notice my new hair, I thought.

SOON, THE WIFE of a local city councilman came in. Although she was comparatively new as a customer, she had seen and talked with me several times recently. Again she stood across the counter while we discussed her day-to-day problems. To my surprise she didn't even notice my new crop of hair. Well, she hasn't known me long, I thought. That explains it.

Next came a woman who had traded with me for fifteen years. She stood within five feet, looked straight into my face discussing her clothes with me as she had hundreds of times before, but never was there an indication that she observed the difference in my appearance.

Finally it was detected by a gentleman, a local truck salesman. An unusually affable man, he beamed broadly the instant he entered the door. "It looks great," he said, "Makes you look 10 years younger. You should have done it long ago." Suddenly I liked the man more than ever. We had a good laugh.

The next customer was female, a frequent visitor, and a close friend. For about five minutes, as we stood face to face discussing trivialities, I observed her countenance carefully. She gave no sign that she was aware of the change in my appearance. Finally I asked, "Don't you see anything different about me?"

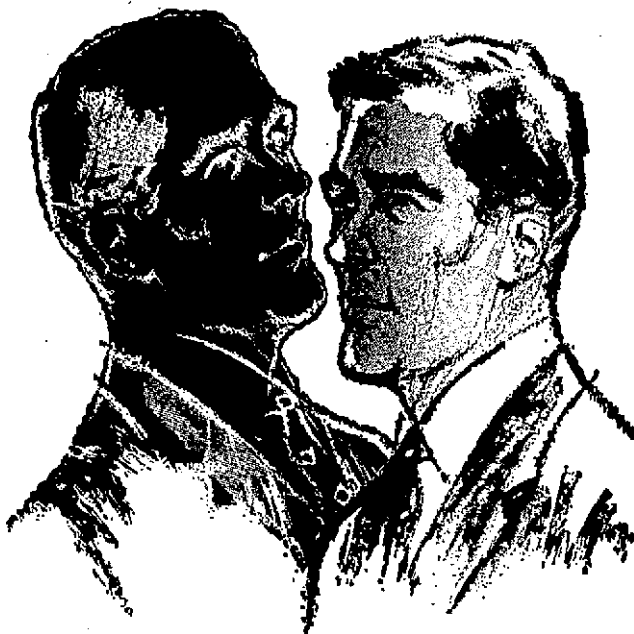

She scanned me from head to feet. "You've lost weight," she said.

"Yes, about 10 pounds," I said. "But there's something else."

"Well, you look sharp," she said after a second examination.

"Darling, I always look sharp," I chided. "But there's something else — something new!"

With my tongue in my cheek, I casually ran a comb through my hair.

"Oooh! Al, it looks good — so real!"

LATER THAT DAY, another friend and customer of long standing dropped in. After a long, inquiring look, he remarked, "You look different with glasses on; now maybe you can see the spots on my clothes..." I had worn glasses for 10 years.

Shortly thereafter a business associate with whom I had conversed almost daily for several years entered the shop and approached me gingerly. For several moments while we chatted, his uneasy eyes searched my face. Then suddenly he knew. "Oh my God! It's your hair!" he said. "You know — I was thinking that I'd never seen you with your hat off before..." I don't wear a hat.

But to top it all, my own daughter strolled into the store. Although she had lived apart from me for the last five years, she saw me often. Turning her laughing eyes upon me, she blurted, "You're trying to look like a surfer,

Questions and Answers

Q. Is the Justice Harlan now on the U.S. Supreme Court related to the Justice Harlan who sat on the Supreme Court in the late 1800s? L.S.

A. Yes. Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan of New York who took office on March 28, 1855, is a grandson of Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan of Kentucky who served 34 years on the U.S. Supreme Court bench, from 1877 to 1911.

Q. Has the Naval Academy ever retired a football player's number?—F.J.

A. On June 6, 1961, the Naval Academy retired half-back Joe Bellino's football jersey No. 27—the first time that the academy had ever retired a number in any sport. Bellino won the Heisman and Maxwell trophies in 1960. Upon graduation, in June Week, 1961, he received the Thompson Trophy for the promotion of Navy athletics and the Navy Academy Athletic Association Sword for personal excellence in athletics. He was the first Navy athlete in 42 years to win the academy's two top athletic awards.

Q. Is it possible to reglaze chintz curtains at home? L.O.

A. This can be done by dipping them in a thin solution of clear starch to which a small amount of wax has been added. Use paraffin or candle wax and stir it thoroughly into the hot starch solution. For a pair of curtains use a piece about the size of a walnut. Iron on the right side. Test the starch-wax mixture on a scrap of the chintz or a tie-back to be sure that it gives the desired effect before dipping the curtains.

Q. Which European cathedral in Europe holds (traditionally) the remains of the Three Wise Men? H.N.

A. Germany's Cologne Cathedral, the largest Gothic cathedral in northern Europe, contains the shrine of the Magi. THERE ARE 12,000 or so spectators in the huge arena to watch the Lakers play a basketball game, but those little fellows on the court aren't Lakers, they are — according to the lettering on their uniforms—Angels and Knights.

Up and down the long hardwood floor they scamper, tow-headed lads of 6 and 7. The crowd cheers are almost as loud as when the Lakers and Celtics were cavorting moments before.

But it's halftime and the two teams in court-center are from St. Joseph School in Long Beach.

True, those spectators came to see the Lakers but when the first, second and third grade moppets spin their classic halftime bit—a delightful blend of skilled basketball and Globetrotter-like comedy—fans stay seated instead of queuing up at the refreshment stands in the lobbies.

"These kids are no friends of the concessionaires," says Lou Mohs, general manager of the Lakers. "But we're in the business of providing winning entertainment and oh, how they please our patrons. The Lakers haven't been winning as much as we'd like this season but at least the St. Joseph's kids always come up with tremendous entertainment."

"THE MIGHTY Mites," as they've been christened by Chick Hearn, radio and TV voice of the Lakers, perform at six or seven Laker games a season, which is five or six times more than most of the other prelim guests. Last year the Mites were cheered by jam-packed houses for Laker playoffs with the St. Louis Hawks and Boston Celtics, modestly billed by the National Basketball Association as the World Series of Basketball.

"The kids are no taller than the table I'm sitting at and they're making shots some of the Lakers wish they could make," Hearn once told his radio audience. "They look good, they ARE good," he marveled, paraphrasing a familiar Hearn-ism.

The school's ambitious athletic director, Bob Fitzpatrick (cover), annually designates 20 lads, who must excel in class (B average or better) as well as in the gym, for the road-show squad. They stay with it two years and sometimes three before he readies a new group for the "show" team.

Fitzpatrick says it's much easier to train beginners than older boys because the youngsters have "open minds and no bad habits." Beginners learn zone and man-to-man defense within three weeks, he finds. But the road-show hot-shots play offense primarily because scoring is showmanship and a high-arch field goal by a child three feet tall is an achievement superior to a dunk shot by a seven-foot pro. And the kids work in their comedy routines, because who wants to watch a dull game? except, perhaps, parents of the players.

Shenanigans as well as superior play keep spectators entertained and have made Long Beach grammar school basketball teams toast of Los Angeles Arena. This lad makes end run down sideline with ball.

The Mighty Mites Who Captured the Arena

Quite often a pee-wee player will take the ball and sprint the length of the court out of bounds, break back on court toward his own basket and pass off to a mate for a spectacular, if illegal, score. Or a kid will tuck the ball under his arm, football style, and prance around—without dribbling. One lad does it with a hop, skip and jump, then whaps the ball through the hoop. Or a kid will dribble the length of the court to the wrong basket, with his opponents in furious pursuit, and then fire the ball all the way back to a mate standing alone for an easy score.

In the grand finale—every good act has one—subs of one team charge onto the floor to help their mates and the subs of the other side come bouncing out, too, and for the last 30 seconds of the game, it's a friendly riot.

FITZPATRICK REFEREES the games and controls them by coaching both sides during play. He'll even tip a loose ball to the losing side to help keep the score close. But sometimes the gimmicks surprise him as well as the audience. "I know something's up when I see some of them whispering together and winking, and then it pops."

It isn't all soft-nosed basketball, however. Several lads can do the wraparound—change hands on the ball behind their backs while dribbling, Walt Hazzard style. And a 7-year-old second grader named Tommy Check scored 21 points in an abbreviated Arena game. (The original Mites played a 4-4 tie in their first Laker prelim in 1963. Two years later the same teams fired away to a 36-31 score.)

About 50 boys have participated in the road show, which started four years ago when Bill Thompson, Intramural director at Long Beach City College, had them play a prelim as a City College game.

Then one night he asked them to help out on a basketball benefit program at Dominguez featuring the Los Angeles Rams against some television notables. The actors didn't bother to appear and the St. Joseph's kids, playing a full 48-minute game, were so impressive nobody asked a refund.

Thompson also works for the Lakers, in charge of special promotions, and next booked the boys into the Los Angeles Sports Arena, one team in cut-off shorts and T-shirts with lettering by mother, and the other in eighth graders' jerseys, flapping down to the knees.

A LAKER FAN, who must remain anonymous, but she is a blonde movie star and her initials are D. D., saw the boys that night and shortly thereafter she and her husband presented Fitzpatrick with a check to buy complete outfits for both teams, gold uniforms vs. blue, the Lakers' colors.

"I've had more fun watching you play than I've had since I was a kid," she told the kids and Fitzpatrick.

Mohs is understandably proud of the little super stars, on court and off. Neat and orderly, they wear dress shirts and ties, blazers and pressed trousers, and return in single file to their seats in the stands after performing. No levis and sweatshirts for Fitzpatrick's boys—and no straggling. "They're well behaved and well disciplined, and discipline is the basis of all sports," Mohs says.

A couple of years ago, a Laker secretary relates, she took a Minneapolis call for Mohs from Bob Short, then owner of the Lakers. "Tell him I'm tied up and I'll call him back in a little while," Mohs told the secretary. Mohs was "tied up" watching the Mites.

Hearn, who has had the TV cameras pick up the boys' show for national viewing during Laker playoffs, insists: "This is a starting point for future NBA stars. These kids are getting coaching most boys don't see until they get to high school."

They don't monopolize all Fitzpatrick's teaching time, however. His sports program is the pattern for other Catholic grammar schools in town, with almost every St. Joseph's boy on a team: pee-wee baseball, indoor hockey with plastic sticks and pucks, soccer or flag football. St. Joseph's is host to two basketball tournaments, which draw teams from 24 schools.

PHYSICAL FITNESS and competitive athletics are encouraged at the school by Rev. Walter A. Martin, the pastor. He's a sports enthusiast and a Lakers follower. His start-'em-young, start-'em-right program materialized under Fitzpatrick, a former Wilson High all-city athlete who also played and coached in the Army. Fitzpatrick, married and a father, is still working on his college degree but he's been coaching smaller kids since he was an eighth grader at St. Matthew's School.

The Mighty Mites are comparatively sophisticated now, but on their first visit to the Aruna, when they were assigned to a dressing room adjacent to the Lakers', they were so awed, so bashful, that some climbed inside the lockers to change clothes in privacy. One slammed the door shut and was extricated only when Fitzpatrick heard his frantic pounding and mournful cry:

"Help! Lemme out of here!"

THE DOORS OPEN AT 8 a.m., and immediately lines form. At 5 p.m., when the doors close, there still are people standing in line.

It's been a long day of frowns, curt words, an assortment of arguments, an occasional smile, a variety of grumbling and more than a few censorable phrases.

It's been a long day at the windows where traffic tickets are paid.

Clerks at the windows in the Long Beach Municipal Court's Traffic Division took in more than $1.6 million in fines and bail forfeitures during 1966, from nearly a quarter million traffic law violators. That's a lot of red lights, illegal left turns, overtime parkings and too-loud mufflers.

IN LOS ANGELES COUNTY last year, an official estimated, hasty and careless motorists forked over some $20 million in fines and forfeitures. The statewide figure is probably well over $100 million, a Department of Motor Vehicles official guessed.

Standing in line hardly ever is a pleasant task, but it's easy to imagine the tenor of the mood in Room 203 at 415 West Ocean Blvd. These line-standers have been summoned to make amends for misdeeds. It is often a painful summons. Oftentimes, too, the summoned are convinced they have been wronged and they arrive at Room 203 with elaborate explanations and when they find they cannot unleash those explanations they are convinced they have been further wronged.

It is surprising that in the face of such frowning the clerks in Room 203 can remain pleasant to even the most surly of the summoned. But pleasant they remain, not without considerable effort, right up to 5 p.m.

After the doors to Room 203 are closed and locked there is an audible sigh.

BUSINESS IS ALWAYS brisk at Room 203. Revenue from the various types of vehicle violations has jumped considerably in recent years, and Gene Davis, chief clerk of the Long Beach Municipal Court Traffic Division, suggests two reasons.

"First, of course, there are a great many more people and a great many more cars in the Long Beach area and throughout the state.

"And second, Long Beach is part of a county-wide central indexing system which records all citations for moving violations given anywhere in the country. When a speeder, for instance, brings his ticket into the office, we know in a moment whether or not he has received any other citations during the preceding 12 months. If there have been any, the repeat offender discovers, he has to dig deeper into his wallet than he expected.

"For each prior moving violation," Davis explains, "the bail to be posted goes up $5, so that if a motorist has received a ticket which would normally cost him $17, it jumps up to $22 if he has received one previous ticket in Long Beach or anywhere else in the county during the year prior to the date he received the present ticket.

"If there have been three or more priors during the preceding year, or the total bail required is more than $50, the defendant is required to make a court appearance."

TOO, THE SIZE OF fines has risen in recent years as, apparently the horsepower of automobiles rises. One recent morning, for example, a young man approached the counter clutching a speeding citation and a $20 bill in one hand. He dropped both on the counter and when the clerk said "That will be $67, please," there was a loud thud caused by a falling jaw.

To illustrate how "business" has jumped in recent years, the 1962 revenue in Long Beach was $802,297. The 1966 figure more than doubled that.

(The great percentage of revenue stemming from citations issued by Long Beach police officers goes into Long Beach coffers, with the balance going to other governmental agencies. Tacked onto all moving violation bail and fine schedules is a penalty assessment which the state uses for driver education.)

The increase hasn't been matched by a corresponding increase in the number of Traffic Division employees. In 1962, a total of 12 employees worked in the division. In 1966, 13 full-time employees and three part-time workers handle the load under Davis' direction.

THE HUNDREDS OF COPIES of tickets they handle each day do considerable traveling before they wind up in the Long Beach office. Original copies of citations are sent to Los Angeles, where any priors are ascertained from the central index file and noted on the ticket before it is returned to Long Beach. The process usually takes 48 hours, but the motorist who brings his ticket in the day he gets it or the next day doesn't get a break.

The clerk simply uses a teletype machine to run a check, and the information is back from Los Angeles in 10 minutes.

"It really slows things up when the motorist doesn't bring in his copy of the citation," Davis says. "A clerk can find the original in seconds if he has the defendant's copy, but it takes him many minutes if he has to search for it.

And when 500 defendants come in each day, minutes become precious."

The clerk tells the motorist what bail he must post, and gives him a court date if he says he wants to plead not guilty. This saves the defendant an extra trip to court, but not many people appreciate the convenience.

"So many people want to argue their case to the clerk," Davis says, "and of course they can't, because the clerk is just there to do his job, not the judge's.

"Others complain because they can't go to trial immediately, and have to come back. But we don't know when a defendant is going to come in, and we don't know how he's going to plead so we can't have the traffic officer there to testify as to why he issued the citation," Davis says.

"DESPITE A SIGN explaining this, many people insist on telling the clerk how come they shouldn't have been given the ticket in the first place."

"And we hear some dandies. Like the woman cited for running a signal, who said she certainly wouldn't have gone through the red light if she'd seen it, but she hadn't seen it so really it wasn't her fault."

Many people wish to plead guilty, but want to explain the circumstances to the judge, and so there are seven traffic court sessions daily. The defendant can go right to court and tell his story.

Most of the stories offered simply reflect the motorist's ignorance of traffic laws, and some of them are fanciful creations of the imagination which draw either scorn or admiration from the judge, depending on their originality, but little sympathy.

Some explanations, however, do persuade a judge that while a statute may have been violated, the circumstances were such that no punishment should be meted. One classic case was repeated recently in "The Minute Book," a publication put out by the state's municipal court clerks association.

It seems a mother was driving on a freeway with her two children, when her son's pet lizard got loose and crawled up her capri pants. The mother stopped the car on the freeway shoulder, hastened out, and began a frantic dance trying to shake the reptile loose.

A PASSING MOTORIST believing the woman was suffering an epileptic seizure, stopped, ran to her, threw her to the ground and tried to jam a pen in her mouth so she wouldn't swallow her tongue, a procedure he'd evidently read in a first aid manual.

A third motorist, seeing the two struggling figures, stopped his car believing that an assault was taking place, and ran to the scene and started wrestling with the suspected assailant.

All a passing patrolman saw was a cluttered freeway, so he did his duty. The explanation convinced a judge, however, and no one came out a loser.

Except the little boy. The lizard got away.

Seldom does the line disappear in front of the windows of the Long Beach Municipal Court, traffic division. Last year there were nearly a quarter million violators processed here.

FREDDIE BEAVERS is a mild-mannered 47-year-old grandfather with a deep tan from desert living. He is also a one-armed human fly who services the 360 tons of moving cable strung clothes-line fashion on five steel towers tacked to the side of Mt. San Jacinto near Palm Springs, a contraption called the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway.

To Beavers his occupation is nothing to get excited about. But to the thousands of people who ride the famed cable cars annually and see him in a bright red suit, perched on a tiny platform 35 feet above their heads as they whiz up from the desert floor, Beavers is a daredevil with nerves of steel. The fact is, he is something of a tight rope walker when the occasion demands it, but as he hastens to explain, "It's all part of my job."

Specifically Beavers' job is to inspect, service and repair the maze of cables that composes the tramway system. To do this he rides on a tiny platform inches from the speeding lines every working day with nothing but a safety belt between him and the canyon floor that's sometimes 1,000 feet below.

Often he will walk out on the slippery, grease-covered cables to service or check something. Or he might be seen scrambling over the towers on catwalks or hard at work changing one of the tires that support a moving tram car on the "track cables."

The combination of height, risk and his handicap might have sent lesser men to retirement. Beavers has never considered the possibility of quitting his profession as a high cableman. "It's what I like to do," he remarked, "and I intend to keep right on doing it."

WORKING ON tramways and in high places is nothing new to Beavers. Ever since he was 18 years old he has been in construction. Bridges, dams, hydro-electric projects anything that needed someone with guts to climb scaffolds, swing on cables or risk his neck to get the job done.

It has been 20 years since a lashing cable on the San Vicente Dam project near San Diego tore off his left arm. At the time it happened doctors advised him to quit construction and learn to use his artificial arm in some other occupation. Brushing aside the doctors' suggestions, Beavers went back to high construction work in nine days. He's remained at it ever since.

When he decided he didn't like the artificial arm, Beavers returned that to the doctors as well. "That thing was too much trouble, I get along fine without it," he said. Evidently his boss agreed because he has never been asked to wear one since.

Passengers who see him at work on the cables at the tramway frequently ask if he is frightened during the rare occasions he has to work in high winds when the cables have been lashed by winds approaching 100 miles an hour or in the snow storms that lash the summit of the tram system in the winter. "If I didn't know what I was doing then I might get scared," Beavers replies, "but I know what I'm doing out

John Garcia, off on another expedition into the seldom-visited interior of Mexico, has a theory about a long-lost civilization.

Visits to The Trenches of Old Mexico

By Art Vinsel

ON THE MAGDALENA River in the gold country of Sonora, Mexico, a Huntington Beach man has perhaps found the "industrial complex," which supplied Southwestern Indians with trade items more than a millenium ago.

Just who the enterprising Indians were, however, remains a question for the archeologists to ponder. Their identity may never be known.

"I think they were the Hohkan (or Hohkam) People," says John Garcia, owner of a lamp shop in Huntington Beach.

During the five years he spent studying art and ceramics in Mexico City and Guadalajara, Garcia developed a consuming interest in the folkways and culture of the Southwest. Today, he visits Las Trincheras—"The Trenches"—at least twice a year on trips to gather relics and artifacts.

Lying near the Arizona border about 700 miles and 12 hours' driving time from Long Beach, Las Trincheras is a dusty, rugged mountain, crisscrossed with apparently sacred markings. Experts say they are not the same as those used in primitive agriculture. Amateurs as well as professionals have combed the area for souvenirs of another age—potsherds, skulls, axe-heads, and bone chips. They are dirt-caked and primitive, but fascinating.

So treasure hunters may as well stop reading right here.

"THERE'S NONE of this Montezuma stuff," says Garcia, a lean, intense man who lets his heavy, brown moustache grow on forays into the region. The moustache is a symbol of "nacho," or robust masculinity, to the Indians.

"No," he says, concerning the prospect of buried treasure, "the northerners never reached a high degree of development as did the Aztecs and Incas." The Hohkan People were just learning to fashion figurines when they vanished. Only about 100 of those early art objects exist in collections and museums.

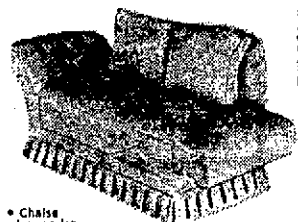

The "treasure" Garcia picks up consists of broken bits of pottery and other remnants of a culture which ended mysteriously in a mass exodus about 1,000 years ago. The Hohkans moved away about the same time the famed Arizona cliffdwellers left their unique sandstone pueblos.

"It might have been a drought—who knows?" says Garcia, who is most at home in his shop, whose shelves are crowded with an intriguing array of present-day Mexican wares. One can find anything from stew pots holding several gallons to candlestick holders, wall plaques, dolls and figurines, to paper flowers, beads and even hot chocolate stirrers.

His theory is that the bygone people of Las Trincheras literally ran a mint, where money bracelets made of clam-

YOU'LL BE happy you prepared the soil now for spring planting of dahlia roots because you'll have much better plants and harvest lovelier blossoms! Scatter up to four pounds of bone meal over each 100-square foot area of the pre-moistened soil. Spread an inch of manure and the same amount of one of the organic mulch materials over it. Unless it rains soon, water down. Let it stand on top of the soil for a month or longer, then dig it into that ground.

KEEP THE SOIL moist around recently set out bare root plants. When growth is about half inch long, and thereafter, water as plants need it.

shell were manufactured and put into circulation. He has followed the Magdalena River to the Gulf of California and located many of the tribe's campsites, where clamming parties rested.

THEY WERE SEEKING glycymeris clams, a shellfish about the size of a man's hand and found only in the warm waters of the gulf. Once carted back to Las Trincheras, craftsmen cut round center sections out of the shells, leaving a durable bracelet-like ring, the edges of which were smoothed down for wearing comfort.

"Those pieces are all over the place at Las Trincheras," says Garcia, "I'm sure that was where most of the bracelets were made."

Rockhounds, archeologists and history buffs have found the bracelets all over the Southwest, including some worn by the dead in ancient burial grounds in Orange County. The number of bracelets worn apparently denoted wealth and social status, Garcia believes.

But other things too, are found at Las Trincheras, where drawings, or cryptographs showing humans, deer and geometric designs are still visible after 10 centuries. Among them are arrowheads, stone "mictates" or grinders, potsherds and ornaments. Bones litter the area, some of them apparently used as tools and others from animals eaten by the tribe.

"The shell-workers, the pottery-makers, the tool-cutters all apparently had their own areas there," says Garcia, who is especially interested in the potsherds. He operates a kiln to fire the ceramic pots he molds and his wife Sybil finishes, in production of their widely-sought decorator lamps. Some of the work has been featured in home magazines and decorator journals.

"But I'm a finder, not a digger," he said of exploring the Hohokan sites. Each discovery is tagged, dated and identified for later reference. Scientists at the University of Arizona visited Las Trincheras several years ago and dated the latest artifacts unearthed at somewhere around 1,000 years old. By digging to a depth of five feet, they found potsherds showing a natural "backward progression," from painted and figured work to plain, crude pots. Only two of the latter have been found intact.

AS FOR WHAT GARCIA selects to bring back for his own collection, it is probably of interest primarily to archeologists and history hobbyists.

"Nobody would place any intrinsic value on the things I collect," he says,

Visits to the Trenches

adding, "but then I've developed a real interest in the Indians."

"It's the life that's exciting," he points out, "an archeologist would rather dig in a garbage pit than a burial ground."

The Las Trincheras region, center of much Jesuit missionary activity, is also steeped in more recent history. It was once known as "Alta Pimeria," or upper Pima country, for the Pima Indians who live there. The Pimas wove a long-fibered cotton which today puts the tribal title on quality shirt collars and skirt labels. The tribe in Mexico is accepted among the population, Garcia explains, while in America, they still live on reservations.

Casual tourists find that although the Indians left no Montezuma's treasure trove, wandering cowboys may still try to sell poke bags or rifle shells filled with tiny desert gold nuggets.

"They know me now and don't try to sell to me any more," says Garcia, noting that natives of the area are unusually helpful when visitors appear to be in trouble and have difficulty with the language.

EACH WEEK-LONG TRIP finds Garcia and whoever accompanies him, camping by a spring-fed stream on the rancho of Jerrado Murrieta. Granddaddy mesquite trees have dipped their roots into the flowing water for years; the shade is cool and firewood is easily gathered.

"I call Jerrado 'Gringo' now," says Garcia, chuckling, "he just found out after all these years that he's an American citizen, born at an Arizona mine where his father worked."

Garcia's trips to Las Trincheras may turn up none of the fabled gold which has sent others plunging into Mexico's arid state of Sonora, but the rewards are there nonetheless.

There is the adventure, which so few of us dare to undertake anymore. There is the personal satisfaction in honest fatigue, earned by lugging a bag of pottery and heavy rocks, taken only because they were once destined for the craftsman's shaping into tools.

And too, there is the clean, sharp taste of tequila with lime and salt as one stares at the campfire in the darkness, pondering the secrets of the land and its ghosts of a thousand years past.

BLOOMING PINEAPPLE CRUNCH PIE

A fabulous almond and pineapple crunch layer bakes beneath the bottom crust in this upside down pie.

- |  |                             |
|--|-----------------------------|
| 3 tablespoons butter                       | Whole or halved             |
| ½ cup brown sugar (packed)                 | blanched almonds            |
| 1 tablespoon water                         | Pastry (basis 2 cups flour) |
| 1 (1-pound 4½-ounce) can pineapple tidbits | Pineapple Filling           |

Melt butter over low heat in 9-inch pie plate. Sprinkle brown sugar evenly over bottom and drizzle with water. Remove from heat. Arrange drained tidbits over bottom and around sides of pan in an attractive pattern. (Use remaining pineapple and syrup in filling). Arrange almonds in same way. Carefully line prepared pie plate with rolled out pastry allowing ½-inch overhang. Spoon in Pineapple Filling. Cover with pastry. Bring overhanging pastry edge up and over top. Flute edge to seal; prick top. Place pie on square of foil to catch syrup that might bubble over. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 25 minutes or until pastry is crisp and browned. Remove from oven and turn out, upside-down, onto serving plate. Cool. Delicious with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

PINEAPPLE FILLING

Combine reserved pineapple tidbits and syrup with ½ cup water, ½ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook, stirring until mixture thickens. Stir in 2 tablespoons lime juice, 2 tablespoons butter and ½ cup flaked coconut.

SPRINGTIME PINEAPPLE CAKE

Pineapple cake done in a ring mold with almost as much fruit as cake is a favorite with the ladies.

Melt butter over low heat in bottom of 6 to 8 cup ring mold (9-inches diameter, 2½ to 3-inches deep). Tip mold to coat sides. Sprinkle brown sugar evenly in bottom. Arrange drained pineapple slices over bottom and around outer side of mold. Place cherries inside pineapple slices; arrange pecan halves around sides. Remove from heat. Prepare cake mix following package directions. Carefully spoon batter into mold, filling ¾ full. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 to 50 minutes or until cake tests done. Remove from oven; let stand a minute or two, then loosen cake with a spatula or knife. Turn out, upside down, onto serving platter. Serve warm with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

A FEW DOLLARS and a lot of "sense!" A four-year-old marriage, a new baby and a small budget were incentives for purchasing a South Bay-area home.

No one was more surprised than Mrs. G. Gordon Getz when her husband bought a mortgage foreclosed house. The practical purpose behind this type of buying is that no down payment is required—just an assumption of payments.

But when Getz asked his wife if she could live in the house, she replied, "No, it's so messy and I just don't like it!" But it was too late—so they moved from their apartment to her parents' home for two weeks while they made the new home liveable.

were made in the interior and, today, hardly anything remains of the original.

ONE MAJOR expense was painting the exterior white with soft blue trim to match a blue rock roof. The contemporary tract home began to take on a more expensive and cared-for look.

Cost of the front exterior: $250.39. This included paint, help, brick work and petunias planted, plus a tremendous amount of hard work.

The Getzes worked together on the interior. Mrs. Getz did the decorating while he did the manual labor.

The foyer was reasonably coordinated with the living room by adding foil wallpaper in tangerine and green shades. Since the foyer was small, the guest closet was wallpapered after the door was fitted closely with piano hinges.

A NEW curved vinyl floor in beige with green and brown was added at a cost of $8. The wallpaper was slightly more expensive, $12, but the Getzes felt it was worth it.

The living room was decorated by disaster. A pole cabinet fell to the floor, spilling the contents. At the same time the hot water heater seeped water into the old carpeting causing it to mildew. The insurance company became the benefactors and new avocado carpeting was installed in the living room and hall.

Danish walnut furniture was the Getzes' quality purchase. With $2,000 in savings when they started married life, they felt the best investment would be good furniture. The eight-foot beige slub silk sofa fits as well in this house as it did in their former apartment. The tables are all slab with beveled edges. One custom purchase was the ill-fated stereo, dry bar and china cabinet, all enclosed on a spring pole which has a tendency to give way.

The fireplace was in very bad condition with loose used brick. With the help of friends, repairs were made and the facade was painted white. A snap-in screen, an under-$20 purchase, completed the room after the walls were painted white.

WITH THE exception of one bedroom, white paint was used throughout to eliminate waste in color change. The A-frame, open-beam ceilings were painted to match.

The living room was the easiest and the least expensive to redecorate. Even the rains cooperated by showing the Getzes where the roof leaked!

The living room is separated from the dining-kitchen by a floor-to-ceiling open book case. A decision was made for them when the Getzes cleaned and sanded the cabinets and the bookcase only to discover dirt and grease had been absorbed into the wood and the only solution was to use a glossy walnut finish. Cleaning the hardware alone took three days although the savings were worth the effort.

After the copper hood and fan were fitted properly, tiles were replaced in the soft green shade used throughout the kitchen. The walls were papered in bright, cheerful tangerine and green vegetable print.

ONE OF THE kindest house-warming gifts was the use of a friend's house-keeper for one day—and it took exactly that to clean the stove and bathrooms.

Getz discovered at this point that it was not possible to replace a single tile—it had to be done in a unit, a slightly expensive lesson.

All of the plumbing was replaced during this you-and-dad-do-it period.

The white wrought-iron dining furniture was a wedding gift and their Christmas gift to each other is a Tiffany lamp to be used above the table.

The beige-with-brown kitchen floor has a dash of turquoise. It was in good condition, so the Getzes retained it—but chose to use accent colors they preferred.

THE DEN is the used-for-everything room—ironing, sewing and baby.

A gift of beige bamboo draperies made the grasscloth wallpaper an easy decision. The paper was difficult to hang and comparatively expensive, $30—but the Getzes preferred quality and felt the labor saving allowed for an occasional spurge.

ferred quality and felt the labor saving allowed for an occasional spurge.

The open-beamed ceiling was stained copper, an old garage storage chest was antiqued green as was a desk from Getz' office which serves many purposes—including as a sewing surface. Two redwood benches were brought in, painted green and placed side by side to hold the television and allow for additional seating. For comfort on the benches, Mrs. Getz made brightly-printed cushions and stacked them in one corner. The same fabric backed the inexpensively framed certificates collected by both young people.

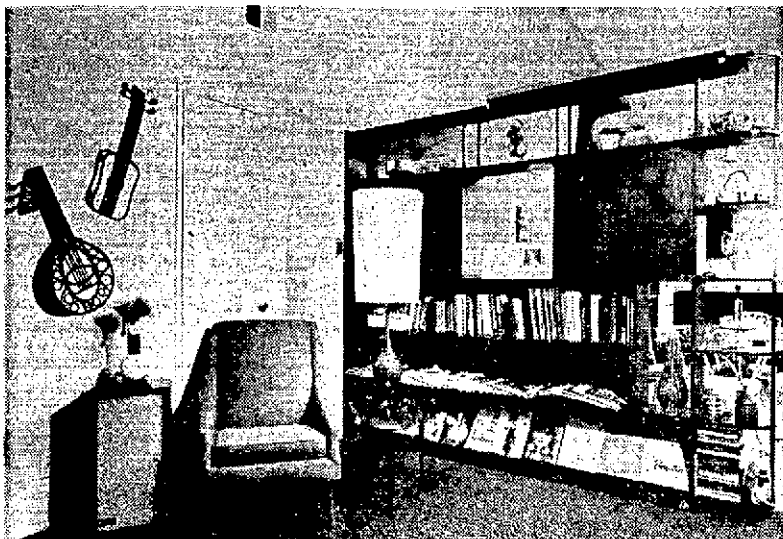

The den bath was wallpapered in a coordinating floral print at a cost of $4. A new medicine chest and white carpeting were the luxury installations, although curtains from their previous apartment blended well. The carpet was a decision made because the expense was less than retiling for color change, and the cost for the two baths was $25, although that had not been intended originally. Mrs. Getz admits she made a slightly costly error.

The den opens onto pool and patio. The pool will be covered with redwood decking and used as a raised patio. This would allow for pool use if another family should prefer, although the Getzes would rather not have it exposed since they have a small child.

THE NURSERY is all baby-boy with chocolate

ble at this point to incorporate color. She already had made use of some of the former living room carpeting, exchanged a white bedspread with her mother for the hot-pink silk brocade,

Far corner of Getz living room is set apart for quiet reading and relaxing by use of bookcase-room divider. Color scheme matches walnut in shelves ceiling and blue paint alternating with chocolate, blue and gold wallpaper. Figures from the wallpaper were cut out, mounted on colorful mats and frames along with two oversized animal greeting cards. The high recessed windows were outlined in blue, then white shutters were added.

An unpainted chest was a baby gift, and it was painted white to match the rocker. Including a second-hand "find" in baby crib and bathinette, all repainted, little Garrett's room was finished for less than $60.

Mrs. Getz describes the master bedroom as wall-to-wall bed! The room is 10 by 10, but the decorating belies the fact. By using all white paint on the walls, ceiling, two night chests and a rattan chair, Mrs. Getz decided it was possi-salvaged some water-damaged draperies, then fitted the white draperies from floor to ceiling and finally added a scalloped-print valance to match the chair cushion. With the exception of the paint, the cost to decorate this room was exactly $10, including the about-to-be-wired kerosene lamp.

The master bath is called the "wild bathroom." One wall has foil paper in shades of hot pink, red and white. Originally, they intended to cover all the walls, but realized the paper was overpowering, so the other walls were painted white to match the carpeting. Mrs. Getz still felt the room was cold after she added a white Austrian curtain so she designed a red denim canopy to hang over the tub on a long white cord allowing the scalloped and fringed front to soften the space between the tub and the wall.

TOMATO RED towels and accessories are finishing touches and the total cost for the master bath was $35.

Since the bedrooms are small, the guest bedroom also is a part-time dressing room, but a gay, cheerful one. The only change from white paint was a lightly-tinted lavender to blend with lavender-and-green print wallpaper already on the wall. The closet door was painted a deeper lavender and the perfect fit was the furniture Mrs. Getz enjoyed in her room before she was married.

The furniture was all white contemporary with drawers painted lavender. An inexpensive white bedspread was purchased for the bed and a canopy in coordinating print was used over the bed. This eliminated the need for draperies since it completely covered the windows and dropped low over the bed. This was the ideal solution since the bedroom is exposed to the front of the home and the canopy gives complete privacy. No carpeting was used after the hardwood floors were refinished. A wicker clothes hamper was painted lavender, then cushioned with the same print for seating. The ceiling in this room is rubbed-off lavender.

Final accounting shows that while they intended to spend $500, the total ran to slightly less than $1,000—but the expenditure has increased the value of the home by almost $5,000.

East Side, West Side

■ IN APRIL, 1524, the first men who weren't Indian saw Manhattan.

They were the crew of Giovanni da Verrazano, an Italian explorer working for France, who had sailed into the lower bay. It was, thought Verrazano, "a pleasant place."

Thirty canoes of Indians came to look over the 50 Europeans. "They came toward us very cheerfully," the Italian wrote, "making a great show of admiration, showing us where we might come to land most safely." Verrazano would have liked to stay, but a storm came in from the Atlantic, and he headed back to sea.

Like most explorers, Verrazano pinned names on everything he saw. He called the upper bay the Gulf of Santa Margherita, after the French king's sister, and named the Hudson River the Vendome, for the Duke of Vendome. It didn't catch on.

Edward Robb Ellis starts his lively history, The Epic of New York City (Coward-McCann, $12.50), with Verrazano's 50 men and takes it right up to James V. Lindsay. In between there are times of turbulence without number.

There was Captain Jacob Leisler, who in 1689 led a rebellion against Gov. Nicholson for "the preservation of Protestantism." Leisler, supported by the militia and the lower classes, seized the fort and the public funds. He was hanged.

Captain Kidd came to live in New York in 1691. He was a highly respected citizen then, and helped build the original Trinity Church. He married a beauty, Sarah Oort Cox, who had been twice widowed. There was talk at the time that Gov. Fletcher took bribes from pirates.

A slave market opened in New York in 1711—on Wall Street. All wealthy whites owned slaves and treated them harshly. The white believed Negroes lacked souls, and discouraged them from embracing Christianity. Masters refused them permission to be baptized. On April 17, 1712, 23 slaves armed themselves with guns, knives and hatchets and killed a number of the harshest masters, burning their houses. Some of the rebels were burned alive over a slow fire.

Treatment of slaves became more repressive after the 1712 insurrection. Masters often whipped slaves to death. The whites of New York went mad in 1741 when they imagined a plot to establish a slaves' monarchy. In little more than three months, 14 Negroes were burned alive, 18 hanged, 71 banished to the West Indies and 154 imprisoned. Four whites supposed to be in on the plot were executed.

There was even a police riot in New York. It happened on June 16, 1857. The state had organized a metropolitan police force and ordered the city to disband its municipal force. Mayor Fernando Wood refused. On the steps of city hall the two forces clashed and it was a bloody combat. Clubs cracked skulls, fists smashed faces.

The book is a mine of information of other facts, too; of Broadway's beginning as a war path; of Congress discussing burning New York to the ground; of the mobs in 1788 that attacked all doctors they could get their hands on; of the tavern that became New York's first city hall; of the breaking of the Japanese naval code in the New York Public Library, and countless others.

Seldom-Told Air Stories Given Life

BOLD MEN, FAR HORIZONS, by Herbert Molloy Mason Jr. Lippincott, $4.95.

MASON HAS made a purely arbitrary choice of courageous epics of flight to chronicle in his book; some of them, such as the round-the-world journey of the U.S. Air Service's Douglas Cruisers in 1924, are found in any similar work but others related here have seldom been told in the wealth of detail that this author provides.

For example, even aviation buffs are vague concerning accomplishments of Sir Alan J. Cobham, who flew from Cairo to Cape-town over wild, hostile territory dotted with the remnants of aircraft — and pilots — who had previously attempted it. Also, the stir-

'Where Sun Vanished Into Sea'

THIS ENGLAND. National Geographic Society, $11.95.

AS IS the custom with the National Geographic Society, This England is a richly-illustrated volume. As one expects from National Geographic publications, and is never disappointed, the lion's share of the photographs and paintings are in rich color—and this is the case with no less than 620 of the 658 illustrations in this book.

The reproduction of the pictures, the quality of the printing, is of an excellence seldom reached nowadays in book publication.

The book, to begin with, is England's story from the beginning, when "a people wandering westward came to a land where the sun vanished into the sea. When ice glazed that land, they huddled in caves."

The historic aspects, the descriptions of the land that is England and the people who are Englishmen and Englishwomen, are done with the accuracy and simplicity (but never one of writing down) that also are a part of the National Geographic tradition.

But, of course, it is the pictures that are memorable. To single out the most exceptional from over 600, all of which are exceptional, is almost an impossibility, but this reviewer cannot forget:

—The Life Guards of the Queen's Household Cavalry as they ride imperiously, veiled in a lace-like snowfall.

—The scenes in Hyde Park, wherein an African inveighs on Pan-Africanism and a prophet of doom carries a huge sign: "Flee from the wrath to Come."

—The Billingsgate porter carrying a crate of fish on his hat.

—The Oxford undergraduates in "sub fuse," Oxford's full academic dress, holding a post-mortem on exams as traffic roars by them.

—A Gypsy caravan, in all its gaudy panoply, rolling on automobile tires but drawn by a plodding horse.

Uncensored Documentary of Spanish H-Bomb Hunt

THE DAY THEY LOST THE H-BOMB, by Christopher Morris. Coward-McCann, $5.

ON Jan. 17, last year, four hydrogen bombs, were lost when a B52 of the Strategic Air Command and its jet-fueling tanker were destroyed in a collision over the coast of Spain. Three were quickly found, spaced a mile apart, around the primitive village of Palomares. Two months later the fourth was located 2,550 feet down on the ocean bottom and on March 25 it, too, was retrieved.

During "Operation Broken Arrow" — the biggest U.S. military operation of the 1960's outside the Vietnamese war—Pentagon security considerations permitted only abstract bits of information to filter through heavy censorship.

Now Christopher Morris, Spain correspondent for a London newspaper, who was one of the first on the spot and under no obligation to respect military censorship, gives his version of what happened. It's a thoroughly competent documentary of that harrowing, terrifying affair, with all its international ramifications.

Morris estimates Broken Arrow, which deployed 18 ships and 3,000 men, cost a shocking $84 million. He tells how 1,100 tons of contaminated earth and tomato vines were scraped from the farms of Palomares and shipped in 5,000 barrels for burial at the AEC's complex at Savannah River, near Aiken, S.C.

He writes of mysterious black boxes, containing classified material, also seen parachuting into the sea, and the recovery of at least one. The huge space-age armada, with three space-age submarines, and its array of maritime scientists and experts, including Jon Lindbergh, actually was unable to find the fourth H-bomb, Morris reveals, and was finally guided to it by a Spanish fisherman, Francisco Simo, who had seen the aerial collision. Simo was decorated by the United States and received Spain's highest naval award.

Morris reports the movements of the Russian trawler that spied on Broken Arrow; and the role played by the robot vessel CURV (Cable-Controlled Underwater - Research-Vehicle) in the recovery of the fourth bomb. CURV was airlifted to the scene from Long Beach Airport.

Severity Overrated in Glandular Fever

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Editor

SEVERITY OF GLANDULAR fever (infectious mononucleosis) has been overrated, a campus doctor contends.

Dr. John H. Flinn, director of health services at the University of Rochester, marked ester, says the disorder, marked by swollen lymph glands in the neck, causes more absenteeism from school than necessary.

Prolonged bed rest hinders rather than helps, he says.

There may be prolonged weakness after recovery, and Dr. Flinn believes lasting symptoms—those after four to six weeks—may be due to too much physical restriction rather than to the disease itself.

AN OLD HAZARD of drinking moonshine whisky continues to show up: gout.

The condition is caused by lead poisoning, brought on by exposure to whisky-contaminated stills put together with lead solder.

One doctor reported to the American Rheumatism Association that all but one of 34 gout patients were on moonshine. The sole exception was a house painter who used lead paints.

Dr. Gene V. Ball of University of Alabama Medical Center says moonshine gout is not limited to the South, as is popularly thought.

The three largest illegal stills seized by revenue agents the year before last were in the New York area.

A COMPOUND commonly used in medicine and pharmacy appears to be able to inhibit viruses.

The chemical is PVP, sometimes used as a blood-plasma substitute in the treatment of shock (circulatory collapse). It also is used as a vehicle to convey other drugs.

In a report in Nature, University of Miami (Fla.) researchers describe test-tube experiments in which PVP inhibited certain viruses.

One of the biggest pushes in medical research today is the attempt to find antiviral drugs that will combat a wide variety of virus diseases in man. No such drug now exists.

PROPAGANDA IS SNARLING efforts to obtain blood donations from Vietnamese.

Explains Col. Daniel C. Campbell Jr., USAF, MC:

"Charley (the Viet Cong) had circulated a rumor that blood donation would result in impotence and this is devastating to a blood collection campaign."

ELECTROCOAGULATION OF certain spots in the brain has eliminated the desire to drink among alcoholics, researchers in Santiago, Chile, report.

Coagulated was a brain site known as the dorsomedial thalamic nucleus. In each of three patients the nucleus on both the left and right sides was coagulated separately, about eight days apart.

One patient died 11 months after the operation during a heavy drinking bout. But the second has abstained completely from liquor for 24 months. The third patient also has experienced improvement, according to a report in Medical Tribune, newspaper for doctors.

SPECIALISTS in obstetric anesthesiology are being trained at Western Reserve University School of Medicine, Cleveland, in an effort to help reduce infant deaths.

Half of all births in the nation are unattended by personnel trained in anesthesia, it is reported. Furthermore, fewer than 1 per cent of the nation's 649 maternity hospitals provide 24-hour anesthesia service, even though half of deliveries occur at night.

YOUR GARDEN

Crape Myrtle Promises Beauty

PLANT A DECIDUOUS
(leafless in winter)
Crape myrtle tree or two in your yard, or a bush type, and you'll have about three summer months panicles (clusters) of gorgeously showy flowers. (The tree's botanical name is Lagerstroemia, pronounced lay-ger-stree-mi-a, named

By Joe Littlefield

by Linnaeus for his friend Magnus von Lagerstrom.)

These plants may be available for a brief time at some of the nurseries and cost less in bare root condition than they will in containers later in the year.
Mix at least one part of an organic material or one of the prepared planter mix mulches with two parts of soil, when setting out bare root trees. Be sure to firm the soil well at planting time. Feet tramping down the soil isn't firm enough.
You must use the round end of a shovel or a pick handle to firm well. The tree must be kept moist till it sprouts new growth.

There are two kinds of crape myrtles. The indica kind is available in seven color varieties, of pure red, snow white, rose-pink, brilliant rich red, shell pink, rose red and watermelon
red.

THE SPECIOSA,
"Queen's crape myrtle," produces large spikes of light lavender flowers.
(Don't blame your nurseryman if he doesn't have all the colors described. He loves trees and plants, otherwise, he wouldn't be in the nursery business. You mustn't blame him if he doesn't carry all color varieties of plants unless he gets periodic inquiries for them. He grows plants to sell because that is his livelihood, and therefore stocks plants that are regularly purchased. However, he happily can order plants he may not have, providing they are obtainable at wholesale nurseries.)

Even though crape myrtles originated in several warm regions of the world, from India to Australia, they are listed generally to stand cold from five degrees above zero to five degrees below. They love all the sunshine they can get and dry atmosphere. They are grown in desert areas too. Crape myrtles are most unhappy along the coast because they are susceptible to mildew. We've seen several of these mature plants growing there, but can imagine how much they must have suffered annually from mildew until they grew to a mature height.

Crape myrtles need lots more and frequent watering even though they grow well in desert areas.

Showy crape myrtle grows in tree form (above) and as bush. Either offers showy summer color.

GARDEN CLUBS

NORTH LONG BEACH
branch of the National Fuchsia Society will meet
Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at 3901 Atlantic Ave. to hear Loran Paulson describe pruning methods.

LANDSCAPE gardener
Roy Shiba will show slides of small oriental gardens at a 12:30 p.m. Thursday meeting of the Lakewood Garden Club, Lakewood Youth Center, Arbor Road and Woodruff Avenue.

A nursery lady in Yucaipa noticed her chunky crape myrtle, in a large container among other good shrubs, wilted more frequently than did the others. The foliage perked up shortly after it was watered, whereas the other plants then didn't need water.

A NEIGHBOR wondered why her mature, easily 30-feet tall, crape myrtle growing in the front yard shed leaves daily. We told her she must water the tree deeply despite the sprinkler system lawn watering; that kind of watering just wasn't sufficient. The tree dropped much less foliage when it was deeply watered.

Bulbs, too, need lots of water as they are growing actively to bloom later.
Several wholesale bulb growers believe if gardeners watered bulbs oftener the plants would develop longer stems and better blossoms too. Most of us luckily planted the usual spring blooming bulbs in the fall season. Now we have the opportunity to add several other kinds of bulbs in our gardens.

Hybrid amaryllis with the thick flower stalks and large trumpet shape flowers in several colors, may be planted in full sun or half shade location of the garden. Be sure the bulb necks are about half to an inch above the ground level.

YELLOW CALLAS
should not be planted in shade. The bulbs should get around half a day of sun, if you desire blooms! Pink callas require the same planting location. Any scale lilies bulbs (with flowers like Easter lilies) in several colors, too, should be set out at this time.

Chances are snails and slugs may not bother these bulbs as they start to grow.
Nonetheless, you'd be wise to regularly scatter snail bait to control pests throughout the garden area.
The snail-slug baits usually are effective. To get the most for your money and maximum annihilation, select the bait with a scent that teasingly lures them to their "final meal" on earth.

A percentage of pansies and violas may be doomed unless you uncover the soil over the crown areas where future blooming runner branches emanate from.
Plants die off when buried too deep. The lowest base area of the plant trunk where all new growth starts from should be above ground level.

They All Laughed When I-- built a boyack planter box

By Ted Krec

SWEEPING THE Midwest right now are the dreaded Polack stories, told something like this:

How many Polacks does it take to make popcorn?

Answer: Five—one to hold the pot and four to shake the stove.

Frankly, I was kind of in favor of Polack stories sweeping the Midwest because I'm a Czech (Bohemian style) by ethnic category. I automatically think anything is funny that is told about the Polish brethren.

PLEASE NOTE that I said I WAS in favor of the Polack stories—until my wife (Hungarian descent) combined one with a Czech story.

She told about the Polack carpenter foreman who observed a Czech carpenter sorting nails and throwing a goodly number away.

"Why are you throwing those nails away?" he asked the Czech.

"Because the points are on the wrong end!"

"Quit it—those are for the other side of the house!"

So it came to pass that I decided to build a planter box in my back yard. Right in the middle of the back fence is a rubber tree—for no reason at all. I decided to put a box around it with seats and plant the inside of the box with succulents.

MY WIFE viewed the proceedings with abject terror, since she knows how useless I am in the building business.

The Green Fumbler

When I put the redwood stain on it, I found the hammer planter box!" she scoffed, marks added to the charm. falling back on a derogatory Then I had to fill it—and adjective alluding to Bohemians.

I admit that my ancestors, the Bohemians, have achieved fame chiefly in the field of political assassinations—but this planter box turned out pretty good. Let me tell you about it.

First I staked out the area I decided to cover—the box would be six feet long, four feet wide and a foot and one-half high.

I began by anchoring two pieces of two-by-four to the concrete block wall with a star drill and expansion bolts. Then I got a piece of four-by-four (all redwood, naturally) and sank two-posts in the ground for the front supports. These I set in cement.

WHEN IT was dry, I framed it out with two-by-fours. Then, I bought some Sunday, January 22, 1967 inexpensive four-inch hill-and-dale lumber for the sides and front. This is so called because it actually is fencing with a knife-like edge on one side and a receiving slot like an arrow nock on the other. The pieces telescope together. I sheathed in the sides first, then overlapped the front pieces. The top was dressed around it with seats and plant wood boards and across the top front I nailed some long two-by-fours to make a slatted seat.

They laughed when I started, but howled when I finished.

Naturally, the whole mess is full of hammer marks, but Finally, after a few weeks, the box was nearly full, so I bought a few bags of builders sand, peat moss and planter mix and topped it off. After it was tamped down, I planted all my succulents.

Frankly, it looks great! And I wasn't worried about coming up on the trunk of the rubber tree with the planting mixture, since these trees will root from any spot, anytime!

I took out the back patio light and put in a floodlight to shine on the new creation and our guests are most appreciative.

Only one problem remains. The dog still fancies that left-front corner and he keeps excavating sleeping space for himself right in that spot. The attrition on succulents is high.

THE COST was remarkably low, since I haunted lumber yards until I found sales on the pieces I wanted. You don't need high-grade wood for a planter box—and as long as it's redwood, it will endure.

Even my wife says she likes it—and for a Hungarian to give the stamp of approval to a Bohemian project—well, it almost borders on the supernatural!

If you should desire to build something like this, I'd be pleased to send along a plan—Bohemian rough sketch of course—for a dime to cover cost of printing and mailing.

And in case you're using Polack nails, I'll indicate which ends should be pointed!

thicker. If he has been on the lean side, he actually may look semi-emaciated. The coat may seem harsher and perhaps thinner. Investigation may show skin tumors, dental caries, callosities and cataracts. And that gray muzzle probably wasn't there a few years ago.

The dog may be inclined to snap now and then, possibly due to loss of hearing, smelling or tasting. He may move at a slower pace and resist obeying commands.

recommend a dietric canned food. If not, be sure the dog has protein of good biological value to maintain a nitrogen balance. His carbohydrate and fat require-he can bask in companionship and feel loved. Do any necessary treatment at home, if possible. He will become extremely upset if you leave him with a veterinarian for any length of time.

A dog that drops in the hindquarters can perhaps live a few more months or even a few more years providing you can create some sort of wheeled device for him. Also massage his legs and hind parts. A heat pad may help too.

But when the final stages seem more than the dog can bear, do the merciful thing and have him put quietly to sleep.

NEXT SUNDAY: Orange Empire Dog Club will have a show and obedience trial at National Orange show grounds, San Bernardino.

Many older dogs, such as Lulu, above, live contentedly with family even though blind.

He may actually forget his clean habits since his mind has lapses in memory.

A TEMPERATURE test may turn up the fact that it reads less than normal. This is due to the decrease in the dog's normal functions and probably is not of serious nature. Regardless, he has a reduced metabolic rate, poor absorption from the intestinal tract and certainly needs to be fed correctly if he is to enjoy his old age to any extent.

Your veterinarian may ments may not be as high as usual, but there must be enough to provide the dog with energy. Honey added to the diet gives instant energy. A balanced vitamin and mineral supplement should be fed. He will need extra amounts if he is being treated with antibiotics which destroy intestinal bacteria needed for manufacture or use of vitamins by the dog.

See that the old dog has moderate exercise as well as lots of rest. Let him live closely with the family so huff? Combing your hair different!" She was sincere.

I had been a skinhead for 20 years — since she was three years old.

If there's a lesson to be learned from this story, I suppose it's this. Gentlemen, if you would wear a hairpiece to please or impress the women, forget it; they'll never notice the difference.

Why Do We Say? What Does It Mean?

corps. Boycott: a word still in the news.

In 1868, the President of the Scientific Association of Trinidad sent some tiny tropical fish to England. The small creatures bore their young every four weeks and thrived on mosquito larvae. Now dear to the Mosquito Abatement Officials, we can all thank Mr. L.J. Lechmere Guppy, who gave his name to a wonderful family.

Fresh fruits will soon be flooding the markets and one orange-toned favorite is the cantaloupe. They were first grown in Cantalupo, Italy, though their version is seldom grown in this country. We have given their name to a variety of muskmelons.

Common now is the hot dog. What ball game is a good one without this mustard-smeared snack? The Burgers of Frankfurt, Germany once relished these sausages of beef and pork with their ale. When we ask for frankfurters at the park or the delicatessen we're just being one of the gang.

Even the crunchy pretzel has a story the ale drinker might not know, and their inventor could be spinning in his grave, if he could know they were given out by tavern owners to encourage more drinking.

Several centuries ago, he was a monk who created a small brittle biscuit by folding its arms as if in prayer and awarded it to children for their excellence in religious study. Searchers of word origins found it in the Monk's German "pretzel," but perhaps it was also drawn from the Latin word "praeston" which means excellent. Either way, they're delicious.

THOSE quaffing their drinks in an American tavern seldom stop to consider why it is called a bar. The answer lies in the rough, burly days of our nation's beginning, when an innkeeper wanted to stop serving drinks and go to bed for the night. To keep the rum-thirsty fellows away from the bottles, he lowered a fence of iron bars that had been tied to the ceiling above the serving counter. Locked in behind the bars, the rum and whiskey was safe 'til the owner returned.

Men who feel they must top off their dinners with an aromatic cigar can thank the early pioneer drivers of the Conestoga wagons for the stogies. They wanted a smoke that would last a long time as they rode behind the slow oxen across the vast plains of America.

Perhaps they had the right idea, because they didn't rush away from their meal, but leaned back and enjoyed viewing the ever-changing land that drifted passed them.

Our language is changing fast. What will the next two score and 10 hold? Is the moon really made of dust or is there still a chance it's green cheese? It seems likely that when the first spaceship returns from the moon it will take all of our million words and more to tell about it.

Romantic Valentine Day Table Centerpiece Adds Hit-of-the-Party Look

NOTHING IN THIS world matters more than people. And—no matter how you look at it—where people are concerned, nothing matters more than love. It is the one universal human involvement. Isn't it great that we have a Valentine's Day to remind us how important love is? A time for parties and other events when people can become sentimental and say nice things to each other without being shy.

We wanted to make a contribution to this romantic and pleasant day so we have designed a colorful and eye-catching Valentine's Day table centerpiece. Gala and glamorous parties are always long remembered and nothing sets the stage as much as a beautifully decorated and inviting dining table.

If you want to achieve that hit-of-the-party look, and really impress that man in your life you can do it, and without breaking that proverbial bank, too. This centerpiece is made entirely of styrofoam and a few little ornaments, all of which are available at your local dime store. You will notice that the mail box is supported by an arrow protruding into the heart-shaped base. The box and base are bright red since gay colors always go with Valentine's Day. A little rick-rack around the edges, some glitter, a pretty bow plus a tiny cupid and your centerpiece is completed. The full size pattern gives complete details; it's something that any homemaker can undertake with success. Once completed you will find it to be very sturdy. It will last and may be used year after year for all sorts of romantic occasions.

To obtain the full size Valentine's Day centerpiece pattern No. 278, send 50 cents (add 25 cents for air-mail) by coin, check or money order to:

Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Patterns Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys 91409.

The only occupation hazard Beavers will admit to is the extremes in altitude he experiences in a trip up or down the mountain. "My ears pop like pop corn every time I make a run," he commented. Besides the altitude, freak weather is a factor in Beavers' professional life.

"I've started off at the Valley Station in a heat wave and stepped off my platform 15 minutes later in a snow storm at the top," Beavers said. "That's when I get out my winter underwear. Sometimes our passengers are wearing shorts or swim suits when I come out in a sweater and warm hat at the Valley Station. They look at me like I'm crazy but it's no picnic on top of those cars exposed to the weather. I don't think people believe it when you tell them it will be 40 degrees cooler at the top of the tramway," Beavers said with a smile.

THERE ARE no waiting lines for Beavers' job if he should ever decide to retire. And to date no sidewalk superintendents have tried to climb on his eight-inch platform to give him advice as he hangs suspended over one of the most spectacular cliff faces in America.

"Up here," Beavers once said as he stepped onto his platform for a ride to the top, "the only people we want are experts." At the moment that's all you'll find on top of the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway cars—just "experts." No others need apply.

Plans for Expansion

WHAT DO YOU do when a restaurant becomes too popular? That's a problem many restaurant owners would love to have, because they know that a restaurant packed with happy customers is a magnet which attracts more and more patrons to their door.

After being in business for over nine years at Cherry Avenue and Wardlow Road, on the Signal Hill-Long Beach boundary, host Nick Nickoloff and his son Carl have run head-on into that popularity problem. Their colorful restaurant, Nik's coffee shop and Viking Room, is jammed during peak luncheon and dinner periods with throngs delighted by the quality of the Nickoloffs' foods, their moderate prices and deft service by a large staff of lively waitresses.

The solution, of course, is expansion. For several months Carl and Nick have been studying architect plans and specifications.

Next summer, work will begin on an ambitious construction project which will enlarge both the coffee shop and the Viking lounge. It will be the second time expansion has been forced on the Nickoloffs in order to accommodate the crowds. Opened originally on Nov. 1, 1957, the restaurant was expanded in January 1962 when the Viking Room was added. Its popularity has been encouraged by the Viking's special dinners which—though low in price—include a glass of sparkling wine. Served nightly, except Sunday, are: spaghetti dinner every Monday, $1.10; ground round steak, Tuesday, $1.35; veal cutlet, Wednesday, $1.40; fried chicken, Thursday, $1.45; Australian lobster tail, Friday, $2.60, and tenderloin steak, Saturday, $1.60.

Manager Bob Madrano and his chefs also offer large complete dinners in the coffee shop, including steaks, halibut, shrimp, scallops and veal cutlets. The restaurant is open every day.

GLAMOROUS DINING—Distinctive decor. Distinguished cuisine. Unusually detailed service by captains, waiters and waitresses' assistants. Those are some of the highlights of one of Southern California's truly superlative restaurants—Chez Cary, 571 S. Main St., Orange. Emphasized by host Geril Muller are complete dinners as well as a la carte delicacies prepared with rich continental wine sauces. The complete dinners, $5 to $8, include soup du jour, tossed salad, entree, dessert and coffee.

Q. Why has there been such great mystery about the death of Walt Disney? Did he or did he not suffer from cancer? Why hasn't the public been told?
—R.T., Burbank, Calif.

A. Disney's lung was removed because it was cancerous, and it certainly led to his death. In some families the word "cancer" still has an opprobrious connotation, is not used.

Q. Isn't the real reason Bill Moyers is quitting the job as Lyndon Johnson's press secretary because Moyers and Johnson no longer see eye to eye on the big issues of the day?
—Charles LeFaire, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

A. Moyers' resignation stems from several factors: He wanted to replace George Ball in the State Department or become a junior edition of Averell Harriman as a roving ambassador, and he needs more money for family reasons. But he generally supports the President's political philosophy.

WOMEN WHO DRINK TOO MUCH

by LLOYD SHEARER

Actress Susan Hayward in movie I'll Cry Tomorrow graphically depicted the ravages Americans are probably the hardest drinkers in the world today. A recent public-opinion survey reveals that one in every five adults has some family member who drinks too much, while one in 14 claims he is close to a person who shows the effects of drinking "almost all the time."

The World Health Organization began a nation-by-nation study of alcoholics in the 1950's. That study, on the basis of alcoholics per 100,000 population, shows the U.S. took an early lead that it has never relinquished. Fourteen years ago, we had 4000 alcoholics per 100,000 population, followed by France with 3000; Sweden, 2600; Switzerland, 2500; Denmark, 2000; Norway, 1600.

Alcoholism has long been regarded as strictly a masculine problem, but in America today alcoholism among women is booming. Several years ago the generally accepted ratio of men to women alcoholics was five or five and a half to one. The common estimate held that, of the 5 million alcoholics in this country, 750,000 were females.

Authorities now believe that those figures are way off.

The National Council on Alcoholism estimates that 6.5 million people are suffering from alcoholism today. And of this number, no one really knows how many are women, because women in our society are the hidden drinkers.

Several experienced clinicians, Dr. Marvin A. Block, chairman of the Committee on Alcoholism of the Council of Mental Health for the American Medical Association, and Dr. Ruth Fox, medical director of the National Council on Alcoholism, suspect the ratio may now be one to one in various urban areas. Dr. Block has even ventured the opinion that there are now possibly more women than men alcoholics in the country, pointing out that it is infinitely more difficult to detect the female drinkers, who drink in the solitude and privacy of their own homes and thus avoid public recognition.

The popular image of the woman drunk is that of a poor, lined, old bag or a blowsy skid-row apparition. That image is dated.

hoods of the major cities and their suburbs.

Sarah A. Boyd, of the Berks County, Pa., Committee on Alcoholism, reports that the average female alcoholic is 36 to 50, of superior intelligence, married to a man of better than average income, has two to three children.

TOUGH ON THE FAMILY

These women do not exist on the fringes of society. For the most part they are young and middle-aged matrons with families. Most of them remain submerged in unhappy homes in suburban America, protected by husbands, parents, children and friendly family doctors in a conspiracy of discreet silence.

In many cases the families of female alcoholics are accessories to the disease. They provide the drinker with liquor at home so that she will not venture outside and shame them.

Frequently they ship her off to a private hospital to recover from the effects of a drinking bout under the guise that she is suffering from a "nervous disorder" or "nervous exhaustion."

What are the differences between women and men alcoholics? According to the Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies, women start drinking later in life but progress faster than men through the final stages of alcoholism.

According to Marilyn Johnson, an assistant professor of preventive medicine at the University of Nebraska's College of Medicine, women alcoholics are emotionally sicker than male alcoholics. They generate more personality disorders, more anger, more hostility; although to a remarkable degree, they have all the complex symptoms of alcoholism found in men, plus many artful characteristics derived from their status as women. Generally, they are involved to the fullest extent in hiding their drinking, in avoiding recognition of their alcoholism, in evading the necessary decision to renounce it.

As with sex, society employs the double standard with respect to drinking. This is why the woman alcoholic, fearful of the especially strong social stigma, goes to far greater lengths than the male in concealing the extent of her drinking. She indulges in rationalizations, pretensions, subterfuges of every type.

ing daily in the United States. Average female alcoholic is 36 to 50 years of age.

She demonstrates incredible resourcefulness in obtaining and stocking her supply of liquor (the extraordinary amount of "cooking sherry" on grocery lists is proverbial) and remarkable ingenuity in finding hiding places for it (plastic lotion containers, hot-water bags, even electric irons). Frequently she drinks vodka or gin in the hope of avoiding detection and carries a small bottle in her purse, which she drains when in the powder room.

DOESN'T FOOL OTHERS

To avoid facing her problem the woman alcoholic develops a facility to rationalize. She tells herself that she is tense or tired and needs a drink to "perk up" or that she is drinking because her husband is away or unsympathetic. She may not fool others, but she almost always deceives herself. It is this self-deception which perpetuates her illness and prevents her from seeking treatment.

Why do women drink? Asked that particular question in one survey, the subjects replied that they drank excessively in order to improve their own self-image in meeting the everyday problems of life. Physicians found these same women to be compulsive, neurotic, anxiety-ridden, immature and dependent personalities lacking interest and drive. Many women who were shy and insecure found in alcohol a means of escape from their social maladjustment, an escape from the mounting pressures, frustrations and disappointments of life.

The tensions born of sexual maladjustment play an increasingly vital role in the growing alcoholism of women. Incompatibility in marriage, lonely widowhood, menopausal depression, a sorry love affair—women have cited all these as triggering their alcoholism.

The stereotype of the promiscuous woman drunk bears little validity. On the contrary, the available evidence indicates that alcoholic women are frequently frigid, inhibited or sexually unresponsive.

In a Philadelphia study of 69 middle- and upper-class alcoholic women, the majority confessed that their marriages were emotionally bankrupt because they somehow could not "react," could not communicate with their husbands.

Many physicians are convinced that women drink more often than men in response to a crisis situation. Asked to pinpoint the incubus of their drinking, twice as many women as men cited a specific experience such as a death or divorce.

There are exceptions, of course, but usually it is the immature, undisciplined personality that seeks in alcohol the escape from fear, unhappiness and frustration. When that personality is a female, it becomes even more disturbing and alarming, because alcoholism in women produces greater disruption in family life than does alcoholism in men.

WHY WOMEN DRINK HEAVILY

As a rule, the woman alcoholic is not confined in a hospital until her drinking problem has continued for years, resulting in social and familial rejection. Then she becomes more emotionally disturbed than her male counterpart because of the social stigma against female drinkers. This is probably why there is a higher proportion of suicide attempts among alcoholic women than among alcoholic men. Society expects its married females to be stronger than its married males, and when the woman fails society, her community rejects her intensely.

The ravages of alcoholism are well-known. Why then are so many more women drinking heavily these days?

Dr. Ruth Fox says, "These are prosperous times. Women have more money. These are also critical war-torn times filled with turmoil and anxiety. These are sophisticated times in which no one arches an eyebrow at women drinking. It's become the thing to do, especially in the cities. Who nowadays disapproves of women drinking?"

Adds anthropologist Margaret Mead: "One of the protections that women have had against alcoholism is that, unlike men, they have not been expected to drink. If they didn't like drinking, they didn't have to drink. Now this attitude is beginning to disappear. It has totally disappeared on Madison Avenue, I should think. It has disappeared in international diplomatic circles, for the most part. . . . In our society the built-in methods of protection have fallen down. We have invented a new one which is Alcoholics Anonymous, but it only protects after you have the disease. . . ."

James Davidson, executive director of the Alcoholism Council of Greater Los Angeles, says, "The current increase in women drinkers may be due to the fact that more are being discovered as alcoholics simply because more women are working now than in the past, and their drinking is exposed. Or perhaps there are more women alcoholics now because the public has come to accept drinking among women."

Other sociologists point the finger of blame at life in the suburbs, where on a typical day the husband catches the 8:20 commuter train to the city, the children go off to school, and what is the lonely wife expected to do? If she is a newcomer to the community, if the in-group won't have her, if she can perform her household duties in an hour or two, or they can be done by a maid, her refuge from loneliness is frequently the bottle. She starts to drink at noon, gets "loaded" by 2 p.m., goes to bed in time to recover for the arrival of husband and children.

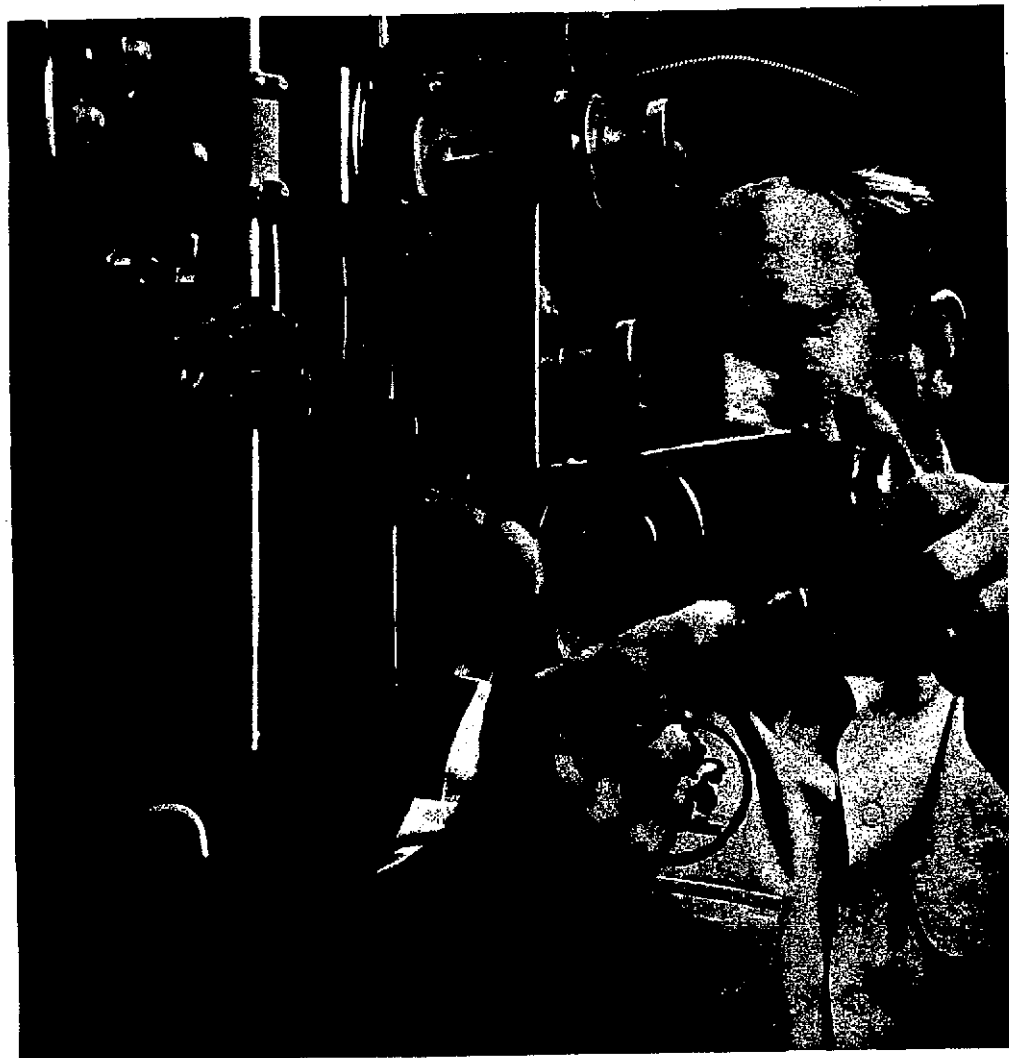

There are endless variations to this drinking pattern. Life in the suburbs is far removed from the idyll pictured by the late Walt Disney in his films.

There are certain danger signals every woman who drinks should be apprised of: (1) Using liquor as a psychological crutch to avoid or delay problems which have to be faced. (2) Lying to herself about the frequency of her drinking. (3) Drinking regularly at definite times of the day or night. (4) Using liquor regularly to settle nerves or avoid the blues. (5) Making false promises to herself about the number and frequency of her drinks. (6) Regarding liquor as a prelude to, and a major ingredient of, all social affairs.

Physicians regard as alcoholics those women whose drinking interferes with their work, health, social or family life. If you know any such woman, suggest that she contact her local branch of Alcoholics Anonymous, the National Council on Alcoholism or her family physician. Alcoholism is a disease which can be treated and cured. The sooner the better.

HOW TO GET AHEAD. Easiest way to get ahead in U.S. business is to marry the boss' daughter. If the boss has no daughter or all have been spoken for, next best way is to attend an Ivy League college. A study of Standard & Poor's Register of Corporations, Directors and Executives reveals that Harvard has produced the most company officers, 3561; Yale is second with 2620, and Princeton third with 1509.

MATTRESSES. Want your mattress to last? Invite friends, neighbors, relatives to sleep on it. In fact that's why hotel mattresses outwear those in your home. According to Manfred Steinfeld, executive of the Duo-Bed Company, "A mattress lasts longer if a different person sleeps on it every night. Each person curls up or sprawls out in a different position on a different part of the mattress, and the whole thing wears out evenly."

VATICAN DIPLOMACY. For hundreds of years the Pope's representatives have been Italians, but now clerics of other nationalities are at last penetrating the Vatican diplomatic service. In the last five years foreigners have been appointed to head 13 of the Church's papal nunciatures, or embassies, abroad. In 1965-66 Pope Paul named seven non-Italians to the rank of papal diplomat, including Monsignor Bruno Wuesternberg, the first nuncio of German nationality. More foreigners are currently enrolling in the Vatican diplomatic school, the Pontificia Accademia Ecclesiastica, than ever before.

This new trend answers the call for reform springing from within the Church, a call for decentralization and internationalization of the ruling hierarchy. Although non-Italians are being appointed to positions in the foreign service, Italians still dominate the central administration, occupy almost all the major seats of power. According to one Vatican prelate, "The Curia cannot be reformed and internationalized overnight. The old guard must die out first."

HESS MOVE. Rudolf Hess, lone Nazi bigwig still incarcerated in Berlin's Spandau Prison, will soon be moved to new quarters if he hasn't already. The Russians have quietly agreed that Hess should be transferred to another cell, probably a room in the infirmary, and eventually perhaps to another jail in order to reduce the expense of guarding him.

MISS OR MRS. QUESTION. Do unmarried women 30 and older feel better when addressed as Mrs. instead of Miss? Herr Schaffer, State Secretary for the Minister of Interior of West Germany, is convinced that single women would be "psychologically better off" if past a certain age --30 is what he suggests-- they were called Mrs.

Schaffer has asked the German parliament to consider a law, giving all single German ladies the official title Frau instead of Fraulein. There is a surplus of 4 million unmarried women over 35 in Germany who cannot find husbands--too many men were killed in World War II--and Schaffer feels they would be happier if they were called Mrs.

RED STRIKES. In the Serbia glass factory in Paracin, Yugoslavia, 60% of the workers recently went on strike. Strikes are not unknown in Iron Curtain countries. Most famous was the strike of East German workers in 1953 put down by Soviet troops. In that one, four workers were sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment for "sabotage."

In other cases managers of socialist industries, when threatened by workers, have reacted like 19th century capitalists, calling for police to force the unwilling proletariat back to their machines. In the Paracin strike management submitted, recognized the right of Serbian workers to strike for higher wages, something heretofore unheard of in Iron Curtain countries.

In addition to present economic difficulties or perhaps because of them, Yugoslavia has had 231 strikes in the last year. The U.S.S.R. has also had strike-threatening trouble. Last November President Kosygin and his chief planner, Baibakov, secretly hurried to Denez-Becken, the Ruhr of the Ukraine, to calm rebellious workers with a promise of new economic "incentives." The Russian workers didn't react as expected; they are still threatening their managers with an old socialistic tactic: the strike.

INCIDENTAL. The Soviet Union has turned its deposed premier Nikita Khrushchev into a non-person. He lives quietly in Moscow with his wife, receives no publicity. He still maintains old friendships, however. Angelo Litrico, for example, the Italian tailor who used to make Khrushchev's suits, still makes them for the old man. Only nowadays he is paid for them in caviar. "Three months ago," Litrico reports, "I sent Signor Khrushchev his latest suit. He sent back nine pounds of caviar. In the past 20 years I have made nine suits for the gentleman. I am pleased to tell you in that time I have been able to reduce the width of his trouser bottoms from 32 inches to 22."

SHULTON

Saigon black market features U.S.-manufactured goods "leaked" from foreign-aid program. Such thefts have cost U.S. taxpayers millions, according to estimates.

LET'S STOP GOVERNMENT WASTE!

DOLLARS DOWN THE DRAIN

WASHINGTON, D.C.

*T*his is the year of the battle for the dollar—a battle that could become more crucial than any in Vietnam. For at stake are the living standards of the American people and their ability to provide a better world for all. The dollar is menaced by inflation (too many dollars chasing too few goods and services) and the great gold drain (more money leaving the country than our exports bring back). Make no mistake about it, Uncle Sam is slipping deeper into the red every day.

When President Johnson took office, one of his first pronouncements was to declare a "war on waste," which he dramatized by turning off the lights in the White House. But this vital second front now appears to be a forgotten war. The most cursory examination reveals government waste on a gigantic scale.

From lunar probes to laundry bills, from computer rentals to car-pool padding, the federal government pays too much. It has paid port taxes to deliver its own food-aid shipments, built multi-million dollar depots that foreign armies didn't want, financed foreign research on such unlikely projects as the perspiration habits of Australian aborigines.

Government agencies buy new materials that are available free from the storerooms of other agencies. Expensive studies on identical subjects are undertaken by different agencies that then refuse to cooperate with each other. More millions are lost because no effort is made to arrange competitive bidding on fat contracts. Valuable patents achieved with government funds are turned over gratis to wealthy companies.

It would be unreal to expect perfection to the last penny in a government that has 2.6 million employees and owns real estate valued at $75 billion and supplies worth at least $200 billion. There are 173 federal-aid programs alone handled by 125 bureaus and agencies. But in such a mammoth operation, pennies do count — especially on the debit side of the ledger.

At Cape Kennedy alone, around $250,000 was wasted annually because the rental rate for government-leased cars was 3.23 cents higher than the payment for government-owned cars in the motor pool. Such calculations are important to a government with 91 interagency motor pools and a total of 75,000 passenger vehicles.

On Taiwan, both American and Chinese military personnel freely used U.S. government vehicles to take picnics, to drive home for siestas, to run personal errands. Since the need for vehicles was judged by the miles driven, the military-assistance advisory group routinely got 152 extra cars, which promptly were made available for still more personal use. Cost to the taxpayers: $341,000.

Parade • Jan. 22, 1967

But government employees, it seems, can waste as much money walking as riding. A government study has just been completed on 57 mailmen on their rounds in Ann Arbor, Mich.; Macon and Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Colorado Springs, Denver and Detroit. The average carrier spent five hours on his route, took off 47 minutes for personal purposes.

A Detroit mailman made these extra-curricular stops: 21 minutes at one house, 19 minutes in a drugstore, 89 minutes at a drycleaner. Another Detroit carrier spent a full hour and 51 minutes in one house. A Denver mailman regularly completed his route in five hours and 25 minutes, then used the remainder of his eight-hour day attending to personal matters. Government auditors calculated that the time lost on all 99,000 of the nation's city routes must cost the taxpayers millions.

VANISHING DOLLARS

In almost every government agency, greenbacks vanish like magic before the eyes of mystified taxpayers. The Treasury Department pays out $270,000 yearly to District of Columbia banks, for example, for cashing federal checks. Yet the same banks pay the government no interest on federal tax and loan deposits. In Tokyo, the Treasury paid $150,000 two years ago for a home for the financial attaché, a substantial sum for a three-bedroom house in a city where most Japanese spend less than $50 a month on rent.

The Public Housing Administration squandered $3.8 million one year by using high-cost brick and building balconies on what was supposed to be low-cost housing. The Atomic Energy Commission bought copy machines it could have leased for $100,000 a year less.

In view of the gold outflow, all agencies have been instructed not to spend dollars abroad for unnecessary projects. Here are some research projects the Health, Education and Welfare Department considered essential:

- $57,000 to Norwegian psychiatrists to keep tabs on the movements of released Norwegian mental patients.
- $48,930 for a McGill University researcher to study the outpatient treatment of rural mental patients in eastern Canada.
- $3500 for a New Zealander to study how plants and animals are classified by the Karam, a primitive forest tribe in New Guinea.
- $92,968 for a study of East African monkeys in Kenya to find what traits man inherits from his swinging ancestors.

If this sounds like monkey business, then a $32,900 National Science Foundation study is for the birds. This pocketful of the taxpayers' change is going for a penetrating study of Iceland's ptarmigan, a grouselike bird which may have something to tell mankind about popuand weight, it turned out, was to permit their movement without the encumbrance of security covers.

The Agency for International Development has even been caught paying taxes on American charity. It paid $393,000 to the Colombian government as a "port charge" to allow a food shipment to be unloaded.

governments operate on. By failing to seek competitive bids, for example, the Army lost $12.1 million on three-quarter-ton trucks. And the Navy overpaid the Crane Company $65,000 for nuclear submarine valves, because no one had bothered to review cost estimates.

Of course, many conscientious government employees are trying to cut costs.

Mrs. Ruth Suttles of Tuscaloosa, Ala., saved the Veterans Administration $63,410 by pointing out that the laundry based its charges for cleaning hospital sheets on the sheets' weight. She suggested that percale sheets, though more expensive than muslin sheets, weighed less and would save on laundry bills. A change-over brought a $63,410 savings before government auditors suggested dryly that even more could have been saved by having the hospital do its own laundry.

And in Vietnam, weapons advisor Joseph Sobotta, who helps train 56,000 Vietnamese National Police, is now saving A.I.D. three cents on every bullet fired during police training. He developed machinery that repacks expended shells. But the Army, which fires far more shells on its training ranges, hasn't even heard of the machine.

WATCHDOG ON WASTE

"Financial savings resulting from recommendations of the General Accounting Office amount to millions each year. "In fiscal year 1966, G.A.O. audits resulted in savings of more than $130 million. These savings ranged from eliminating unnecessary desk locks at a saving of $250,000 to a $500,000 price reduction of Bullpup missiles. More recently G.A.O. recommended savings of $58 million by consolidating rural mail routes. G.A.O. audits are our vast insurance against misapplication of Government funds."

This country is the wealthiest in the world, but even the biggest bankroll has its limits. The time has come to impress on every American that the dollar can no longer be taken for granted. The government has altogether too many people on its payroll who don't care whether their work leads to profit or profligacy. Waste and inefficiency can be controlled, and citizens should demand an end to foolish and careless government spending. The President, who keeps a constant finger on the public pulse, will not ignore an outpouring of mail.

Public reaction will convince him—and the bureaucrats under him—that thrift like charity should begin at home.

• Chicken livers were once an expensive delicacy, used sparingly to enhance the flavor of other foods. Today, with the ever-increasing popularity of chicken sold in parts rather than whole, livers are often leftover so the price has dropped. Now these delicious tidbits can be used as a basis for a main dish without straining the family budget very much. Enjoy them prepared with water chestnuts, mushrooms and sausage. Serve on hot rice.

Pour all fat from pan. Measure 3 tablespoons and return to pan. Add green peppers, garlic, onions and celery flakes and cook until soft and golden brown. Then push to one side. Cook mushrooms until golden brown, adding more reserved fat if needed. Remove vegetables from pan. Add chicken livers. Cook until lightly browned. Playboy Club bunnies surround unmarried author in posed photo depicting popular notion of how bachelors live. Because of erroneous idea that singles are rich, irresponsible, author contends, unmarrieds are victimized by high tax rates and job discrimination.

Why does America discriminate against the unmarried?

IT DOESN'T PAY TO BE SINGLE

by ROBERT E. MACKIN

People like me are being robbed—nicely and legally.

In this land of the free, the single minority pays while the married majority gets the breaks. I know how it's done and what it costs. I've been single all my adult life.

Contrast my tax bill with that of a married friend. His earnings are about the same as mine. With what his wife brings in from part-time secretarial work, the two have things pretty good.

Last year I paid $400 more in federal income tax than they did.

Or take the time I applied for a public relations job at a big food company. "We can't take a chance on guys like you," the personnel director told me. "Single men lack stability. They're likely to jump to another job. Married men stick. You're a turnover risk."

At the not so mellow age of 33, social discrimination against single people bothers me little. I can tolerate not being invited to bridge and cocktail parties given by married friends. I can also bear being shut out of beach and country clubs because they operate "on a family basis." But when the government discriminates against me, and business joins in, it's time to shoot back.

Look at these evidences of the second-class citizenship of the unmarried:

- Of 50 American astronauts, only three have been single.
- On the political campaign literature of nearly all candidates during the recent elections, this qualification was featured prominently: "Married. . ."
- In most cities, landlords refuse to rent to single women or demand they post additional security.
- In the employment market, many jobs are open only to married men.
- Since the Korean War, the pre-ponderant number of draftees have been single.

- In courtrooms, judges consider a convicted man's marital status before passing sentence.

- Everywhere in the U.S. this April 15, single men and women will pay income taxes at substantially higher rates than married couples filing joint returns.

I and the other 16 million Americans who have never been married can partly blame motion pictures and TV shows that have put across the idea that bachelor life is crowded with duplex apartments, cover girls and sports cars.

That is surely a dream.

Declares Dr. Lorraine Colville, former professor of social and political science at St. John's University, Jamaica, N.Y.: "The mass stereotype of carefree bachelors and bachelor ladies has propagated the belief that single people lack stability, thus creating a barrier to employment and career advancement. At the same time, it's generated the idea that unmarrieds are burdened with extra spending money, making them the target of discriminatory tax rates."

The tax treatment unmarried persons receive has activated one conscience in Congress. "Many single people are paying an undue share of the national tax burden," says Rep. Theodore Kupferman (R., N.Y.). "More equitable consideration of single men and women should be part of any tax-reform bill."

Tax discrimination against single people was also spotlighted recently by Joseph A. Pechman, director of economic studies for the Brookings Institution, a nonpartisan organization devoted to social research. Mr. Pechman, in a comprehensive analysis of the nation's revenue policy, described as especially discriminatory the "joint return" provision of the income-tax law, which permits married couples to treat their total income as though each partner had earned half of it.

Last year my taxable income was in the $10,000 to $12,000 bracket. My tax rate was 32 percent. But a husband and wife filing a joint return must reach a total income of $20,000 to $24,000 before being taxed at that rate.

Higher up the tax ladder, if I reach a taxable income of $22,000, my rate would be 50 percent. Before being taxed at this rate, a married couple using the joint return would have to achieve a taxable income of $44,000.

A close analysis shows the joint return to be unfair on three other counts as well.

(1) It is based on the assumption that the living costs of two persons are twice as high as those for one. But this is refuted by family budget studies, which show that married couples pay only one-third more to live than single persons.

(2) It results from the belief that single people should be taxed more because they do not bear the costs of raising children. But the joint return doesn't differentiate among married taxpayers. The rate is the same whether they have children or not.

(3) It does not adequately compensate for the fact that many single people help support parents and other relatives. Although the tax law provides some relief for unmarrieds who maintain households, the break is generally only half that derived from the joint return.

As things now stand, I can even look forward to having the taxman pick my pockets in the grave. The federal estate-tax law includes a marital deduction clause to benefit a husband who decides to leave up to one-half of his estate outright to his wife. Under this, he will be taxed on only 50 percent of what lawyers call his adjusted gross estate (his estate minus federal expenses, attorneys' fees, etc.) rather than on his entire estate. No comparable tax break is offered the single person.

Less rigid but also costly are obstacles encountered by single people who seek better jobs.

One victim of this pattern was a 32-year-old bachelor with a master's degree in employee relations. He lost out to a married man with the same experience for a $12,500 position as personnel manager at a rubber plant in Missouri. "Your education should have made the difference, but management wanted the P.T.A. type," he was told by his prospective boss.

And I can report a personal instance in which a job interviewer moved more quickly to the point. After the personnel manager of a company in Cleveland breezed through a few conversational formalities, he asked whether I was engaged, going with any special girl or had many dates. Next, he inquired if I considered myself lazy and unsure of my goals. I told him I wasn't there to be psychoanalyzed. Before I left, the company's public relations director, who was about to hire me, apologized. The next day I was told the job was filled.

The attitude of these employers shows muddled thinking. Being single is indicative of a person who does not rush into things, who wants to be certain about one of life's great decisions. Is this the type of person who hops from job to job?

Ironically, divorced persons encounter fewer obstacles than single ones when looking for jobs. One man I know has overcome the prejudice against singles by writing "divorced" in the marital status blank on application forms.

One employer welcomes single men.

and went into the Army, my total earnings for two years were about $3800. My married friends got jobs and earned about $12,000 in that time. And each one of them also had a wife who worked."

The job finding problem does not confront men exclusively. Single women under 30 find barriers because employers fear they will marry and quit before the money spent on training them pays off. Some large companies have adopted the "mature women" policy, hiring older single girls or married women with grown children.

New lines of discrimination have been drawn in recent years as the number of single girls who leave home to find careers in big cities have skyrocketed. Single tenants frequently are required to sign longer-term leases than married couples.

Now yet another barrier confronts the single person. The National Foundation for Consumer Credit reports that credit ratings in many cities are determined by newly devised numerical point systems. Persons who are married, own a home and have been employed steadily score more points and get higher ratings.

How can we stop discrimination against single persons? One positive move is expected to take place in the new session of Congress. New York's Congressman Kupferman is to introduce a bill to extend reduced tax rates now applicable only to single people who are heads of households to include all single people over 35. The tax break would be roughly half that derived from the joint return.

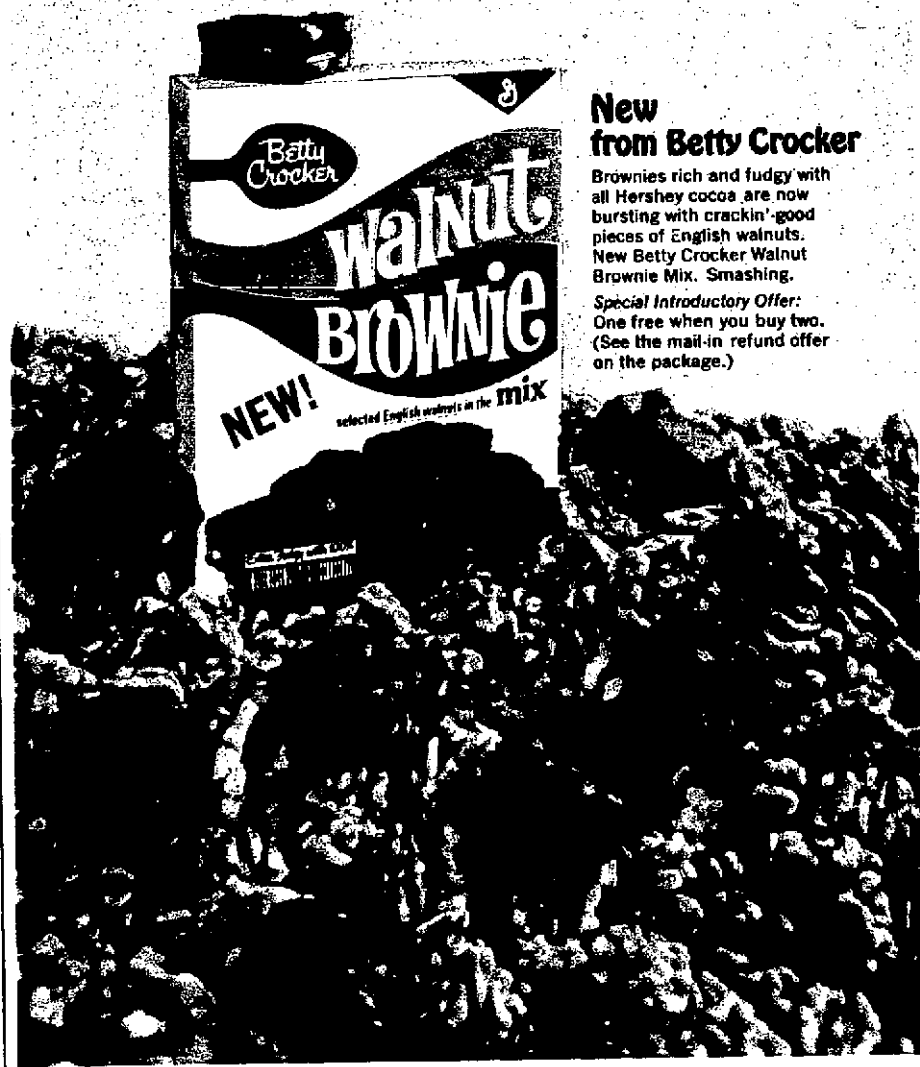

Legislation could also provide fair rules for single job-seekers. Many states now prohibit employers from discriminating because of race, creed or sex. Why not bar discrimination because of being single?

If the employers themselves would only check more thoroughly, they would find many single people are quite stable, attend night school, meet financial commitments, show evidence of the desire for a productive career. They would also find many single people heading up local fundraising drives, junior chambers of commerce and other organizations. I have and so have many other nonmarrieds.

Landlords, too, can get the facts.

But reforms take years to bring about. If you're single now, maybe the time has come to consider that married life is more than dishes and diapers. Surely, it means more dollars. And maybe it makes more sense.

DO THE ASTRONAUTS WANT THEIR SONS TO FOLLOW IN THEIR FLIGHT STEPS?

by JACK ANDERSON

Less than three years, an event more memorable than Columbus' discovery of America is scheduled to take place. Three American astronauts will embark on a breathtaking voyage 239,000 miles through space to the moon. Their spaceship, like a blowtorch in reverse, will settle down slowly on the lavalike lunar surface, and they will step out into a desolate, eerie new world. For a few hours, they will explore the crags and craters of this hostile heavenly body, then return to earth to give their reports.

The rocket trails blazed by today's astronauts will be followed by other astronauts who will explore the worlds beyond. How should youngsters who hope someday to soar among the stars prepare for this great celestial adventure? What qualifications are most important for a space explorer? PARADE took these questions up with some of the men who are now pioneering in space. Would they want their own sons, PARADE asked, to make the dangerous flight to the moon or Mars?

The oldest astronaut, Walter Schirra, is 43; the youngest, Bruce McCandless II, is only 29. Yet today's spacemen really belong to the pre-moon age. It will be their children who must build on the primitive probings that are now opening the vast frontier of space.

Without exception, the astronauts polled by PARADE would be delighted to have their children carry on where they leave off. All agreed, however, that spaceships won't be carrying any joyriders in the foreseeable future. Their advice to aspiring space explorers is to concentrate on the sciences. They will become more important, the astronauts predicted, than pilot training.

Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr., whose eight-day flight in August 1965 set world endurance records, who also commanded the dock- rendezvous mission in September 1966, is enthusiastic about having his children follow him into the field of space exploration. "Especially," he said, grinning, "since I have four boys—aged 6 through 12."

He hesitated to chart an educational course for would-be astronauts. "We're getting to the point," he said, "where we're going to start branching out into various scientific specialties. I believe they should aim toward a college degree in one of the aerospace sciences. They should also get as much time as they can in the hottest flying machines they're able to find. If at all possible, they should have experience as test pilots in high-performance aircraft."

ADVICE TO ASPIRANTS

Eventually, he suggested, pilot training will no longer be necessary—"nobody knows when"—and the main qualifications for space travel will be scientific expertise. This doesn't mean that astronomers, geologists, physicists and other scientists will be taken into space for their brainpower and book learning alone. "They'll have to pass a rigid flight physical," warned Conrad.

By the time his boys reach space-going age, he believes, "we should be busily engaged in the exploration of the planets in our own galaxy. I suspect that we may also have found some useful enterprises on the moon and that trips to and from there will be routine."

Frank Borman, who commanded Gemini 7 to its historic rendezvous with Gemini 6, would like careers in space for his sons, now 13 and 15, "if they're interested." He is more conservative than Conrad, however, in guessing how far into space men will be able to go in 20 years. He anticipates only "long orbital flights, moon landings and perhaps Mars fly-bys" during the next generation.

For those who want a space career, he would recommend an emphasis on "basic science and math." Borman himself has a master's degree in aeronautical engineering from California Institute of Technology, attended M.I.T. recently for guidance-and-navigation training. Every advance in space science must be understood, he said, by every man who expects to travel beyond this world. "Out there," he said, "you can't ask directions."

James A. Lovell Jr., who has logged more time in space than any other U.S. astronaut, feels a space career would be "quite rewarding" for either of his two sons. (They are aged 11 and 1, have sisters 12 and 6.) Comments Lovell: "Boys who are really motivated toward becoming astronauts might well spend their spare time reading about the history of space flight or participating in amateur rocket clubs."

Lovell believes that some specialists who may never have thought of themselves as potential space fliers will become prime candidates as the program progresses. "Astronomers and geologists, for example, will be needed," he says.

Lovell's partner in the project—ending Gemini 12 flight last November, Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr., lays down some ABC's for aspiring astronauts. Aldrin's own aspirants include sons, James, 11, and Andrew, 8 (see cover), and daughter ter, Janice, 9. His precepts: A. Pursue a well-rounded educational program. B. Discover areas in which you can be superior. C. Set intermediate goals. D. Strive for perfection without compromise.

Michael Collins, who left Gemini 10 twice for a space walk during his three-day flight last July, would like to see his 4-year-old son become a space explorer. He also has two girls, 7 and 5. When his boy is ready to blast off, Collins predicts, Americans will be making routine landings on Mars.

NOT ALL GLAMOUR

The granddaddy astronaut, Walter Schirra, America's third man in orbit, who also commanded Gemini 6 during its celestial linkup with Gemini 7, would make no guess about how far in space we'll be when his 16-year-old son and 9-year-old daughter reach astronaut age. But he considers astronautics a fine calling—"with appropriate preparation." By this, he means plenty of engineering and science, plus immersion in mathematics.

Youngsters with their eyes on the stars, the astronauts agree, shouldn't let the stars get in their eyes. Despite all the publicity, an astronaut's life is not all glitter and glamour. For a space explorer, he spends hardly any time in space. He is put through grinding astralphysics courses at the nation's great universities, grueling training at Cape Kennedy, endless briefings on the assembly lines and in the testing rooms.

"Once an astronaut is named to a crew," explains one space flier, "he picks up his spacecraft in whatever stage of manufacture it may be. From then on, he virtually lives with it." He studies every system—environment control, propulsion, navigation, guidance. He may point out problems to the designers. "That switch setup is brilliant from an engineering viewpoint," he may say, "but a command pilot couldn't reach it comfortably when he's floating around up there."

The big moment, of course, is the takeoff. In a burst of rocket fire and a blaze of publicity, he streaks into space and puts into practice the painstaking preparation. He returns to a hero's welcome. For about 30 days after splash-down, the White House carefully determines where he will go and what he will do to create the best possible national publicity. Then, the glory is over, and he returns to the rigorous routine.

The next step into space is the moon. By the year 2000, lunar flights may seem like milk runs. But tomorrow's astronauts will surely share with explorers of every era the spirit of adventure, the longing to see beyond the next mountain—or ocean—or planet.

How to enjoy regularity even during the middle and later years of your life,

True Facts About Irregularity

Question: Do I face any special constipation difficulties as I grow older?

Answer: As you enter your middle years, you may find that you are more and more troubled by irregularity.

Question: What can cause this "middle age" irregularity?

Answer: Constipation often results from a lack of enough moisture in the food waste which slows up elimination.

Question: Can I help overcome this problem?

Answer: The fact is, your daily intake of food may lack enough of a gentle laxative ingredient that is known as hydrogel. The addition of an adequate amount of hydrogel to your diet could bring really effective relief from constipation.

Question: How can I get enough hydrogel?

Answer: You could eat more fruits and vegetables . . . probably a great deal more than you do. Or, you can take a hydrogel concentrate like Serutan.

Question: Why should I take Serutan?

Answer: The hydrogel substance found in Serutan holds up to 20 times its volume in water. It is this lack of moisture that may be causing your irregularity.

Question: How does Serutan work?

Answer: Entirely differently from pills, oils or harsh chemical laxatives. Taken daily, gentle Serutan simply provides the hydrogel help you need to get you regular and keep you regular. You must be satisfied or your money back from Serutan. Try Serutan today.

PAT MORITA: THE HIP NIP

Doll up dinner tonight with Uncle Ben's
Flavour'd
Rice

EDITOR'S NOTE: Pat Morita, born in Berkeley, Calif., in 1932, is unique among today's comedians. Pat is the first standup Japanese-American humorist to hit the bigtime.

As a standup, Morita discards the houseboy or funny gardener approach to humor, makes fun of current events and customs, including his own Japanese ancestry.

Morita recently made his motion picture debut in Thoroughly Modern Millicent, starring Julie Andrews. His nightclub appearances include the Copacabana in New York, the Tropicana in Las Vegas, Mr. Kelly's in Chicago and all the Playboy Clubs in the circuit. He is definitely on the way up, now earns a minimum of $1000 per week.

It wasn't always so. Morita experienced a strange, almost heartbreaking childhood. From his second to his eleventh birthday, he was confined in the Weimar Sanitarium, Colfax, Calif., with tuberculosis of the spine. He had little contact with Japanese people other than his own family during those years. Most of the hospital staff and its patients were Caucasians. As a matter of fact, he couldn't speak Japanese at all, and at age 11 had to go to school with 6-year-olds in order to understand Japanese-speaking schoolteachers.

When Morita was finally discharged from the sanitarium, he and his parents, along with others of Japanese ancestry, were sent to a relocation camp until the end of World War II. It was one of the most unfair, unjustified migrations ever ordered by the government. In order to spread cheer among the camp inmates, Pat began originating satirical comedy routines.

Released from relocation camp in 1946, Morita returned to American schools in the Berkeley area. He was graduated from Fairfield High School at 16, then studied for two years at Sacramento City College, hoping to become a doctor.

He had to leave school, however, to help his father open a Chinese restaurant in Sacramento. Anti-Japanese sentiment in California was still strong at the time, and a Japanese restaurant would have posed too much of a risk.

CHOW MEIN TO CHUCKLES

At his father's restaurant, Pat began to perform in front of audiences, acting as an emcee, singing, telling jokes. In 1951 he met Kathleen Yamachi, who a year later became his wife. Morita's father then closed his eatery, and Pat went to work for Aerojet General in its computer division. Eventually, he became a department head, earned $10,000 a year, continued to dabble in comedy, entertaining in small clubs on week-ends.

In 1962, a friend opened the Ginza West, a nightclub in San Francisco. He invited Morita to emcee a few shows. Soon Morita developed a following, was offered $800 a month to continue as emcee.

After discussing the offer with his wife, Pat resigned from Aerojet, entered show business full-time. He has never regretted the decision, because his earnings, stature and career have all risen since then.

Today, Pat Morita lives with his wife and 12-year-old daughter, Erin, in a North Hollywood home, where he writes his own material, samples of which appear opposite.

PAT MORITA'S FAVORITE JOKES

People of Japanese descent — like myself—are really not very different from non-Oriental Americans. Oh, of course, there are some minor differences. Like, when I get sick, I come down with Caucasian flu. I also blush easily—but when I blush, I don't turn red—I turn orange.

One of the things I resent is the charge that the Japanese are imitators. Not really. For instance, the Japanese were the very first to commit hara-kiri. They were also the very first to produce a Japanese movie star.

I was brought up in a mixed neighborhood. My parents were Japanese. They owned a Chinese restaurant in a Jewish neighborhood and had Negro help in the store. For most of my childhood I didn't realize I was Japanese. So, when I finally found out the truth, I decided to proudly tell everyone of my heritage. Unfortunately, I picked the wrong day to tell everyone I was Japanese — December 8, 1941.

One of the nice things about being of Japanese descent is that, when I work in nightclubs, I don't have to worry about hecklers. If the heckling gets too rough, I can merely commit hara-kiri. That way I'll never have to worry about hecklers again as long as I live.

Have you heard about the Japanese deodorant called "Yours"?

You spray it on everyone else, and it makes them smell like you.

One of the big differences between Japanese-Americans and Japanese-Japanese is that Japanese-Americans almost never commit suicide, while the Japanese-Japanese go around committing hara-kiri all the time. Statistics show that there have been 240 suicides from the San Francisco Bay bridge, and only three of them were Japanese-Americans. Of those three, two were pushed by the other guy. They couldn't decide who should jump first.

Because I'm of Japanese descent, everyone automatically assumes I know a lot about karate. The truth is, I'm not an expert on karate, but I do know one thing about it: It smarts like heck.

Recently, I performed on a program together with singer Damita Jo. Did you ever stop to think that, if we were married, her name would be Damita Morita? And mine would be "Mud," because my wife, Kay, would never give her blessing.

Things change. During World War II, Americans were very angry at the Japanese. Remember all those movies in which the Japanese were the villains? It was a tossup as to who were the bigger villains—the Japanese or the American Indians. Between them, they made John Wayne a millionaire.

THE ESSAYS OF Bacon

HERE is another titan of the Elizabethan era — Sir Francis Bacon, whose surpassing intellect laid the groundwork of science and philosophy for generations. Anyone in search of personal guidance and a practical day-by-day philosophy of life can do no better than to read these immortal essays . . . about love, politics, books, business, friendship, and the many other subjects which Bacon discusses so clearly, incisively, wisely. So much wit and wisdom is packed into these writings that quotations from them have become part of our literature.

PARADISE LOST AND OTHER POEMS OF Milton

OPENING this handsome library edition of Milton — "the greatest English poet next to Shakespeare" — is like opening a long-hidden treasure chest of riches! You will be spellbound by Paradise Lost — the supreme achievement of the blind poet who, like so many of us today, fought for man's right to think, to worship, to print the words he wrote! Or, in a gayer spirit, you will enjoy "tripping the light fantastic" with L'Allegro. Or again, perhaps, the dreamy meditation of the beautiful Il Penseroso will best suit your mood. With this handsome volume at hand, you may choose from thirty of Milton's matchless poems.

Why The Classics Club Offers You This Superb Value

WILL YOU ADD these three volumes to your library—as an introductory offer made only to new members of The Classics Club? You are invited to join today...and to receive on approval beautiful editions of the world's greatest masterpieces.

These books, selected unanimously by distinguished literary authorities, were chosen because they offer the greatest enjoyment and value to the "pressed for time" men and women of today.

Why Are Great Books Called "Classics"?

A true "classic" is a living book that will never grow old. For sheer fascination it can rival the most thrilling modern novel. Have you ever wondered how the truly great books have become "classics"? First, because they are so readable. They would not have lived unless they were read; they would not have been read unless they were interesting. To be interesting they had to be easy to understand. And those are the very qualities which characterize these selections: readability, interest, simplicity.

Only Book Club of Its Kind

The Classics Club is different from all other book clubs. 1. It distributes to its members the world's classics at a low price. 2. Its members are not obligated to take any specific number of books. 3. Its volumes are luxurious De Luxe Editions — bound in the fine buckram ordinarily used for $7 and $10 bindings. They have tinted page tops; are richly stamped in genuine gold, which will retain its original lustre — books you and your children will read and cherish for many years.

A Trial Membership Invitation to You

You are invited to accept a Trial Membership. With your first books will be sent an advance notice about future selections. You may reject any book you do not wish. You need not take any specific number of books — only the ones you want. No money in advance, no membership fees. You may cancel membership at any time.

Mail this Invitation Form now. Today's low introductory price for these THREE beautiful volumes cannot be assured indefinitely, so please respond promptly. THE CLASSICS CLUB, Roslyn, L. I., New York 11576.

The Great Classics Are One of the Most Rewarding Investments
You Can Ever Make For Yourself and Your Family

THE HALLMARK of a cultured home has always been its library of books. Great books fill gaps in one's formal education . . . give broader vision to a son or daughter still in school . . . set a pattern apart, throughout his life, as one who has sought and tasted the wisdom of the ages.

For filling leisure hours with enjoyment, and for giving youth the greatest of all examples of clear, confident thinking, nothing can surpass a classic. No one, young or old, need ever be friendless or dull if he chooses for companions the wisest, wisest, most stimulating minds that ever lived.
